VYA'SA SAMHITA'

CHAPTER I.

THE HOLY SAGES (Munis) approached that repository of penitential sanctity, Vēda Vyasa, who was blissfully seated in his hermitage at Benares, and asked him questions regarding the duties of the members of different social orders (Varnas). (1)

He of excellent memory having been thus interrogated by (other holy sages) recollected the Smritis as propounded in the Vēdas, and complacently said, hear, O Munis ! (2)

Religious rites inculcated in the Vēdas should be practised in countries where black antelopes are found to roam about in nature. (3)

In matters of discrepancy between the S'rutis, Smritis, and Purāṇas, the former should be held as decisive, whereas the Smritis should have preference in all topics where there would be a difference of opinion between them and the Pūṛāṇas. (4)

The term "twice-born" denotes the Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, and Vaishyas. Only these three orders are entitled to practise religious rites propounded in the S'rutis, Smritis and Purāṇas in exclusion of all other castes. (5)

The fourth order is the Sudra, hence the S'udras; are entitled to practise religious rites, but they are not privileged to recite any Vedic Mantra, nor to pronounce the terms Svāha, Svadhā and Vashat. (6)

The daughter of a Bráhmaṇa, duly wedded to a Brahmana, is called a Vipravinna. All religious rites and ceremonies such as, postnatal rites, etc., should be done unto the male child of a Vipravinna according to the regulations laid down in respect of a Bráhmaṇa; those unto the male child of a Bráhmaṇa by a Kshatriya wife (Kshatra-vinna) should be done in the manner of a Kshatriya; while those unto the son of a Bráhmaṇa by his lawfully married S'udra wife in the manner of a S'udra. (7)

All religious rites should be done unto a male child begot by a Bráhmaṇa or a Kshatriya on his married Vaishya wife in the manner of a Vaishya, while those unto the son of a S'udra mother, under the circumstance should be done in the manner of a S'udra. A son begot by a man of inferior caste on a woman of superior caste is worse than a S'udra. (8)

A son begot by a S'udra on a Bráhmaṇa girl should be considered as a Chandāla. Such a son is debarred from practising any religious rite. There are three kinds of Chandālas. To the first kind or order belong the sons begotten on unmarried girls. To the second order belong the sons begot by persons on wives belonging to their own Gotras. (9)

To the third kind belong the sons begotten by S'udra fathers on mothers who are Bráhmaṇis. Vardhakis (carpenters), Nápitās (barbers), Gopas (milkmen), Ashapas, Kumbhakāras (potters), Vanik (traders), Káyasthas (Userers), Málākāras (flower-men), Varatas, Medas, Chandālas, Dāsas, Shvapāchas, Kolas and beefeaters belong to the lowest castes of men. Even a conversation with a person of any of these castes should be expiated by an ablution and a sight of the sun. (10—12).

The rites of Garbhādhānam (religious rites performed for the conception of one's wife), Pumsavanam (religious rites performed for the causation of the birth of a male child), Simantonnayanam (described below), Jātakarma (post-natal rites), Nāmakaraṇam (rite of first nomenclature), Nishkramaṇam (formal taking out of the child in the open), Annaprāśhanam (ceremony of first feeding the child with boiled rice), Vapanam (ceremony of tonsure), Karṇavēdha (ceremony of perforating the child's ear-lobes), Vratādēsha (the ceremony of investiture with the holy thread), Védārambha (ceremonial commencement of the study of the Vēdas), Kes'antam (ceremony of cutting the child's hair), Snānam (ceremonial ablution), Vivāhāgni-parigraha (the ceremony of lighting up the nuptial fire which is kept burning ever afterwards), Tretāgni-samgraha (the ceremony of kindling the three different kinds of fire known as Dakṣiṇāgniḥ, Gārhapatyāgniḥ, and A'havanīyāgniḥ which are kept burning till the death of the lighter), are the sixteen purificatory rites ordained to be performed in the case of a Brāhmaṇa in the scriptures.* (13—15)

The recitation of any Mantra by a woman is prohibited in the ten ceremonies commencing with the Jātakarma and ending with the Karṇavēda; but she is privileged to recite Mantras in connection with the celebration of her marriage ceremony. These ten rites should be done unto the S'udras without any Mantras whatsoever. (16)

* The number is reduced to ten in the case of a Brahmana who is not a custodian of the sacred fire. Tr.

The rite of Garbhādhānam should be done unto one's wife on the first appearance of her menses; the rite of Pūmsavanam in the third month of her first pregnancy; and the rite of Simantonnayanam (the ceremony of the parting of the hair), during the eighth month of gestation. The rite of Jātakarma should be done unto a child on the sixth day of its birth; the rite of Nāmakaraṇam, on the eleventh day; and the rite of Nishkramaṇam in the fourth month of its birth. (17)

The rite of Annaprāśanam should be done unto it in the eleventh month; and the ceremony of tonsure according to the custom of its father's family (but before it completes the third year of its age). After the ceremony of tonsure that of Karṇavēdha should be done unto a child. (18)

The son of a Brāhmaṇa should be invested with the holy thread at the eighth year of his age reckoned from the period of his inter-uterine life. Similarly, the investiture with the holy thread in the case of a Kshatriya or Vaishya child should be made at the eleventh and twelfth year respectively (19)

Sons of Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, and Vaishyas not invested with the holy thread after having respectively attained the ages of fifteen years and two months, twenty-one years and two months, and twenty-three years and two months, become deprived of the right of investiture and studying the Vēdas. They are called Vrātyas. Such children should expiate their guilt by performing a Vratyastoma sacrifice. (20)

Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, and Vaishyas are called the twice-born. Their first births take place when they are delivered of their mother's womb; their second when they duly accept the Gāyatri Mantra from their preceptors. (21)

Thus made twice-born, and free from all other faults, they become entitled to study the Vēdas, Smṛitis, and Purāṇas. (22)

Having been duly invested with the holy thread, they should reside in the houses of their preceptors, observing perfect celibacy, wearing the girdle, girdle-cloth, holy thread, and using the staff and deer-skin. (23)

On an auspicious day, and having obtained the permission of their preceptors, they should cast oblations into the sacred fire, and commence the study of the Vēdas by reciting the Om̐kāra and the Gāyatri (24)

A twice-born (pupil) should study the Dharma Śāstras under the guidance of his preceptor for learning the rules of decorum and cleanliness (both mental and physical), and do whatever is beneficial to his master. (25)

Then having made obeisance to the elders, he should sit beside his preceptor, constantly exert his best for the furtherance of his studies, and do nothing else than what is beneficial to him (preceptor). (26)

Even having been reprimanded by his preceptor, he should not make any reply in retort, nor go away even when driven away by the former. (27)

Living a life of perfect celibacy, he should renounce all hatred, envy, malice, idle glances at the sun, singing, dancing, intoxication (lit : insanity) calumny, personal decorations, application of collyrium along the eyelids, contemplation of himself in the mirror, smearing the body with scented unguents, use of sandal pastes or garlands of flowers, idle strolls, and discontent (28—29)

A little after midday, and with the permission of his preceptor, he should ungreedily ask for alms of men of good conduct and regulated habits (Niyama), and having obtained the alms, he should instantly retire therefrom, considering the articles of gift as riches. (30)

Having performed the midday rites, he should take his meal with the permission of his preceptor. He should not take only cooked rice, nor that which is the residue of another's meal. At the close of his meal he should rinse his mouth with water. (31)

Even while in distress the acceptance of any wealth excepting the alms is prohibited. He may dine in connection with a Pitri S'rāddha if thereto invited by a person without any disqualification, and if his preceptor approves it. (32)

A single meal, which is not incompatible with the spirit of Brahmacharyam is what is enjoined to be taken by him (the student), every day. Having partaken of it, he should wait upon his preceptor. Then having cast twigs of sacred trees (Samid) into the sacrificial fire, he should attend to his preceptor's comforts. In the night, and with the permission of his teacher, he should lie down in a recumbent posture, after the former had been comfortably laid in bed. (33—35)

A Brahmachārin should thus daily practise his vow until the completion of his study of the Vēdas; he should devote himself to the good of his master, be sweet of speech and devout in spirit. (36)

The twice-born one, who studies the Vēdas in this manner, becomes capable of (effectively) cursing or granting boon to other persons, and lives in the same region with the Rishis, after death. (37)

Milk, wine, honey, and clarified butter are the articles which the gods are fond of. He should constantly study the Vēdas except on the interdicted days. On such days their other collateral subjects should be studied with the preceptor's permission. (38)

An infringement of the preceptor's order makes all studies of the Vēdas abortive. Hence, one should study them in a submissive spirit. Even a little study of the Vēdas stands their twice-born reader in good stead both in this world and the next. (39)

The ritualistic (Naishthika) Brahmachārin, who practises this vow from his Upanayana (investiture with the holy thread) till death, attains to Brahma. (40)

The twice-born one, who practises this vow for thirty-six years, is called a Upākurvanak. At the close of this Vrata, the vowist should shave his head. Thus having finished the study of all the Vēdas or of any part thereof, he (the student) should give honorarium to his preceptor (Dakṣhinā) after having obtained his permission thereto, and bathe thereafter (41)

CHAPTER II.

At the close of such Vedic studies, and having performed the rite of Avabhṛitha ablution (lit.—ceremony of ablution at the completion of a principal sacrifice) a twice-born one, wishing to be a house-holder, should seek the hands of a girl of unimpeachable birth and family. (1)

The daughter of an erudite father of good conduct and having sons of his own loins, and born of a famil

free from all blemishes or any contagious or hereditary disease, and not plighted for money to any other bridegroom before, and not of the same Prabara and Gotra with him, nor related to him as a Sapinda in his father's or mother's side and belonging to his own varna and social order, slender, of auspicious sign; clad in silken garments, and not above eight years of age,* and whose paternal ancestors to the tenth degree in the ascending line were all men of renown; should be solemnly wedded by a (twice-born) according to religious rites, if proffered in marriage. (2—4)

A daughter should be given in marriage to a (twice-born) one, befitting her family in respect of learning; birth, etc., and suited to her in years; according to the rites of a Brahma marriage, or according to any other regulation where the former would not avail. (5)

Her father, grand-father, brother, uncle, cognates and mother are successively entitled to give away a girl in marriage. In the absence of a father, a grand-father will formally give her away, and so on, in the order of enumeration. The bride can herself give her away in the absence of any of these relations. 6)

The sin incidental to (an act of) procuring abortion (lit: destruction of the foetus) is committed, if through the negligence of her giver a girl menstrates before her marriage. He, who does not give away a daughter in marriage before she attains her puberty becomes degraded. (7)

Both the giver and the taker of a girl (in marriage) stand exonerated from all penalties if the latter gives her away saying, "I give this girl to you," and the latter accepts the gift by saying, "I take her (as my wife)." (8)

* Several Commentators interpret the term as denoting "fair-coloured."

A man by deserting a blameless girl, or defiling an innocent one, makes himself liable to punishment, (9)

(A twice born) one can take a wife who is not of his own caste (Varna), even after marrying one of his own order (Varna). The son begotten on the wife of one's own caste, does not stand as an Ascvarna (of a different caste) son to one under the circumstance. (10)

A Brahmana can marry a Kshatriya or Vaishya girl; a Kshatriya can take a Vaishya wife, and a Vaishya can wed a S'udra's daughter. But the member of an inferior caste can not wed a girl of superior caste. (11)

Amongst wives of different castes, she, who is of the same caste with her lord, should be his companion in matters of piety and religion. Of several wives all belonging to the same caste as their lord, she, who has the greatest attachment to piety, should have preference as regards companionship in the celebration of religious rites, etc (12)

The god Brahma cleft his body in two, of yore. Out of one part sprang the husbands, and out of the other the wives This is what the S'ruti relates. (13)

A man, so long he does not take a wife, is but (a) half (incomplete) being. A half (thing) can not beget A whole (thing) only can beget. This is the dictum of the S'ruti. (14)

A wife is weightier than the world with its virtues, wealth, and enjoyment, since with the help of no other auxiliary than a wife can he bear its burden. Hence, one should marry, and by constant practice of self-control duly maintain her. (15)

Having married, a man should live with his wife and the sacred fire in his own house, not neglecting his duties and the Vaitānika (sacrificial) fire with the advent of opulence. (16)

Each day he should cheerfully perform the Smarta rites with the help of the nuptial fire, and those inculcated in the S'rutis with that of the sacrificial one. (17)

Day and night, the wedded couple should be one in spirit in respect of all matters of piety, gain, and desire (enjoyment). They should be one in vows and practices. (18)

A woman has no separate existence from her lord in matters of piety, gain and desire. The S'āstras have enjoined this dependency of love. (19)

A wife should quit her bed before her lord, cleanse (wash) her person, fold up the beds, and make her house clean and tidy. (20)

Then having entered the chamber of Homa (sacrificial fire) she should (first) wash and plaster its floor, and then the yard of her house, and after that, wash with warm water the vessels of oils, clarified butter, etc., which are used in connection with Agnikaryayas, and keep them in their proper places. (21)

Utensils or implements, which are used in couples (such as the pestle and mortar, etc.,) should never be separated. The vessels (of rice, etc.,) should be cleansed and refilled with their respective contents, and the kitchen-utensils should be taken out, cleansed, and replaced in their proper positions. (22—23)

The oven should be repaired and replastered with earth and clay, and the fire should be lighted therein. Thus having performed her morning (house-hold) duties, and pondered over the dishes of different flavours (to be prepared, that day), and allotment of work to different workers, and the daily expenditure of the household, she should make obeisance to her elders and superiors. (24)

Then she should decorate her person with the ornaments given to her by her father-in-law, husband, father, mother, maternal uncle, or relations. (25)

Pure in her thought, speech and action, and obedient to the dictates of her lord, she should follow him (in life) like his own shadow, seek his good like a trusted friend, and minister to his desires like a servant. 26—27)

Then having finished cooking, she should report of it to her husband saying, "the rice is cooked." The husband having made offerings therewith to the Vishvadevas, she should first feed the children, and then serve out the morning meal to her lord. (28)

Then, with the permission of her lord, she would partake of the residue of the boiled rice and cooked dishes (described above), and spend the closing portion of the day in contemplation of the family earnings and expenditure. (29)

Having again attended to the cleansings of the house, etc., at evening, she should cook the night meals (of the household) and provide her husband with a sumptuous repast. (30)

Then the cheerful lamps should be lighted, and she, having spread out a comfortable bed, attend to massage the body of her lord. (31)

After her husband had slept, she should lie down by her side, not entirely bereft of clothes, with her mind fully centered in his self, cautious, non-desiring, and with her passions held under a healthy control. (32)

She should not speak too loudly, nor harshly, or unpleasantly to her lord, avoiding all quarrels, lamentations, and perfidies. (33)

She should not be prodigal in her purse, nor hostile to the spirit of piety or gain. Carelessness, fickleness of mind, anger, envy, deception, vanity, rivalry, mischievousness, cruelty, inordinate pride, cunningness, atheism, daringness, discontent, and dissimulation are the fifteen vices which a chaste wife should always try to renounce. (34—35)

A chaste wife, who thus worships her lord, acquires fame and blessings in this life, and lives in the same region with him, after death. (36)

I have described the daily or general duties of wives, now hear me discourse on their specific ones. A wife, on the appearance of her flow, should renounce all those duties, as she becomes unclean. Bashfully she should reside in a lonely chamber, avoiding the eyes of her friends and relations. (37)

Clad in a single sheet of cloth, and forsaking ornaments and ablution, she should sit silent with her eyes cast downward. Avoiding all listless movements of her eyes and extremities, she should take boiled rice at night alone during her periods. (38—39).

Having passed three nights in such a staid condition of mind, she should wash her clothes, and bathe, on the morning of the fourth day. (40)

Then having seen the face of her husband she would be clean again, whereupon she should resume her usual house-hold duties as before. (41)

The sixteen (successive) nights from the first appearance of the flow in women are called the Menstrual period. Healthy male seeds (sperms) cast into healthy fields (female reproductive organs) during this period are found to sprout lead to conception). (42)

The first four nights of the period should be avoided as Parva days, as well as those marked by the asterisms called Revati, Pitraksha and Rākshasa. Fecundation should take place on each even night during the menstrual period alone. (43)

A man, clad in a silk garment and duly bedecked with ornaments, should visit his wife on (any of these even) nights, whereby he would get a son bearing all auspicious signs on his person. (44)

Even the vow of a Brahmachārin, who visits his wife during her menstrual period, is not vitiated by so doing. Even he, who does not know any other woman, commits no sin by going unto his own wife during her menstrual period according to the natural inclinations of his mind. (45)

A husband not visiting his wife during her menstrual period is guilty of foeticide. The infidel wife, who gets herself impregnated by another man is fit to be abandoned by her lord. (46)

A wife, procuring abortion of her pregnancy caused by her husband, is guilty of a Mahâpâtakam. A husband, by unjustly deserting his own innocent wife, becomes a spiritual out-caste. (47)

A chaste wife should not renounce her lord, even if he be guilty of a Mahâpâtakam, praying that his sin might be extinguished in no distant time. (48).

A husband should not look at the face of his faithless wife. He should banish her in a distant country after a good censuring (49)

A good wife should renounce all pleasures as long as her husband would be absent in a distant country. The widow of a Brāhmaṇa should either immolate herself in fire with the corpse of her deceased husband or observe a vow of life-long Brahmacharayam. (continence) from that date, shaving the hair of her head, and foregoing all articles of luxury (50—51)

A faithless wife may be again entrusted with the wifely duties by her lord after her next menstrual ablution (at the close of her next monthly flow) after the act of infidelity, and treat her as his own wife as before.

A husband may forsake and banish in any distant country, any of the following wives, viz., those who are deceitful, faithless (lit : forsaking virtue or religion) hostile to her husband's desires, invalid (suffering from an incurable or longstanding disease), wicked, addicted to wine, gambling, or hunting excursions, or inimical to his interests. A husband should count a superseded wife (Adhivinna') still as a wife of his own after he has married a second time. (52—53)

Under no circumstance women should be kept unprotected. Fathers, husbands, and sons should take them under their guardianship in succession. (54)

The dead bodies of deceased and well born wives, who leave behind them sons, grandsons, and great grandsons, etc., should be duly cremated. They (wives) attain to the same region with their husbands, who had performed Pitri Yajnas in their lives and are hence entitled to spiritual emancipation, after death (55—56)

CHAPTER III.

THE acts of a house-holder may be classified as Nityam, Naimittikan and Kāmayam.* Now hear me describe each of these kinds in detail. (1)

A householder should quit his bed at the close of the last quarter of the night, meditating upon the self of god) Hari. Then having seen auspicious articles, he should commence the necessary works of his daily life. (2)

Then having eased and washed himself, he should bask in the glare of fire. After that, he should cleanse his teeth with water, bathe, perform his rite of Sandhyā worship, and offer libations of water to the gods and Pitris in succession (as regulated). (3)

Then the best of Brāhmanas should study the Vēdas, histories (Itihāsas), and the kindred branches of knowledge (Vēdangas), give instructions to his own pupils, and feed the good Brāhmanas. (4)

Acquire that which has not been already acquired, and having obtained it distribute it as soon as possible. Equals should not sit with equals without first reporting their own presence or arrival. (5)

* A Kamayam karma is an act whose performance is imperatively obligatory on all persons, and a non-performance whereof detracts one's religious merits, though its performance does not make any addition to it.

A Naimittikam karma is an act whose performance is not imperatively obligatory, nor its non-performance detracts from, or performance adds to, one's religious merit. It is a specific act enjoined to be performed on a special occasion.

A Kāmayam Karma is an act which is performed for the fruition of any definite object, such as a residence in heaven, or the birth of a male child, etc.

In tanks, lakes, wells, and fountains, etc., belonging to others, one should bathe duly after having first taken five handfuls of clay (Pañcha-Piṇḍa) therefrom. (6)

In cases where Tirthas would be unavailable, or in those wherein ablution would not be practicable, one should bathe in the court-yard of a house with water enough to wet, and be rinsed out of, his cloth. (7)

The rite of ablution should be performed by reciting the A'pohishtā Mantra; the rite of purification (Marjanam) should be done by reading the one beginning with Drupadādiva Mumuchāna. After the bath, the bather should thrice practise Prāṇāyāma, and look at the sun by reciting the Suryopasthāna Mantram. (8)

Then having recited the Gāyatri, the twice-born ones should commence the study of the Vēdas. Having studied portion of the Saman, Yajus, and Atharvaṇ, they should commence reading the Itihāsas, Parāṇas, and Upanishads, either entirely, or in parts, if a complete perusal is not feasible. This should be done every day. (9—10)

A twice-born one, through the merit of such studies, acquires all the virtues which can be acquired by celebrating religious sacrifices, by making gifts and practising penitential austerities. Hence, he should read the Vēdas, every day, without indulging in any idle talk. (11)

The Dharma S'astras, Itihāsas and Purāṇas should be read, if possible, in their entireties, and at the end of such studies a twice-born one should first offer libations of water to the gods (12)

The rite of Tarpaṇam (offering libation) should be performed as follows:—He (performer of the rite) should sit with his face looking eastward and his right knee

flexed and placed on the ground. (Thus seated) he should catch hold of his holy thread in the usual posture, and a Kusha blade with the first phalanx of his right thumb, and offer a single libation of water containing barley corn to the Gods by reciting the Devā, Yakshā, etc., Mantra—(May the gods, Yakshas, etc., be pleased, etc.,) (13)

Then he should sit with his knees flexed and placed on the ground, and his face turned towards the north, catching hold of his holy thread in the posture of a necklace, and offer two libations of water containing barley and sesame unto each spirit of men with the end of a kusha blade held at the root of his little finger. The libations should be cast towards the north. (14)

Then seated with his left knee flexed and his holy thread placed on his right shoulder, he, looking eastward, should offer three libations of water, containing sesame only, unto his father, grandfather and great grandfather, as well as unto his departed maternal grandfather, maternal great grandfather, maternal great great grandfather, and so on, unto the spirits of his paternal grandmother and paternal great grandmother, with the end of a Kusna blade, double the ordinary length, held at the root of his right index finger. (15—17)

The spirits of deceased persons belonging to the family of one's maternal grandfather, or to one's own Gotra, and whose corpses had not been duly cremated, should be separately propitiated with the offering of a single oblation, each. (18)

The water squeezed out of the wearing cloth of a performer of Tarpaṇam should be offered as libations unto the spirits of those deceased in his family, who had died without the rite of Annaprās'anam having been done unto them, or whose dead bodies had not been cremated. (19)

The departed manes of him, who thus squeezes water drops out of his wearing cloth and offers them as libations (as above described) without first having offered libations of water unto them, despair of obtaining any water at all, with the gods and Rishis, such as Sanaka etc., (20)

A rite of Tarpanam done with water containing Kuśa blades and sesame, and by reciting their Gotras and names with the term svadhā (obeisance) appended thereto, becomes gratifying to the Pitris. One done without any of these factors proves abortive. (21)

A rite of Tarpanam done by a person while thinking of other things, or not according to the regulations of the S'āstras, or without being seated on a proper cushion, proves as blood to his departed manes. (22)

The Pitris propitiated with a Tarpanam duly performed as above regulated, grants all wished-for things to its performer. (23)

The deities mentioned in the Ṣalamantra should be worshipped by reciting the Mantras in which the names of Brahmā, Vishnu, Ś'iva, A'ditya, and Miśrā Varuna, occur. (24)

Having performed the rite of Suryopasthānam with his face turned towards the east, a twice-born one should purify the water by invoking the names of Brahma, Agni, Indra, Oshadhi, Iiva and Vishnu. In connection with this rite he should recite the Mantra, Yat, etc., with the term Namas appended to it, by addressing the name of each of these (divinities) After that, he should rinse his mouth, and bathe. (25—26)

Then having entered his house, a twice-born one should perform the four Pāka-Yajnas (simple domestic sacrifices) with the help of the A'vasathya fire (the sacred fire kept in the house). He, whose A'vasathya fire has not been lighted at all, should perform the Homa by casting oblations of boiled rice soaked in clarified butter in the Laukika fire, according the regulations of the Sākala (a school of the Rig Vēda) school. (27—28)

The oblations should be cast in the sacred fire by severally and combinedly reciting the Vyāhritis and the six Mantras running as Deva Kritasya etc., (29)

After that, the Prājāpatya Svishta 'Krita Homa should be performed by offering twelve oblations unto the fire, prefixing Om and appending Svāhá to the Mantra according to the Svishta regulation. (30)

The oblations should be offered on Kusha blades spread out on the ground; and the one, well-versed in the S'astras, should first offer three oblations by prefixing Om and appending Namas to the Mantra as follows:—Om, to Vishvadevas (Namas) obeisance; Om, to all the beings (Bhutas) Namas (obeisance); Om, to the lord of all the beings (Butānām Patayāś) Namas (obeisance); and after that, Om, to Pitris (obeisance) Namas. (31—32)

The washings of the vessels should be cast in the North-west, and sixteen morsels of boiled rice soaked in clarified butter should be offered, by saying, "these (morsels of) boiled rice to men" (Idam Annam Manu-shyēvyah Hanta). (33)

A twice-born one should offer six oblations of boiled rice to his six departed manes (father, grandfather, great-grand father, maternal grandfather, maternal great grand father, and maternal great great grand father) by mentioning the name and Gotra of each, and by appending the term Svadhā to each of these

Mantras, according to one's might and the regulations of the PitriYajna. (34)

A few texts of the Vēdas should be recited on the occasion for the completion of the Brāhma-Yajna. (35)

Then having taken a quantity of boiled rice in his hand, he should walk out of his room and offer morsels of it to crows and Svapachas (Chāṇḍālas, lit. dog-feeders), (36)

Then in a pure spirit, and for a period of forty-eight minutes (Muhurta), the house-holder should calmly wait at his gate for any chance-comer (Atithi) and having found any hungry, sober Atithi coming from a distance, he should reverentially accost and welcome him to his house. (37—38)

He should give him water for washing his feet, and show him every mark of respect. An Atithi, duly honoured, is greater than a Yajna (sacrifice), inasmuch as he makes his host entitled to the merit of heaven on the very day of his arrival. (39)

An Atithi, and a Brāhmaṇa well-versed in the Vēdas, happening to arrive at one's house during the celebration of the Vais'vadeva sacrifice, should be duly honoured. Propitiated with hospitality both of them lead their host to heaven ; dishonoured they lead him to hell. (40)

A marriage relation, a Snātaka, a king, an A'chār-yaya, a friend, and a Ritvik, even happening to call at one's house, each year, should be religiously respected. (41)

One should honour a S'rotriya arrived at one's house, and dismiss him with the gift of a cow (42)

One should bid farewell to an Atithi, or to a S'ro-friya guest, by following him a little beyond the compound of one's own house. One should feed one's friends, maternal uncles, agnates, and marriage-relations arrived at one's shouse. A Yati is privileged to accept alms from a house-holder proffered with respect. (43—44)

The man, who partakes of good food himself, comes by a worse fate by giving bad food to another. A house-holder eats sin by eating before the infants, oldmen, sick folks and pregnant women in his house are relieved of their hunger. (45)

Without being invited one should not eat, nor desire to eat, any cooked food at another's house. A twice-born one is at liberty to reject an invitation by a man of questionable repute. (46)

Boiled rice (cooked food) belonging to a S'udra, to a calumniated person, to an usurer, to one of false speech, to a cruel man, to a thief, to one of an irascible temperament, to one abandoned by one's parents, to a slave, to the haughty, to a butcher or hunter, to an actor, to a wine-seller, to an arrogant, insane, Vrātya, or shameless person, to a breaker of vows, to an athiest, to a miser, to one who goes naked, to one in danger, to a non-Aryan, to a woman, to a calumniator, to a renowned though dependent person, to a stealer of king's revenue or divine chattels, to one defiled through evil company, conduct, food, or bed, to an irreverent man, to a degraded person, or to a man of despicable conduct, is unfit to be partaken of. He, who partakes of such a man's boiled rice, becomes equally degraded with him. 47—51)

Boiled rice belonging to a Nāpita (barber), a Kula mitra, Ardhasiri (ploughman), Dāsa or Gopālaka, (though these men are all S'udras), may be eaten without the fear of committing any sin. Twice born ones of known families can safely partake of one another's boiled rice. (52)

Boiled rice procured with one's own earnings, or kept in a vessel which is not defiled by the touch of wine, nor licked by a dog, nor smelled by a cow, nor touched by a crow or a S'udra, is always pure. (53)

Such boiled rice, as well as that which has not been previously partaken of, nor stale or prepared over night, nor taken out of the kitchen, and is nicely cooked, should be eaten, every day. (54)

The several preparations of (rice, pulse, barley, and wheat, etc.,) known as Kris'arā, Sanja'va, Pupa and Pāyasa, are edible, and a Brāhmaṇa while not officiating as a priest at any religious sacrifice, should not take meat or animal food. (55)

A Brāhmaṇa, engaged in the celebration of a religious sacrifice, becomes degraded by not taking meat. A Kshatriya should eat the cooked flesh of a quarry after having propitiated therewith the gods and his departed manes. A Vaishya can take meat, lawfully obtained for money, after having worshipped therewith his departed manes. (56—57)

A twice-born one, by eating the cooked flesh of an animal wantonly slaughtered (not killed in any sacrifice), suffers the pangs of hell for eternal time, or as long as the sun and stars would shine in heaven. A Brāhmaṇa, by abjuring meat, acquires the merit of a horse-sacrifice, all his desires are fructified, and he becomes an emancipated self even though he be a householder. (58)

A twice born one can drink the milk of a cow or she-buffalo; but that milk should be seasonably milched after the tenth day of her parturition, her calf continuing in a healthy state. The milk of a cow or she-buffalo in heat or in pregnancy should be rejected as unwholesome. (59—60).

A twice born one, who has eaten an onion, white bringel, red radish, red garlic or turnip,* Jatugarbha fruit, or any unseasonable flower, or taken the milky juice of an Aruna tree, should practise a Chāndrāyana Vrata. (61)

Boiled rice (food) which has come from an unknown source, or has been defiled by speech (ordered to be set apart for another) or has been acquired by giving pain to any one, and out of which morsels have not been proffered to any creature, burns down a householder as fire if he partakes of it. (62)

A house-holder should always take his food in golden or silver vessels, or in those made of bell-metal, substituting the fragrant leaves of the Palāsha, Lodhra, or Padma for them in cases where they would be unavailable. A yati or a Brahmachārin should use the kind of utensil which he thinks proper for his cult. (63—64)

Having sprinkled drops of water over the boiled rice (served out to him), a twice-born one should cast three small oblations thereout on the ground, saying, "to the lord of Bhu obeisance (Namas), to the lord of Bhuva obeisance (Namas), and to the lord of beings (Bhūtānāmpatayé Namas) obeisance. (65)

Then having moistened his mouth with a handful of water, he should do Homa unto the five vital airs, appending the term Svāhā to the name of each of them, and thereafter partake of the boiled rice, as desirable. (66)

Silently and without any other thought in his mind, or anywise condemning it, he should partake of the boiled rice until the satisfaction of hunger. After that, he should sprinkle water over the plate and leave it. (67)

He should take a morsel out of the residue of boiled rice and cast it on the ground. Then having washed his mouth, he should pass the rest of the day in good company with topics of ancient lore and in the study of Itihāsas and good literature. (68)

On the approach of evening, he should attend to his Sandhyā worship, and cast oblations in the sacred fire. Every day, a twice-born one should eat in the company of his servants and dependants. An Atithi arrived at the time of his evening Homa should be honoured by a house-holder to the best of his ability, inasmuch as a dishonoured Atithi robs the piety of the household. (69—70)

He should not overload his stomach with food ; and having washed his mouth and feet at the close of his evening meal, a house-holder should lie down in a comfortable bed with his head not turned towards the North or the West. (71)

Unless badly jeopardised in health, or otherwise incapable, a twice-born one should never neglect the timely performance of his Homa and Sandhyā rites. (72)

Quitting his bed within forty eight minutes of the sun-rise, he should ponder over his own earthly interests. A capable and healthy man should thus act every day in his life. (73)

CHAPTER IV.

THIS Scriptural Code framed by the holy Vyāsa is but a compendium of all kinds of pieties. All virtues and pieties (enjoined to be performed) by the four orders are intimately connected with the liberation of self (1)

Verily verily, (the holy Vyāsa) has repeatedly said unto men that, a household is the best hermitage in the world. He, who faithfully discharges the duties of a house-holder, acquires the merit of visiting all the holy shrines. (2)

The house-holder, who reveres his elders and preceptors, supports his servants, is kind, unenvious, truthful and self-controlled, daily performs his Homa and Japa (divine contemplation and mental recitation of a Mantra), is faithful to his own wife without coveting that of another, and gives no handle to obloquy, acquires the merit of a pilgrimage, without stirring out of his own house. (3—4)

Ablutions in all the holy pools cannot absolve the sin of him, who daily steals, or covets, other men's wives and riches. (5)

A true and dutiful house-holder bathing in his own yard acquires the merit of all holy ablutions. Three quarters of piety belong to a house-holder as the giver of food, the remaining quarter attaches itself to him as the master of the household. (6)

Sin can never approach the threshold of a house wherein the master hospitably accommodates the Bráhmanas, washes the dust off their feet, gratifies them with food, makes offerings to Vis'vadevās, and doles out alms to the indigent. (7)

The god of death (Yama) can never touch the man, who gives to the Bráhmanas water for washing their feet, shoes, food, and hermitages to live in, and welcomes them home by waiving lighted lamps before them. (8)

The departed manes of a person drink nectar out of cups of lotus leaves so long as the washings of the feet of Brāhmanas stand moistening the earth of his court-yard. (9)

O you foremost of the Rishis the merit, which is acquired by making gifts of Kapilā cows on the day of the full moon in Kārtika, is likewise acquired by washing the feet of Brāhmanas. (10)

The fire god can be gratified by welcoming the Brahmanas; Indra, by offering seats unto them; Pitris, by washing their feet; and the (god) Prajāpati, by giving food unto them. (11)

One's own parents are shrines of excellent sanctity, no doubt, though kine and the Ganges are holier; but the Brāhmanas are the holiest of the holies on earth a holier thing than they is not, nor ever will be. (12)

All the holy pools and shrines such as, Kṛukshetra, Naimisha, Pushkara, Gangādvāra, and Kedāra voluntarily visit the house-holder in his own house, who has subdued all his senses and desires. He is absolved of all sin. (13—14)

O you Brāhmanas, now I shall relate to you the virtue of charity or gift-making as it should be practised by the members of the four social orders, and as it was narrated by the holy Vyāsa of yore. (15)

That wealth alone, which a man spends in gifts to the good Brāhmanas, or in gratification of his own desires, is the only true wealth, the rest is but trust. (16)

The riches of the rich are what they enjoy and endow. Others play with the widows and riches of those who neither enjoy nor endow, after their death. (17)

What does his wealth avail the soul of a man, after death; (since) transient is the very body which he tries to nourish with the aid there of? (18)

Transient is wealth, transient are the limbs of one's body. The only reality is that death is fast approaching. Acquire pieties, every day. (19)

Why not give away your riches in charity which you shall have to leave behind, after death, if you have not already spent them in acts of piety, enjoyment or fame? (20)

Truly realised is the end of his life on whose life depends the livelihood of his friends, relations, and Brāhmanas. Who does not live for his own ends in this world? (21)

Even the beasts live and pamper their own bellies. Of what use is the strength, health and longevity of him who does not do any act of public good? (22)

If you have but a morsel of food, why don't you give half of it to the poor? Will any body ever get his wished-for riches in this life? (23)

Verily do I consider a miser to be a man of great renunciation, inasmuch as he leaves behind him all his hoarded riches, after death. A charitable man is the veritable miser living, since he would be benefitted by his wealth (spent in charities) in the next world. (24)

One day we shall have to quit this life. He dies not who has realized the end of his life (by making charities). A miser, dead, is like an ass, who only carries other mens' ingots on his back. (25)

Even space and time will die one day, but the merit of a spontaneous and voluntary gift (lit :—Made without the asking, or to a person come without any call) will never suffer any death. (26)

A reciprocity of gifts may be a social function, but is no virtue. It does not bear any religious merit, like the milk of a black cow (whose calf is dead), milched out of greed and proffered to the gods, etc. (27)

Verily the enjoyers (beneficiaries) of a charitable endowment, contingent on the happening of a future calamity, are not actually seen. But since eternal is the merit of a gift, the maker of a gift never reverts to the plain of human existence. (28)

By making gifts to one's parents, brothers, father-in-law, mother-in-law, wife, or children, one is entitled to an eternal residence in heaven. (29)

A gift made to one's father is hundred times more meritorious than the one made to an outsider, those made to one's mother and sister being respectively ten times greater than the latter. A gift made to one's brother bears eternal fruit. (30)

O you lords of Munis! Every day gifts should be made to the Brāhmaṇas. Any one coming and asking for gifts (charities) should be succoured (31)

Several recipients of gifts (receivers of charities) may be persons well-versed in the Vēdas, or practisers of penitential austerities. But the best of such takers are those who have never partaken of a S'udra's boiled rice. (32)

A gift should be made to an erudite person living at a distance in preference to an illiterate one living close by one's house. Nothing can be humiliating (insulting) to an illiterate Brāhmaṇa. (33)

The status of well-birth is extinguished by one's stealing an article consecrated to divine use, or belonging to a Brāhmaṇa, and by insulting a Brāhmaṇa as well. (34)

By not making any gift to a Brāhmaṇa, ignorant of the Vedas, one does not commit the sin of insulting a Brāhmaṇa. Oblations are cast in the sacred fire, and not in its ashes. (35)

He, who causes a Brāhmaṇa, who has been studying the Vedas in the vicinity, to be superseded in a matter of feeding or gift-taking, destroys his three fold relations. (36)

A Brāhmaṇa, who has not studied the Vedas, does, like a wooden elephant, or a leather-deer, but bear the name of the genus he belongs to. (37)

Like a deserted hamlet, like a waterless well, a Brāhmaṇa, who has not read the Vedas, is a Brāhmaṇa only in name. (38)

An article given to a Brāhmaṇa (well versed in the Vedas) or cast in the sacred fire by way of ablution, constitutes the true wealth (possession) of a person, the rest is but insignificant. (39)

A gift made to a Vruva Brāhmaṇa is doubly meritorious than the one made to a Sama Brāhmaṇa. A gift made to an Achāryaya is a thousand times more meritorious than the latter, while the one made to a Brahmana well versed in Vedas bears immortal fruit. (40)

One, born of the seeds of a Brāhmaṇa but not purified with any of the purificatory rites or Mantras, and making use of his caste as a means of livelihood, is called a Sama Brāhmaṇa. (41)

A Brāhmaṇa, unto whom all the purificatory rites of Garbhādhānam, etc., have been performed, but who has neither read nor taught any part of the Védas, is called a Vruva Bráhmaṇa. (42)

A Bráhmaṇa, who practises penitential austerities, and performs the rite of Homa, every day, and teaches the Védas with their Kalpas and Rahasyas, is called an Achāryaya. (43)

A Bráhmaṇa, who duly celebrates the Pas'uvandha Chāturmāsya, Agnisthoma and other Vedic sacrifices, propounds the true import of the Vedic texts with the six allied branches of study in cases of doubt or discrepancy, and regularly studies the Itihāsas and Purāṇas, should be alone regarded as well versed in the Védas (Védapārāga). (44—45)

Members of no other castes live such a glorious life as the Bráhmaṇas do. Who is that, who having trodden such a glorious path, will relinquish it? (46)

Bráhmaṇas constitute the divinity of the gods. They are the stuff which the energy of Brahma is made of, and form the apparent cause of the creation and continuity of the worlds. (47)

In the field-like mouth of a Bráhmaṇa, which is free from all gravels and thorns (of falsehood and harsh words) should be sown the seeds of sacrificial Mantras. The cultivator who does this (gets all religious rites and sacrifices performed by Bráhmaṇas) witnesses the fruition of all his desires. (48)

In good fields the seeds must be sown; in good recipients the gifts should be stored. Whatever is cast in a good field or recipient can not suffer any deterioration. (49)

The cereals (foodgrains in one's store) begin to dance with pleasure on the arrival of a modest and erudite Brāhmaṇa at one's house, saying, "we shall come by a better fate." (50)

Grains of rice given to an unholy Brāhmaṇa, who has broken his vows and neglected the study of the Vedas, begin to cry in dismay, saying, "what evils have we committed to be punished with such a degradation. (51)

A Brāhmaṇa well versed in the Vēdas should be repeatedly repasted even after satiety, whereas an illiterate one, fasting even for six consecutive nights, should not be helped with food. (52)

Holy things, whose likes are in the stomach of a Brāhmaṇa, should be alone given to him. Who are the more worthy recipients of gifts than the Brāhmaṇas in whose body the gods partake of their Havyas (libations of clarified butter proffered to the gods) and the Pitris, their Kavyas (oblations.)? Beings are not their bodies, and hence organisms cannot be revered as holy. (53—54)

The article of gift eaten or taken by a dutiful, pure-hearted, (Drāhmaṇa) reader of the Vēdas, bears immortal merit, which does not suffer any diminution through one's successive rebirths. (55)

Several scholars desire for gifts of horses and elephants, others discard them, saying, "to whom does this wealth belong, and who is the real master of grains or riches. (56)

The seeds (of knowledge), previously sown in the fields of Brāhmaṇas duly ploughed with the plough of the Vēdas, have sprouted as the only true corn in life. (57)

Of a hundred, one is born a hero; of a thousand, a wise man; and of a hundred thousand, an orator. I doubt whether a man of true charities will ever take his birth or not. (58)

A conquest does not make a hero, nor studies a wise man. Eloquence does not make an orator, nor gifts a charitable man. (59)

He, who has conquered his senses, is the real hero. He, who practises virtues, is really wise. A speaker is he, who discusses pleasant and beneficial topics, and he, who gives with reverence, is the maker of true gifts. (60)

One by making gifts of varied values to Brāhmaṇas all seated in the same row, either out of affection, fright or greed, commits the sin of Brāhmanicide. It is so related in the Vedas, and the Rishis sing of it as such. (61)

Gifts made unto an illeterate (Brahmana), like seeds sown in a sandy soil, or clarified butter kept in a pot of ashes, or libations poured over burnt out cinders, prove abortive (fail to bear any merit). (62)

In what kind of womb will the twice-born one (Brāhmaṇa), who lives on boiled rice of those, who are unclean with the uncleanness due to any death or birth in their families, or partakes of that prepared by a S'udra, take his birth (in his next incarnation)? Verily I can not say that. (63)

He, who dies with a Sudra's boiled rice in his stomach, is sure to be reborn as a hog, and all his progeny will belong to the same genus, after death. (64)

He will be born as a vulture in his twelve successive rebirths; as a hog, in seven; and as a dog, in seven. This is what Manu has opined on the subject. (65)

He, who dies with the boiled rice of a Brāhmaṇa in his stomach, acquires nectar, after death. Dying with that of a Kshatriya in his stomach, he is punished with indigence in his next birth ; with that of a Vaishya in his stomach, he is consigned to the vile necessity of eating a Sudra's boiled rice again ; and with that of a S'udra boiled rice in his stomach, he is consigned to the torments of hell, in his next life. (66)

The Bráhmaṇa, who partakes of a S'udra's boiled rice continuously for a month, becomes degraded to the status of S'udra, in this life, and will be born as a dog in the next. (67)

The gods and the Pitris desert the Bráhmaṇa, who takes a S'udra wife, or partakes of boiled rice cooked by her, and he is consigned to the pangs of Raurava hell, after death. (68)

The Bráhmaṇa, who cooks his food in vessels defiled by the touch of men of vile castes, or do those acts which are calculated to degrade a twice born one in his social status, or promiscuously go unto women of forbidden castes, is sure to be consigned to hell, after death. (69)

Cooking of boiled rice for the gratification of one's own hunger without dedicating it to the use of Bráhmaṇas, Atithis, and the god presiding over a row of Bráhmaṇa at a dinner, constant vilification of Bráhmaṇas, and selling the Vedas for money (mercenary teaching of the Vedas) are the five acts which rank equally with an act of Brahmanicide in respect of sin. (70)

Every day, this S'astra, framed by Vyāsa, should be carefully studied, and those, who follow the regulations herein-laid down, suffer no fall in life. (71)

PARA'S'ARA SAMHITA'.

CHAPTER I

ONCE] on a time, certain Rishis addressed the holy Vyāsa, blissfully seated with his mind concentrated (on Self) in the forest of Devadaru on the summit of the Himālaya, (as follows :—) (1)

Relate to us, O thou, the son of Satyavati, the rules of good conduct, cleanness, and religious rites, which may be beneficially followed and observed by men in this age of Kali. (2)

Having heard this, he of mighty prowess, effulgent as the sun or a blazing fire, and well-versed in the S'rutis and Smritis, replied as follows :—(3)

I am not an omniscient being, O Rishis ! How then can I relate to you the rules of religious rites etc., (as interrogated) ? My father should be consulted for these informations. (4)

After that, the Rishis bent on learning the principles of virtue went to the hermitage at Vadarikā with the holy Vyāsa at their head. (5)

Trees of wonderful fruit and foliage enhanced the beauty of that holy forest, where fountains and rivulets of crystal flow ran babbling into sacred pools. (6)

Herds of deer were found to roam about (in that forest), and birds of beautiful plumage were heard to join their melodious notes in a chorus of harmony. Temples of gods also were there, and the whole sylvan area was kept festive with the songs and dances of Siadhas, Ākshas and Gandharvas. (7)

In that forest, blissfully seated in the assembly of Rishis, and surrounded by the foremost of the holy sages (Munis), the high-souled Parás'ara, the son of S'ak-tri, was interviewed by the holy Vyása. (8)

He, at the head of his companions Rishis, circumbulated the person of his venerable progenitor (Parás'ara), and propitiated him with an applausive harangue. (9)

The great sage Parás'ara asked the holy Vyása and the congregated Rishis about their health, and welcomed them to his hermitage. (10)

The holy Vyása reported their well being on behalf of the Rishis, and addressed him as follows :—(11)

O thou father, who art ever fond of the devoted, dost thou be pleased to discourse on rules of religious rites, and virtue, if thou dost appreciate my devotion to thee, or if thou bearest any affection to me. (12)

I have heard the codes respectively framed by Manu, Vasishthā, Kas'yapa, Garga, Gautama, Us'anas, Atri, Vishnu, Samvarta, Daksha, Angiras, S'átátapa, Hárita, Yájnavalkya, Kátyáyana, Prachetá, Apastamva, S'ankha and Likhitá. (13—15)

Through your grace I have heard these Dharma S'stras narrated to me, and I have committed them to my memory as well. But all these codes had been meant to be effective (to be in force) during the cycles of Satya, Treta and Dvápára in this Manvantara.* (16)

All religious rules framed in the Satya-Yuga have been extinguished in this Kali-yuga. Hence discourse

* Manvantara lit—an age or period of time presided over by a Manu. Manvantara, according to Manu, I. 79, embraces three hundred and twenty thousand human years, or one-fourteenth day of Brahma, his whole day consisting of such fourteen Manvantaras. We are living in the seventh Manvantara.—Tr.

to me on the rules of duties to be followed by the four-fold social order in the present age, as well as on acts of virtue in general. (17)

After Vyása had finished his questioning, Parás'ara, the foremost of the Rishis, began to thus discourse on the principles of virtue, both in the concrete and abstract. (18)

Hearest, thou, my son Vyása, and hear, O you Rishis, that at the end of each Kalpa, and at the beginning of each new creation of the universe, Brahmá, Vishnu, Mahes'vara, S'rutis, S'mitris and rules of good conduct (ethics) should be ascertained for the each of the successive ages thenceforth commencing. (19)

Author there exists not of the Védas, the universal grand father (Brahmá) but recollects the texts of the Védas at the end of each universal dissolution, and is recognised as such in the next Yuga. Similarly, Manus but respectively recollect the rules of duty and good conduct etc., at the beginning of each Manvantara. (20)

Different are the rules of piety, etc., in the successive ages of Satya, Trétá, Dvāpara and Kali, according to the exigencies of each age. (21)

Practice of penitential austerities was the virtue in the Satya yuga; knowledge (of self), in the Trétá; celebration of religious sacrifices, in the Dvāpara; and practice of charity, in the Kali yuga. (22)

The Code of Manu was the authorized Code in the Satya; the Code of Gautama, in the Trétá; the Codes of S'ankha and Likhita, in the Dvāpara; and the Code of Parás'ara, in the Kali yuga. (23)

In the Satya yuga one should abandon the country in order to avoid the company of a sinner; in the Trétá

the village he lives in ; in the Dvāpara the family he belongs to, and the sinner himself in the Kali yuga (24)

Sinful is the conversation with a sinner in the Satya Yuga, his very sight in the Trétā, and eating his boiled rice in the Dvāpara. In the Kali Yuga, it is his act alone that degrades a man. (25)

A curse takes effect on the day it is given in the Satya ; within ten days in the Trétā ; in the course of a month in the Dvāpara ; and within a year, in the Kali Yuga. (26)

In the Satya, the makers of gifts seek out their recipients. In the Trétā the givers invite the receivers of gifts at their houses, and send them away with the presents. In the Dvāpara gifts are made to those, who ask for them ; and in the Kali Yuga they are given in lieu of services. (27)

The gift, which is made to a person by going over to his house, is the best ; that, which is made by calling its receiver at one's (giver's) house, is the second ; and that, which is given for asking is the worst form of gifts. A gift made in lieu of any service is no gift at all, and fails to bear any merit. (28)

The vital energy lies inherent in the bones in the Satya Yuga, ; in the flesh, in the Trétā ; in blood, in the Dvāpara, and in the food (of a person), in the Kali Yuga. (29)

Piety is conquered by impiety ; truth, by falsehood ; kings, by their servants ; and men, by women, in the Kali Yuga. (30)

Agnihotra sacrifices cease to exist, the worship of ancestors and preceptors is extinguished, and mothers usually give births to female child in the Kali Yuga. (31)

The ethical rules, which obtain in the different Yugas, and the Brāhmaṇas, who are respectively born therein, should not be unfavourably criticised in as much as in them (the spirit of) a Yuga is incarnated. (32)

The law givers (Munis) have made a gradation in the practice of expiatory penances according to the capacity of the penitent in each Yuga, but those laid down by the holy Parāś'ara should be observed in the Kali Yuga. (33)

O you foremost of the Munis, this day I shall narrate to you, from memory, the religious duties as well as the rules of conduct to be performed and observed by the members of the four social orders in the Kali Yuga. (34)

Holy, blessed, and sin-absolving are the injunctions of Parāś'ara, which have been promulgated for the welfare of the Brāhmaṇas and the establishment of piety. (35)

Good conduct is the true defender of virtue among all castes of men. Without it a man needs must be hostilely disposed towards virtue. (36)

A Brāhmaṇa, who daily performs the six religious duties (Shat Karma,* and eats the residue of his Homa-oblations after having gratified the gods and the Atithis, never suffers any bad luck in life. (37)

Performance of Sandhyā, ablution, Japa, and Homa, study of the Vedas, divine worship, performance of the

* Study, teaching, celebration of, and officiating as priests at, religious sacrifices, and giving and taking of gifts are the six religious duties enjoined on a Brahman in the Satya Yuga.

अध्यापनमध्ययनं यजनं याजनं तथा ।

दानं प्रतिग्रहश्चैव षट्कर्मण्यथ जन्मनः ॥

Vais'vadeva sacrifice, and the act of gratifying the Atithis (chance-comers at one's house) are the six daily religious duties enjoined on a Brāhmaṇa. (38)

Any person, happening to call at one's house during the performance of the Vais'vadeva Homa, should be regarded as an Atithi, whether he be an erudite, ignorant, pleasant, or undesirable guest; inasmuch as an Atithi leads his host to heaven. (39)

A man hungry and fatigued with the troubles of a long pedestrian journey and happening to arrive at one's house during the performance of the Vais'vadeva Homa, should be regarded as the only true Atithi; whereas he, that comes before that time, is not an Atithi at all. (40)

An Atithi should not be questioned about his vow, conduct and Gotra. Without any inquisitiveness at all, a house-holder should serve an Atithi with his hospitality, since the person of an Atithi is a veritable pantheon. (41)

A Brāhmaṇa residing in one's own village, or a relation happening to come on business and calling at one's house, should not be considered an Atithi. He, who is a chance-comer, is only fit to be called an Atithi. (42)

An Atithi, who has not accepted any previous hospitality, that day, a Brāhmaṇa observing a vow, as well as the one who studies the Vedas, every day, (happening to call at one's house) are called Apurva Atithis. (43)

A morsel out of the Vais'vadeva oblation should be given to a mendicant happening to call at one's house during the performance of the Vais'vadeva Homa. (44)

Yatis and Brahmachāris are entitled to receive morsels of boiled rice as alms. He, who eats his meal without having given boiled rice to a member of any of these two orders of ascetics, should practice a Chāndrāyana Vrata. (45)

Water should be first given in the hands of a Yati, then the alms, and after that, water again. Alms thus given soars high as the mount Meru, and the water becomes boundless as the ocean. (46)

A mendicant can remedy the defective performance of a Vais'vadeva Homa, but any wrong done to a mendicant cannot be expiated by the performance of a Vais'vadeva. (47)

The twice-born ones, who eat their (mid-day) meals without having performed the Vais'vadevas, are consigned to the torments of hell. All their acts are fruitless. (48)

Rākshasas eat that which is eaten by a man with a turban on his head, or by him who eats with his face turned towards the south, or with his left hand placed on his left leg. (49)

By given a prepared betel leaf to a Brahmachārin, gold to a Yati, and pardon to a thief, one is punished with hell in the next world. (50)

An Atithi, no matter whether he is a sinner, Chandāla, or a patricide, happening to arrive at one's house during the performance of a Vais'vadeva Homa, should be duly honoured as the leader of his host to heaven. (51)

For a thousand years, the departed manes of him, from whose house an Atithi returns in despair, renounce eating and drinking. (52)

The Brāhmaṇa, who sits down to dinner without serving meal to an Atithi, well versed in the Vedas, eats but sin. (53)

The mouth of a Brāhmaṇa may be likened unto a field which is thornless and not swampy. He, who casts seeds in such a soil, is the only true cultivator. (54)

In good fields the seeds should be sown, unto worthy recipients* (Supātré) the gifts should be offered. Whatever is cast in a good soil or in a good recipient suffers no deterioration. (55)

A king should punish the inmates of villages wherein reside the Brāhmanas, who have neglected the study of the Vēdas, and live by begging; since it is they who harbour such thieves (in the guise of Brāhmaṇas). (56)

Kshatriyas should protect their subject people, conquer the armed forces of their adversaries with mighty prowess, and rule the country according to the rules of virtue. (57)

Victory or Prosperity, even if firmly established, can never remain a hereditary possession. Win victory with the sword; the enjoyment of earth's (soverignty) is but the proud privilege of the valarous. (58)

As a flower-man strings a garland of flowers by culling one from each flower-plant in the garden, so a king shall raise his revenue by imposing a light tax on his individual subjects without inflicting hardship on any. He will not be like a charcoal-man, who fells down all the trees in a garden and reduces them to cinders. (59)

* Several editions read Sufutra, meaning a good sor.—Tr.

Dealing in gems and metals, raising cattle, merchandise, and cultivation are all that is included within the profession of a Vaishya. (60)

Services to Bráhmaṇas are the highest virtues in S'udras, any other virtues practised by them are fruitless. (61)

A S'udra commits no sin by selling salt, honey, oil, milk, curd, whey, clarified butter, and milk. (62)

A S'udra should not eat any prohibited article, nor go onto an interdicted woman, otherwise he would be punished in hell. (63)

Drinking the milk of a Kapilá cow, knowing a Bráhmaṇa woman, and reciting the Vedas are the acts, by doing which a S'udra is punished with hell. (64)

CHAPTER II.

NOW I shall discourse on the religious duties respectively obligatory on the members of the four castes in the age of Kali, describing in detail the duties of a householder, as well, as enjoined by the holy Parás'ara. (1)

The Bráhmaṇa, who daily performs the six religious rites known as Shat Karma, should take to agriculture as a means of livelihood. (2)

It is quite virtuous to yoke eight bullocks to a plough. Yoking four bullocks to a plough is neither virtuous nor sinful. It is only the cruel that cause a plough to be drawn by four bullocks. Those, who yoke a pair of bulls to a plough, should be branded as killers of bullocks. (3)

A hungry, thirsty, or fatigued bullock should not be yoked to a plough; and a Bráhmaṇa should not cause maimed, diseased, or castrated bull to carry his load. (4)

A healthy, strong-limbed, vigorous bull, other than a castrated one, should be yoked or harnessed till mid-day, and not beyond that time, after which, his twice-born master should take his bath. (5)

After that, a twice-born one should attend to his daily rites of Ṭapa, Homa, and divine worship; study the Vēdas; and feed one, two, three, or four Snātaka Brāhmaṇas. (6)

In the field which he himself has ploughed, and with money earned by his own labours, a twice-born one should celebrate the five daily religious sacrifices known as the Pancha Yajna, and cause himself to be initiated for the celebration of a Kratu sacrifice. (7)

The sale of oil or of any sweet vegetable juice by a Brāhmaṇa is prohibited by Law; but he is competent to sell paddy or any kindred cereal, as well as hays, wood, faggots, etc., (8)

A ploughman, by ploughing the earth with an iron-topped plough-share, commits the same sin in a day as a fisherman does, in the course of a year, by killing fish. (9)

A Pāsaka (one who catches animals by casting a noose), a fisher-man, a hunter, a bird-catcher, a miser, and a ploughman commit the same, and the same amount of, sin. (10)

A mortar (Udakhal), a grinding stone, an oven, a water-pot, and a broomstick are the five constant pieces of furniture (Suna) in a household by which life is destroyed. (11)

By celebrating a religious sacrifice, a cultivator is absolved of all sins which he may have committed by filling the ground, by felling the trees, or by killing animals and insects. (12)

He, who even being a master of (lit :—sitting beside) stacks of grains, does not give any to the Brāhmaṇas, should be branded as a Brāhmaṇa-killer. (13)

By giving a sixth part of his crop to his king, a twenty-oneth part to the Brāhmaṇas, and a thirtieth part to the gods, a cultivator (lit : ploughman) is exonerated from all sins. (14)

Even an agriculturist Kshatriya should propitiate the gods and Brāhmaṇas with the produce of his fields. A Vais'ya, or S'udra should always live by trade, agriculture, or handi-craft. (15)

By not in any way serving the Brāhmaṇas, and by doing heinous acts, a S'udra becomes short-lived, and goes to hell, after death. These duties are imperatively obligatory on the men of four castes. (16)

CHAPTER III.

NOW I shall discourse on the period of one's uncleanness due to the birth or death (of any member of one's family). (1)

The period of uncleanness due to a birth or death in his family in respect of a Brāhmaṇa is three days. It is twelve days in the case of a Kshatriya, fifteen days in the case of a Vais'ya, and thirty days in the case of a S'udra, as laid down by the holy Parás'ara. (2)

The person of a Brāhmaṇa becomes clean through divine worship, and his body may be touched during the term of uncleanness due to a birth in his family. (3)

The period of uncleanness due to a birth in his family is ten days in the case of a Brāhmaṇa, twelve days in the case of a Kṣatriya, fifteen days in the case of a Vais'ya, and thirty days in the case of a S'udra. (4)

Brāhmaṇas, who are the readers of the Védas and custodians of the sacred fire, become clean after a single day (under the circumstance); they, who are only the readers of the Védas, remain unclean for three days only; while those, who do not belong to any of the two preceding classes, remain unclean for ten days. (5)

The period of birth-uncleanness in respect of a Brāhmaṇa, who is devoid of all the religious rites peculiar to his caste and does not attend to his Sandhyā worship, every day, and who is only a Brāhmaṇa by name, lasts for ten successive days. (6)

The period of birth or death-uncleanness in respect of agnates living in separate houses and with their separate wives should be regarded as lasting for ten days. (7)

Under both these conditions, the boiled rice of the family should not be eaten; and the four acts of gift-making, gift-taking, performing the Homas, and studying the Védas should be in abeyance during the period. (8)

The period of birth-uncleanness should be counted in its entirety in respect of one's agnates up to the fourth degree both in the ascending and descending line. The bond of kinship is severed at the fifth degree of consanguinity. (9)

Agnates to the fourth remove should observe uncleanness for ten days, those removed to the fifth degree should be unclean for six nights; those removed to the sixth degree would remain unclean for four days; and those to the seventh remove would so remain for three days under the circumstance. (10)

Agnates removed to the fifth degree of consanguinity can not partake of the dinner given on the occasion of one's S'rāddha ceremony, while those removed to the sixth degree or more can safely join such a feast. (11)

The period of uncleanness in respect of a death by a fall from an elevated place, or by fire, or of one happening in a distant country, as well as in connection with the death of a new-born infant or a Sannyāsin, is only one day. (12)

One, hearing the death (of one's agnate) after ten days from the date of his demise, should be regarded as unclean for the next three days (from the date of such hearing), while having heard such news after a year from the day of his death, one would be clean, that day, by bathing with all his clothes on. (13)

On hearing the death of a Sagotrā, dead in a distant country, one would be unclean for a single day. (14)

The period of uncleanness in respect of a dead child of three fortnights of age is three nights only, while that in respect of the one dead before completing the sixth month of his existence is a day and night. The period of uncleanness in respect of the death of a child, aged from seven months to one year, is one day only. (15)

The corpses of infants, dead before cutting teeth, or dead immediately after parturition, should not be cremated. No libations of water should be given unto the spirits of such infants, nor should there be any uncleanness for their death. (16)

The period of uncleanness to be observed by the enciante in respect of an aborted foetus, or miscarried child is for the number of days corresponding to the months of her pregnancy. (17)

Abortion takes place within the fourth month, and miscarriage up to the sixth month, of gestation. A delivery of the child after that time is called parturition, and the period of uncleanness for the same is ten days. (18)

At the close of parturition if the mother is delivered of a living child, its agnates become unclean for ten days. In the case of a still-born child only its mother should be regarded as such. (19)

The period of uncleanness should be counted as running from the day preceding in cases where menstruation, death, or delivery would take place in the night. (20)

The corpse of a child, dead after teething, or after the rite of Chudâkaranam having been done unto him, should be duly consumed in fire, and the period of uncleanness in respect of the death of such a child is three days. (21)

The period of uncleanness in respect of the death of a child, dead before teething, is that day only; that in respect of the one, dead before the rite of Chudâkaranam having been done unto it, is one day and one night; that in respect of one, dead before being invested with the holy thread, is three days, and it is ten days only in respect of those, dead after that age. (22)

The period of uncleanness in respect of the death of a male child, dead in its mother's womb, is ten days, while that in respect of the death of one, dead just after being delivered of its mother's womb, is one day only. (23)

The agnates of the father of a girl, dead before the rites of Annaprās'anam or Chudākaranam having been done unto her, would be unclean only for the day of her death, while they would so remain for three nights if she dies after her marriage. (24)

A householder should not observe any period of uncleanness in respect of the death of a Brahmacārin, in whose house the latter used to perform his Homas in life without in any way being related to him. (25)

A Brāhmaṇa is affected only by the tie of relationship as regards birth or death-uncleanness. Where there is no relationship there is no uncleanness also. (26)

Artisans, mechanics, physicians, slaves, slave girls, barbars, Srotriyas, and kings should observe uncleanness for a single day only. i.e., they would become clean by bathing on the day of the death or birth of any of their agnates. (27)

A Brāhmaṇa, engaged in killing, or making a gift, or out on attending an invitation, should be clean just at the time of gift making, etc. This is what is the dictum of the Rishis. (28)

A Brāhmaṇa householder, who regularly celebrates the religious sacrifices, would be clean by bathing on the day of his son's birth, if he does not come in touch with the lying-in-chamber. The mother would remain unclean for ten days under the circumstance. (29)

A fellow-vowist, a Brāhmaṇa who has duly lighted the sacred fire, or whose body has been consecrated by the recitation of any Vēdic Mantra, a king, and he, whom a king so desires, is not affected or sullied by a birth-uncleanness. (30)

Death-uncleanness of his parents in respect of a deceased son is ten days. A mother remains sullied by birth uncleanness of her child; the father regains his cleanness immediately after bathing, that day. (31)

A Brāhmaṇa house-holder not in any way coming in touch with his wife, after parturition, becomes clean by bathing, while his parturent wife remains unclean for ten days. (31)

Even a Brāhmaṇa, who is well-versed in the Védas with all their six subdivisions, is affected by birth uncleanness on the parturition of his wife, if he happens to come in contact with her. (32)

A Brahmana is defiled only by a unclean contact, there being no other defiliment in respect of a Brahmana. Hence by all means a Brahmana should renounce (defiling) contacts. (33)

Articles of gift projected to be given in connection with a forth-coming marriage or religious ceremony, are not defiled by a birth or death uncleanness occurring in the interim, if actually given away. In short, such gifts are not affected by an inter-current birth or death uncleanness. (34)

A Brahmana remains unclean for ten days only in connection with a birth or death-uncleanness occurring within the term of a pre-existing one. These ten days should be counted from the date of occurrence of the first uncleanness. (35)

The period of uncleanness in respect of the death of one expired for the succour of a Brahmana, or of captured cattle; or killed in a battle, is one day only. (36)

Heroes, dying undaunted amidst the armed forces of their enemies and without uttering any form of supplication, enjoy a perpetual residence in heaven. (37)

By conquest one wins the Goddess Fortune. By falling dead in battle one is locked up in the perpetual embrace of a heavenly nymph. Since transient is this body, why should one dread death or war? (38)

Mendicant Yogins or Parivrajakas, and heroes killed in battles without scars on their backs, are the two kinds of men whose souls, penetrating right through the solar disc, ascend to the higher regions. (39)

He, who well guards and rallies the routed soldiers after a defeat in battle, acquires the merit of a horse-sacrifice. (40)

Celestial nymphs sing of his glories and embrace him who bears sword-cuts, arrow-wounds and marks of club-thrashes on his body in battle. (41)

Thousands of beautiful Nāga kanyās (a kind of fairies) and celestial nymphs run eagerly after, and embrace, the spirit of him who is killed in battle, exclaiming "he will be my husband." (42)

In the sacrifice of battle (Samgrāma-Yajna) he, who drinks the hot stream of blood issuing from a wound in his forehead, drinks the juice of the sacred Soma (acid Aescæpis). Peerless is his merit in heaven. (43)

By quitting this life in a war of virtue (Dharma Yuddha)* the spirit of a hero is translated to that heaven which the pious and the erudite ascend by dint of their pieties, knowledge, and religious ceremonies duly celebrated. (44)

* A war declared for purposes which alone can sanctify blood shed and make war a virtue, such as the liberty of one's own father-land, the defence of one's hearth and home. &c. Tr.

At each step towards the cremation ground, the twice-born ones, who carry the dead body of a friendless, indigent Brāhmaṇa for cremation, acquire the merit of celebrating the successive religious sacrifices as described in the Vēdas. (45)

A Brāhmaṇa, who has carried and cremated the dead body of a Brāhmaṇa, who is neither related as an agnate or cognate to him, becomes clean again by practising Prānāyāma. (46)

Under these circumstances, Brāhmaṇas are not disqualified from undertaking any virtuous act of good auspices. The Smṛitis lay down that they become clean again by simply bathing. (47)

Having followed the corpse of a person whether one's agnate or otherwise, (to the cremation ground) one would be clean again by bathing, touching fire, and drinking clarified butter. (48)

By unwillingly following the corpse of a deceased Kshatriya (to the cremation ground), a Brāhmaṇa remains unclean for that day only and becomes clean by taking Panchagavyam. (49)

By following the dead body of a Vais'ya, out of ignorance, to the burning ground, a Brāhmaṇa remains unclean for two days, and becomes clean again thereafter by six times controlling his respiration in the manner of a Prānāyāma. (50)

By unknowingly following the carriers of a S'udra's corpse to the burning ground, a Brāhmaṇa would be unclean for three nights. (51)

After the lapse of the said three days, he should go to the foreshore of a river which runs into a sea, and regain his cleanness by a hundred times practising the Prânâyama, and by drinking clarified butter, as well. (52)

Brâhmaṇas may follow the S'udras returning home after having cremated the corpse of a deceased S'udra, from after the bank of a pond, lake or tank. This is what has been enjoined by the knowers of scriptures. (53)

Hence, the twice born ones should never touch, follow, carry, or cremate the dead body of a deceased S'udra. Even a casual glance at the corpse of a S'udra, at the time of its being carried to the cremation ground, should be expiated by a look at the sun. A Brâhmaṇa should thus regain his cleanness under the circumstance. (54)

CHAPTER IV.

THE fate, which a man or woman comes by after having committed suicide by hanging, either out of inordinate pride, uncurbable love, or excessive fright or anger, will be presently described. (1)

For a period of sixty thousand years, the spirit of a suicide is consigned to the darkness of a hell, which is full of blood and fetid pus. (2)

No period of uncleanness should be observed in respect of such a violent death. The rite of cremation is denied to the corpse of a suicide ; no tears should be shed for, nor any libation of water should be offered unto, the (spirit of) a suicide. (3)

Carriers and cremators of the corpse of a suicide, dead by hanging, as well as the cutters of the noose (round his neck) should regain their personal cleanness

by practising a Tapta Krichchha Vratam. This is what has been enjoined by Prajāpati. (4)

Brāhmanas who touch, carry, or commit to flames the corpse of a suicide dead by hanging, or of one killed by a bull (lit—cow), as well as the cutters of the noose in the first named, and the followers of the corpse, in either case, should recover the natural cleanliness of their persons by each practising a Tapta Krichchha Vratam and by feeding the Brāhmaṇas as well, by way of atonement. (5—6)

Each of them should make the gift of a cow with a bull to a Brāhmaṇa, live on warm water alone for the first three days, on warm milk for the (second) three days, on warm clarified butter for the (third) three days, and on air alone for the (last) three days of the penance, (Tapta Krichchha Vrata). (7)

Having unwillingly eaten or dealt with a degraded person, a Brāhmaṇa would remain equally degraded for a fortnight, month, two months, six months, or a year. (8—9)

A fast of three days should be observed for the first fortnight, a Krichchha Vrata should be performed for the second, a Krichcha Santāpana Vrata should be performed for the third, a Dasharātra Vratn for the fourth; a Parāka Vrata for the fifth a Chāndrāyana for the sixth, two such Chāndrāyana Vratas for the seventh, and a Krichchha Vrata covering a period of six months for the eighth fortnight, of such a defiling contact. The penitent should make as many gifts of gold to the Brāhmaṇas as the number of fortnights he might have lived in the company of a degraded person. (10—12)

The woman, who having bathed at the close of her menstrual uncleanness, does not share the bed of her husband that day (fourth day of the flow), goes to hell after death, and is doomed to suffer the pangs of widowhood in her successive rebirths. (13)

He, who does not visit his wife on the day of her menstrual ablution, becomes certainly guilty of the dreadful sin of fœticide. (14)

He, who forsakes a chaste innocent wife in youth, is sure to take birth as a woman in his seven successive incarnations, suffering the pangs of widowhood in each of them. (15)

She, who lightly treats her husband for his poverty or ignorance, takes birth as a female serpent in her successive rebirths, punished with the privations of a widowed life even in such hateful incarnations. (16)

As the owner of a field, wherein a seed carried by the wind is seen to sprout, becomes the owner of that sproutling also, and not the owner of the seed; so the husband of a woman, in whom another person has cast his seed, becomes the owner of the child born thereof in contradistinction to the owner of the sperm. (17)

Sons begotten by a man on another's wife may be divided into two classes such as Kunda and Golaka. A child begot on another man's wife by a person during the life-time of her husband is called a Kunda, while the one begot on her after her husband's demise is called a Golaka. (18)

Sons are either Aurasa (born of one's own loins). Kshetraja (begot on one's wife by another), Dattaka (filiated with the permission of his parent), or Kitrima (artificial). A son given by his father or mother in filiation is called a Dattaka son. (19)

He who marries before the marriage of his elder brother, the girl thus married, as well as her father who gives her away, the priest who solemnises such a marriage, and the elder brother thus superseded in marriage, all these five persons, go to hell. (20)

An younger brother marrying or performing an Agnihotra sacrifice before the marriage of his elder brother is called a Parivettā, while the elder brother is called a Parivetti. (21)

For the expiation of their respective sins, a Parivettā should practise two Krichchha Vratas, his bride should practise a Krichchhati Krichchha Vratam, while the priest, who solemnises such a marriage, should practise a Chândrāyana Vratam. (22)

A younger brother commits no sin by marrying before the marriage of his elder brother, if the latter happens to be a hunch-back, eunuch, or idiot, or is born deaf or blind. (23)

A younger brother commits no sin by marrying before the marriage of an elder brother, if the latter happens to be a son of his father's elder brother, or a step brother, or a brother begot by his father on another man's wife. (24)

A younger brother may marry with the permission of an unmarried elder brother, if the latter wishes to observe a vow of life-long celibacy. This is the opinion of Shankha. (25)

A (married) woman may take a second husband under any of the five following exigencies, viz., if her first husband long remains unheard of, or dies, or takes to asceticism, or loses his verile power, or becomes a degraded person. (26)

A widow, who betakes to Brahmacharyayam after the demise of her lord, goes to heaven, after death, like Brahmachârins. (27)

A widow, who immolates herself on the same funeral pile with her deceased husband, resides in heaven for ten millions of years, which is the number of hairs on the human body. (28)

As a snake-charmer forcibly draws a snake out of its hole, so does a wife, who follows her lord in death, lifts up his benighted soul from the abyss of hell, and enjoys the felicity of his company in heaven. (29)

CHAPTER V.

A BRAHMANA having been bitten by a dog, jackal, or wolf should bathe and repeat the sacred Gâyatri, the mother of the Vêdas. (1)

A person bitten by a dog would be pure again by bathing in water, in which cow-horns have been dipped, at the estuary of a great river, and by seeing the sea. (2)

A Brâhmaṇa having been bitten by a dog, at the close of his Vedic studies, or at the completion of a vow, should resume his cleanness by bathing in washings of gold and by taking clarified butter as well. (3)

A Brâhmaṇa having been bitten by a dog during the observance of a vow should fast for three nights, and then complete his vow after having taken clarified butter mixed with washings of Kus'a grass. (4)

A Brâhmaṇa, whether a vowist or not, should make obeisance to three Brâhmaṇas after having been bitten by a dog, and would be pure again under their gaze. (5)

A part of the human body smelled, licked, or scratched

by a dog, should be purified by washing it with water and cauterising it with fire. (6)

A Brāhmaṇa woman having been bitten by a dog, wolf, or jackal, would be pure again by looking at the moon and stars. (7).

If the day (of bite) happens to be one in a dark fortnight when the moon is not seen, she should look at that quarter of the heaven where the moon is supposed to be, that day. (8)

A Brāhmaṇa bitten by a dog in a village where no other Brāhmaṇa resides would be pure again by bathing and circumbulating a bull, that day. (9)

The corpse of a Sāgnika Brāhmaṇa, killed by a cow, Chandāla or a king, or who has committed suicide by poison, should be burned in Laukika fire without reciting any Mantram. (10)

The Sapēṇḍa relations of such a Brāhmaṇa, happening to touch, or carry, or cremate his dead body, should practise a Prājāpatyam, and then with the permission of the Brāhmaṇas should wash the particles of his skeleton with milk, and burn them again in his own fire by severally reciting the Mantras. (11—12)

O you foremost of the Rishis, imagine the case in which a Sāgnika (keeper of the sacred fire) Brāhmaṇa is dead in a foreign country, and his own sacred fire stands blazing in his distant home. Now hear me discourse on the Agnihotra rites to be practised in connection with his death, as described in the Vēdas. (13—14)

On a piece of antelope skin should be spread blades of kus'a grass in the form of a man. After that, seven hundred Palūsha leaves should be collected and distributed over the different parts of that image of kus'a in the following order, vis., forty palás'a leaves should be placed on its head, sixty on the region of its throat, a hundred on its arms, ten on its fingers, a hundred on its chest, thirty on its belly, eight on the region of its testes, five on the region of its verile organ, twenty one on its thighs, twenty on its knees and ankles, and fifty on its toes. (15—18)

Then the different articles and implements, which are used in connection with an Agnihotra sacrifice, should be distributed over the different parts of the image, as follows, vis., a fire-churner made of S'ami wood should be placed on the region of its testes; a Jahu (crescent-shaped wooden ladle used for pouring the sacrificial butter into the fire) should be placed in its right hand; and an Upásat, in its left. A mortar should be placed on its one ear, a pestle on its back, a stone slab on its chest, clarified butter with grains of rice and and sesame in its mouth, a Prakshañi (vessel of holy water) on its other ear, an Ajyasthali (vessel of clarified butter) on its eyes, and bits of gold in the cavity of its mouth, nostrils, etc., (19—20)

Then a brother or a fellow vowist of the deceased should cast libation of clarified butter over it by reciting the Mantra "may he attain to the region of the gods, obeisance." (21—22)

All acts should be done in such a case according to the regulations laid down in connection with cremation of dead bodies. (23)

By acting as above directed, the spirit of the deceased goes to the rejoin of Brahma, and the twice-born ones, who join in this crematory rite, become entitled to elevation in the higher spheres. Those.

who do not follow this rule, become short-lived and go to hell, after death. (24—25)

CHAPTER VI.

HENCEFORTH I shall discourse on the Expiation of sin which one incurs by killing beasts and birds, etc. The holy Parás'ara described it of yore, and it has been elaborately dealt with in the institutes of Manu. (1)

Having killed a swan, crane, cock, duck, or a Sharabha, one should regain his cleanness by fasting for a day and night. (2)

Having killed a parrot, pheasant, heron, or pigeon, one should fast during one entire day and take his meal in the night. (3)

Having killed a crow, dove, Bhâsa, Shâri, or a Titteri, one should practise Prâṇāyama, both morning and evening, by standing in water. (4)

Having killed a vulture, falcon, peacock, owl, alligator, or a bird of the Châsa species, one should forego all cooked food during an entire day, and fast during the following night. (5)

Having killed a sparrow, cuckoo, Khanja, Lavaka or a Raktapád, one should fast during an entire day and take his food in the night. (6)

By worshipping S'iva one is exonerated from the sin of killing a bird of the Kárandava, Chakora, Pingala, Kurar, or Bharadvāja species. (7)

Expiation for the sin of killing a pigeon, Bherunda, Sheyeva, Bhasa, or a Kapinjala, or of a bird of any other species, is a fast for an entire day and night. (8)

Having killed a cat, mongoose, snake, Boa, or a Dundubha (a species of non-venomous snake), one should feed Bráhmaṇas with Krishara by way of expiation, and make gift of an iron-stick to each of them in the shape of a Dakṣhinā (honorarium). (9)

Having killed a porcupine, hare, tortoise, fish, or a Godhā (a species of lizard) one should live on bringels alone for a day, whereby he would be pure again. (10)

Having killed a wolf, jackal, bear, or a hyena, one should observe a fast for three days, and make the gift of a Prastha measure of sesame to a Bráhmaṇa. (11)

Having killed an elephant, Gavaya (a species of ox), horse, buffalo, or a camel, one should fast for seven days, and propitiate the Bráhmaṇas as well as for expiation. (12)

The sin of unintentionally killing a stag, Ruru (a species of deer), or a boar, is extinguished by one's living, for an entire day night, on grains that have not been raised in a ploughed field. (13)

Similarly, having killed any other quadruped of the forest, one should fast for a whole day and night, and recite the Mantra sacred to the Fire-god for the expiation of one's sin. (14)

Having killed an artisan, S'udra, or a woman, one should practise two Prájāpatya penances, and make gift of eleven oxen to Bráhmaṇas for expiation. (15)

Having killed an innocent Vaishya or Kshatriya, one should practise two Atikrichchha penances, and make gifts of twenty-one kine to Bráhmaṇas. (16)

Having killed a Bráhmaṇa, who is devoid of all rites peculiar to his order, or a Vai'sya, or S'udra who is true to the performance of religious duties, one should practise a Chāndráyana penance and make gifts of thirty kine to the Bráhmaṇas. (17)

The expiation for a Kshatriya, Vais'ya, or S'udra, who has killed a Chandāla or a member of any of the vile castes, should be regarded as the practice of an Ardha-Kṛichchha penance. (18)

A Bráhmaṇa, who has killed a thief, S'vapak, or a Chandāla, shall be absolved of his sin by fasting and practising Prāṇāyāma for an entire day and night. (19)

A Bráhmaṇa having conversed with a Chandāla should expiate his sin by first holding a conversation with a Bráhmaṇa and by reciting the Gāyatri thereafter. (20)

A Bráhmaṇa having shared the same bed with a Chandāla should fast for three nights. Having walked the same road with a Chandāla he should regain his purity by reciting the Gāyatri Mantra. (21)

Having seen a Chandāla, a Brahmana should cast look at the sun ; having touched a Chandāla a Bráhmaṇa should bathe with all his wearing apparels on. (22)

Having unwillingly drunk the water of a tank which a Chandāla has caused to be excavated, a Bráhmaṇa should fast for a night and the whole day following. (23)

Having drunk the water of a well which has been defiled by the touch of a Chandālas water pot, a Bráhmaṇa should live on barley and cow's urine for three days, whereby he would regain his personal cleanliness. (24)

The expiation for the sin of unwillingly drinking out of a Chandālas cup is the performance of a Chāndráyana Vratam in respect of a Bráhmaṇa, provided that the water is belched out immediately after taking ; whereas a Kṛichchha Santāpanam Vratam should be practised in its stead, if the water is retained and digested in the stomach. (25—26)

In cases where Brāhmaṇas are enjoined to practise Santāpan penances, Kshatriyas should practise Prājāpatyas ; Vais'yas, half-Prājāpatyas ; and S'udras, quarter Prājāpatyas. (27)

Having unknowingly drunk milk, water, or curdled milk kept in the vessel of a person of vile caste, a member of any of the twiceborn orders should regain his purity by fasting, and practising Brahma-Kurcham, while a S'udra should fast, and make gifts according to his might, under the circumstance. (28—29)

Even once having knowingly partaken of the boiled rice cooked by a Chandāla, a Brāhmaṇa should expiate his sin by living, for ten (consecutive) nights, on a diet consisting of barley grains and cow's urine. (30)

Each day, only a morsel of barley grains soaked in cow's urine should be taken, and the penance should be duly brought to its close on the tenth day. (31)

If a Chandāla conceals himself, or live incognito in the house of a Brāhmaṇa, his brethern Brāhmaṇas should favour him, as follows, in respect of absolving his sin. (32)

Assembled in the holy Synod of Resignation (Upasanyāsa), they should address him as follows :—Rules of ethics heard from the lips of the Rishis, and inculcated in the holy Vedas, succour all beings. We succour thee, O thou knower of virtues, from this crisis of sinful defilement, (33)

For three days, in the company of these Brāhmaṇas, he (delinquent) should take cooked sesame with milk, milk curd, clarified butter, and cow's urine, and bathe twice, each day. (34)

For the (first) three days he should take cooked sesame soaked in cow's urine, with milk; with milk curd for the second three days; and with clarified butter, for the last three days of the penance. (35)

One should not partake of boiled rice, which has been previously partaken of by another, neither that which is worm-eaten, nor that which has been given with a bad will. Not more than three Pala weights of milk and milk-curd and one Pala weight (8 tollas) of clarified butter should be taken at a time. (36)

Articles made of copper or bell metal should be purified with the help of ashes; and clothes, by washing; while the earthen vessels (kept in the room) should be thrown away. (37)

After that, a vessel-containing safflower, treacle, cotton, salt, oil, and clarified butter should be kept at the door of the room, and its roof tree should be set to fire. (38)

Having been thus absolved of his sin, he should sumptuously feed the Brāhmaṇas, and make gifts of thirty kine with a bullock to them. (39)

The ground should be again plastered and purified by performing rites of Homa and Japa upon it. The ground on which a Brāhmaṇa stands can never suffer any defilement or contamination. (40)

In the case where a washer-woman, or a woman of the coblar, hunter, or Pukkas a class resides incognito in the house of a member of any of the four social orders, only half of what has been laid down in the preceding case, with the exception of burning down the room, should be practised by way of purification. (41—42)

One should immediately come out of the room in which a Chandāla has entered, and throw away all the earthen pots kept therein. (43)

Earthen vessels containing oil, clarified butter, etc., should not be discarded (under the circumstance); they should be purified by sprinkling milk-water over them. (44)

What is the rite of purification in respect of a Brāhmaṇa suffering from an ulcer, in the pus and bloody secretions of which worms are found to germinate? (45)

Such a worm-infested Brāhmaṇa should be pure again by taking and bathing in a compound of cow-milk, milk-curd, clarified butter, and cow's urine, for three days. (46)

A Kshatriya, under the circumstance, would be purified by making a gift of five Masha weight of gold, (while) a Vais'ya would be pure again by (fasting for a day) and making the gift of a cow to a Brāhmaṇa. (47)

A S'udra, under the circumstance, need not observe any fast. It is the gift that purifies a S'udra, or he may secure his absolution by taking Panchagavyam and making obeisance to a Brāhmaṇa. (48)

By respectfully laying on his head the benedictory statement of "may all things be faultless" (Achchhidramastu) uttered by a Brāhmaṇa, a S'udra acquires the merit of an Agnishtoma sacrifice. (49)

In disease, danger, pestilence, or famine, or during supernatural visitations, a S'udra should cause a Brāhmaṇa to observe a fast, or to perform a Vrata or sacrifice instead of fasting or doing it himself, (50)

Or Brāhmaṇas may bless them out of their gracious will. The blessing of a Brāhmaṇa ranks equal with the merit of all pieties combined. (51)

Such a favour should be done to the weak, old, and juvenile. Favour shown by a Brāhmaṇa to any other may not bear the desired effect. Hence, he should not show favour to the unworthy. (52)

A Brāhmaṇa doing favour, (in respect of absolution of sin) out of affection, greed, fright, or ignorance, to an unworthy person, takes away the demerit from the latter. (53)

Brāhmaṇas, who advise the performance of an expiatory rite in respect of a person in his death bed ; those who dissuade healthy men from undertaking rites of absolution on the ground of pressure of business, as well as those who themselves undertake such rites on behalf of the healthy, should be regarded as their male-factors. Such Brāhmaṇas go to hell, after death. (54—55)

He, who insults a Brāhmaṇa, is deprived of the privilege of performing any expiatory rite. Fruitless are his fasts and pieties. He can never acquire any merit in the eyes of heaven. (56)

Whatever a Brāhmaṇa enjoins is the law of virtue. He, who disobeys the dictates of a Brāhmaṇa, should be regarded as a Brāhmaṇa-killer. (57)

Truly meritorious are the fasts, vows, pilgrimages, penances, penitential rites and ceremonial ablutions made by him, who causes all these acts to be performed by a Brāhmaṇa for him. (58)

Whatever is defective in the practice of one's vows and penances, or in one's celebration of a religious sacrifice, is remedied, if one gets a Brāhmaṇa to practice or celebrate them on his behalf. (59)

Brāhmaṇas are the locomotive sanctuaries, solitary, and givers of all boons. Verily the sins of the polluted are washed away by the waters of Brāhmaṇic words. (60)

The word of a Bráhmaṇa is the word of a God. A Bráhmaṇa is a moving pantheon, his words can never be falsified. (61)

Boiled rice containing any insect or fly should be first washed with water, and one should touch it with ashes before partaking thereof. (62)

A Bráhmaṇa, who catches hold of his leg instead of touching the plate with his hand, during a meal, is supposed to eat the residue of another man's meal. (63)

One should neither eat with one's shoes on, nor while sitting on a bed-stead. Looked at by a dog or a Chendála, during his meal, a man should rise from his meal at once. (64)

Now I shall describe to you which kind of boiled rice is pure and which kind of boiled rice is forbidden to be taken, as related by the holy Parás'ara of yore. (65)

How can boiled rice to the measure of a Droṇa or an A'dhaka, eaten by a crow or a dog, be purified? You shall ask that of the Bráhmaṇas. (66)

Then the Bráhmaṇas, conversant with the Védas and Vedāṅgas, the protectors of virtue, shall say that, "boiled rice to the measure of a Droṇa, eaten or licked by a crow or dog, should not be abandoned." (67)

Thirty-two Prasthas make one Droṇa, and two Prasthas make one A'dhaka. Scholars, well-versed in the S'ruti and Smritis, call boiled rice to the measure of a Droṇa as Droṇānnam, and that to the measure of an A'dhaka as A'dhakānnam. (68)

A little of that portion of Droṇānnam or A'dhakānnam, which is eaten by a crow or dog, or smelled by a cow or ass, should be thrown away by a Bráhmaṇa, the rest being considered as pure and fit for use. (69)

The unaffected residue of such Dronânnam etc., after having scraped off the part (eaten or touched by a crow or dog as above described), should be sprinkled over with washings of gold, and again warmed on fire. (70)

(Such) boiled rice, sprinkled over with the washings of gold, heated on fire, and purified by the Vedic chants of Brâhmanas, becomes, that moment, pure and fit for use. (71)

CHAPTER VII.

HENCEFORTH I shall deal with the process of purifying vessels and utensils in general as described by the holy Parâs'ara. Wooden vessels are purified by scraping off their surface. (1)

Sacrificial vessels are purified by simply rubbing them with the palm of one's hand, during the celebration of a sacrifice, (while) Grahas (ladles) and Chamas (cans for drinking Soma juice) are purified by washing. (2)

At the time of cooking the sacrificial porridge (Charu) ladles and cans (Sruk and Sruva) are purified by washing them with warm water. Vessels made of bell metal should be cleansed with ashes, while those of copper should be cleansed by rubbing them with any acid substance. (3)

A woman, who has not known a man, is purified by her menstrual flow, and the flood tide of a river cleanses the (inundated) land in the absence of any impurity (adhesive to the soul.) (4)

A hundred pitchers of water should be lifted out of a pond, tank or well, in any way defiled, and its purity shuld be effected by pouring Panchagavyam into it (5)

A girl of eight years of age is called Gauri; at the ninth year of age she is called Rohini. A girl of ten is denominated Kanyā, and thenceforward she is called Rajasvalā. (6)

The departed manes of him, who does not give away his daughter in marriage after she has completed her twelfth year, drink her menstrual fluid, each month. (7)

The father, mother, and elder brother, all these three (relations), of a girl, who menstruates before her marriage, go to hell by seeing her thus in her periods. (8)

A Brāhmaṇa, marrying such a girl through temptations of flesh, should be looked down upon as the husband of a S'udra wife (Vrishalipati). He should neither be spoken to, nor allowed to sit at the same row with other Brāhmaṇas at a dinner. (9)

A Brāhmaṇa, visiting a S'udra woman even for a single night, should live by begging for three years from the date, in order to be absolved of the sin thereby committed. (10)

Now I shall describe the process by which a Brāhmaṇa, accidentally touching a Chaṇḍāla, or a parturent woman, or a degraded person after sun-set, should recover his personal cleanness. (11)

He should either look at fire, gold, or the luner path in heaven, and having followed a train of Brāhmaṇas should take an ablution in the river. (12)

Two Brāhmaṇa women touching each other during their menses should fast for three nights, whereby they would be clean again. (13)

A Brâhmaṇa woman in her menses, touching a Kshatriya woman similarly circumstanced as herself, should practise the penitential rite of Ardha kṛichchham, while a Kshatriya woman should practise a Pâda kṛichchha Vratam for purification. (14)

A Brâhmaṇa woman in her menses, touching a Vaishya woman in her flow, should practise the penitential rite of Pâdonukrichchham, while the latter should practice a Pâda krichchham by way of absolution. (15)

A Brâhmaṇa woman in her periods, touching a S'udra woman in her flow, should practice a Krichchha Vratam, while the latter should regain her cleanness by making gifts. (16)

A woman regains her personal cleanness on the fourth day of her flow after bathing; but she is not privileged to undertake any rite, whether Daiva (pertaining to the gods) or Pitra (in honour of one's departed manes), till the complete cessation of the discharge for the month. (17)

A woman suffering from any kind of uterine hæmorrhage is not affected by the discharge as regards her personal cleanness, inasmuch as the flow in her case is a disease and not the outcome of a normal (physiological) function. (18)

A woman becomes as abject as a Chandâli (woman of the most degraded caste) on the first, a Brahmaghâtini (murderess of a Brâhmaṇa) on the second, and a Rajaki (laundress) on the third day of, her menstrual flow. She regains her cleanness on the fourth day. (19)

A clean woman should successively bathe ten times, and touch, after each bath, the person of her, who, though being in her menses, is incapacitated, through illness, from bathing, on the fourth day of her flow. (20)

A Brāhmaṇa, any wise touching the person of a S'udra who has washed his mouth after eating, should take a bath for purification, while having touched one with unwashed mouth after eating, he should practise a Prājāpatyam. (21)

A Brāhmaṇa, who touches a dog, or a S'udra before washing his mouth, after eating, should fast for a day, and take the compound known as Panchagavyam in order to recover his cleanness. (22)

A vessel of bell metal, not defiled by the touch of wine, should be purified by rubbing it with ashes, while in a case of such defilement it should be purified by heating it in fire. (23)

Vessels of bell metal, smelled by kine, or defiled by the touch of dogs, crows, etc., or out of which S'udras have taken their food, should be purified by rubbing them with ten kinds of ashes. (24)

A vessel of bellmetal, in which washings of one's feet, or garglings of one's mouth have been cast, should be kept buried underneath the ground for six months, after which they should be unearthed (and considered fit for use.) (25)

Iron-pots are purified by simply removing them from one place to another, those of lead are purified by exposing them to fire, while those made of bones, teeth, horns, silver, gold, jems or stone are purified by washing them with water. Vessels made of stone should be likewise purified by washing them with water. (26—27)

Earthen vessels are purified by heating them in fire, while paddy should be purified by attrition. (28)

Large measures of paddy, or large numbers of clothes, anywise defiled, are purified, by sprinkling them over with water, their purification consists in simple washing, when their measure or number is small. (29)

Fabrics made of bamboo skin, wool, jute, cotton or silk are purified by simply dipping them in water. (30)

Bedsteads, woolen pillows, as well as yellow or red fabrics should be purified by exposing them to the sun. (31)

Pitcher-seats made of rush or grass (Munjas), broomsticks, winnows, strops or whetting stones, and ropes for binding wood, grass, etc., should be purified by washing them with water. (32)

Cats, flies, worms insects, vermin, and frogs touch things both pure and impure ; hence nothing is defiled by their contact. It is the dictum of Manu. (33)

A stream of water, which comes flowing over the ground or mixes with another (flow of) water, if previously used by another, should not be considered defiled as an used remainder. Similarly, oils, previously used by others, should not be considered as defiled. This is the dictum of Manu. (34)

Betels, sugarcane, oil-seeds, oil, *Madhuparkas unguents, and Soma juice, if previously used or partaken of by another, do not suffer any defilement thereby. This is the dictum of Manu. (35)

Mires of road, water, boats, hays, and burned bricks are purified by exposing them to the sun and air. (36)

* A compound of honey, milkcurd, clarified butter, and sugar offered to honourable guests, or gods, on ceremonial occasions. Tr.

Dusts blown about by the wind, as well as broad streams of water, suffer no defilement ; women, infants, and old men are always pure. (37)

One should touch one's right ear after having sneezed, coughed, spitted, or bitten any part of one's body, as well as after having told a lie, or talked with a degraded person. (38)

The fire-god, the Védas, the sun, and the moon, reside in the right ear of a Brâhmaṇa. (39)

The holy pools and streams such as the Prabhâsa, the Ganges, etc., always reside in the right ear of a Brâhmaṇa. This is the dictum of Manu. (40)

During the prevalance of a famine, in disease, or in a foreign country, or on the outbreak of a civic disturbance in one's father land, one's primary thought should be the protection of one's body. Piety should be a secondary consideration under the aforesaid circumstances. (41)

By any measure, whether mild or violent, one should try to recoup one's bodily health when diseased, and practise pieties when physically capable. (42)

One need not think of laws of decorum or cleanness when in distress. First get rid of the trouble and then practise virtues. (43)

CHAPTER VIII.

WHAT would be the expiation for the death of a cow, dead with halter round her neck, or while bound to a stake, her owner having had no desire to keep her so bound at the time? How should the owner of such a cow atone for his sin, though unintentionally committed. (1)

He should report his sin to Bráhmaṇas, well-versed in the Védas, Vedāṅgas and religious scriptures, who are firmly devoted to their proper duties in life. (2)

Now I shall describe the procedure to be adapted (by owner of the dead cow) in presenting himself before the synod of the holy, since it is the synod that will advise him as regards the nature of the expiatory rite to be gone through in his case. (3)

Having once ascertained the unmistakeable proofs of his sin, he (owner) should not eat anything before presenting himself before the synod. Eating, under the circumstance, tends to doubly enhance the sin, even in a place where such an assembly does not exist. (4)

Even in the case where the proofs of sin are of a dubious character, eating is prohibited until a definite decision is arrived at as regards its commission or non-commission. There should be no concealment of a sin after it is committed, as hiding tends to lessen its veniality. (5)

Whether light or atrocious, the full extent of the guilt (lit: sin) should be confessed and reported to the synod of the virtuous, for like intelligent and skillful physicians in a disease, it is they only who can absolve him of the sin. (6—7)

Having thus atoned for his sin, a truthful, straight-natured, remorseful penitent can get rid of his sin. (8)

A Kshatriya or a Vais'ya penitent, under the circumstance, should bathe with all his clothes on, and silently approach the holy assembly in his wet and dribbling garments. (9)

Then having entered the assembly, he should make obeisance to the (congregated) Bráhmaṇas by falling flat upon the ground on his face, and report nothing verily to that body. (10)

Brāhmaṇas, who are ignorant of the Vēdas, and Gāyatri and Sandhyā, and those who do not cast any oblation in the sacrificial fire and live by agriculture, are only Brāhmaṇas in name. (11)

A synod or assembly consisting of thousands of those Brāhmaṇas who are devoid of Mantras and Vratas, and who trade upon the privileges of their own caste in order to earn a living, should be regarded as wanting in the status of a true synod. (12)

What these illiterate, ignorant, Brāhmaṇas say by way of expressing their opinion on a particular sinful act, without being able to interpret the true import of the scriptures, only serves to split the demerit of the act into a hundred parts, which, thus divided, defiles their souls in return. (13)

The synod, that lays down the form of an expiatory rite for a penitent without having any knowledge of the scriptures, acquires the demerit (of the act for which expiation is sought). The penitent is absolved of his sin. (14)

What three or four Brāhmaṇas, well-versed in the Vēdas, lay down as expiation for any particular delinquency, should be regarded as the only true form of expiation (that can be advised.) What thousands of other (ignorant) Brāhmaṇas may advise in the case is not of the right kind. (15)

Sin standeth in awe of them, who interpret the meanings of scriptures in conformity with the principles of sound reasoning. (16)

Like water in a stone (receptacle) that is purified

by the agency of the sun and air, a penitent is purified of his sin through the dictate of the synod. (17)

Like water that is dried up by the sun and air, the sin of a penitent is extinguished by the order of the Parishad; it does not attach itself either to the penitent, or to the synod. (18)

An assembly consisting of three or five Brāhmaṇas, who are well-versed in the Védas and Vedāngas even without consecrating the sacred fire, is called a Parishad (synod). (19)

Even a single Brāhmaṇa, who is a Muni with a knowledge of his self and devoted to prayers, performances of Vedic sacrifices, and ceremonial oblations (Snātaka), may constitute a Parishad in his individual capacity. (20)

In the absence of five Brāhmaṇas of the aforesaid type, an assembly consisting of Brāhmaṇas, who are content with their own profession, should be regarded as a Parishad. (21)

A council consisting of thousands of persons, who are Brāhmaṇas only in name, should not be honoured with the dignity of a Parishad. (22)

An wooden elephant, an antelope made of (stuffed) hyde, and a Brāhmaṇa who has not studied the Védas are the three (things) that merely bear the epithet of (their living, genuine, prototypes). (23)

Like a waterless well, like a deserted hamlet, like a Īoma done without fire, meaningless is the life of a Brāhmaṇa, who is without any Mantram. (24)

Like a sexual intercourse by a eunuch, like seeds cast in a barren soil, like a meritless gift made to an ignorant person, meaningless is the life of a Brāhmaṇa who has not studied the Rik verses. (25)

As the different limbs of a picture in painting are gradually developed (by giving fresh touches), so the Brāhmaṇic virtues of a Brāhmaṇa are gradually evoked through the successive performance of religious rites. (26)

By advising on forms of expiatory rites, those, who are Brāhmaṇas only in name, go to hell. (27)

Brāhmaṇas, who study the Vēdas, and perform, each day, the five religious sacrifices known as the Pancha-yajna, are the wielders of the three worlds, and serve as the supports of men, who are addicted to the enjoyment of the objects of the five senses. (28)

As duly consecrated fires in cremation grounds consume the sins and impieties of the (cremated), so the Brāhmaṇas, illumined with the light of knowledge, consume all sins, and become like the gods. (29)

Like all impure things which should be cast in water, all sins and impieties should be merged in the water-like (pure) souls of Brāhmaṇas. (30)

A Brāhmaṇa without the Gāyatri Mantra is more degraded than a S'udra. Brāhmaṇas, who know the supreme Brahmā and are devoted to the Gāyatri, are the foremost in honour and sanctity. (31)

The person of a wicked Brāhmaṇa is more worshipful than that of a S'udra, who has controlled his senses. Who will milch a docile she-ass in preference to a vicious cow? (32)

Riden in the chariot of scriptures, and wielding the swords of Vēdas in their hands, Brāhmaṇas, whatever they may speak even in fun, is highly obligatory (Dharma). (33)

Hence, he, who is well versed in the four Vēdas and Vēdāṅgas, studies the scriptures, and has got a mind free from all hesitations or waverings, should be regarded as constituting the best Parishad in his individual self. In the absence of a such a man, a council consisting of ten Brâhmaṇa house-holders should be reckoned as a Parishad of the middling class. (34)

Brâhmaṇas should neither lay down the form of expiation in a particular case, unless commanded by the king to do the same, nor pronounce the verdict of absolution without first having got the permission of the king in that behalf. (35)

The sin of what a king wishes to do in contravention of the orders of the Brâhmaṇas (synod) becomes hundredfold, and sticks to him. (36)

Brâhmaṇas should lay down the form of expiation before a divine temple. They should first purify their minds of all impieties, and then lay down the form of expiation after having recited the Gâyatri Mantram. (37)

During the practice of an expiatory penance, the penitent should shave his entire head as well as the tuft of hair on his crown, thrice bathe, each day, pass his nights in a cowshed, and follow the kine to pasturage during the day. (38)

Even in extreme heat or cold, or in rain, or during a storm or gale, he should not think of seeking any kind of shelter or refuge for himself by abandoning the cattle to shift for themselves. (39)

Even if the cows intrude on another man's field, or devour the corn in his own house or in that of another, or if they suckle their calves, he should not speak anything about these to any one. (40)

He should drink after the cows have appeased their thirst; he should lie down after the cows have been comfortably housed. A cow sunk in mire he should try his best to succour, even if the attempt imperils his own life. (41)

A protector of cows and Brāhmaṇas, who sacrifices his life for things good, is absolved of the sin of killing a cow or Brāhmaṇa. (42)

A Prājāpatyam should be laid down as the expiatory penance for an act of cow-killing. A Krichchha Prājāpatyam should be divided into four parts. (43)

The penitent should take a single meal on the first day, eat a single meal on the night of the second day, live upon something not obtained by begging on the third day, and take nothing but air on the fourth day, of the penance. This is called a Pāda Krichchha Prājāpatyam. (44)

The penitent should take a single meal, each day, on the first two days, eat only once on the nights of the second two days, eat what is not obtained by begging on the third two days, and live on air alone on the last two days, of the penance. This is called a Dvipāda Krichchha Chāndrāyanam. (45)

The penitent should take a single meal daily on the first three days, eat once alone on the nights of the second three days, take what is not obtained by begging on the third three days, and live on air alone on the last four days, of the penance. This is called a Tripāda Krichchha Chāndrāyanam. (46)

The penitent should take a single meal daily on the first four days, eat only once, every night, on the nights of the second four days, take only what is not obtained by begging on the third four days, and live on air alone on the last four days, of the penance. This called a full Krichchha Chāndrāyanam. (47)

Brâhmaṇas should be feasted at the close of the penance, and proper honorariums should be given to them. Twice-born ones should likewise recite the sacred Mantram in connection with the performance of this expiatory rite. A cow-killer is undoubtedly absolved of his sin after having thus feasted the Brâhmaṇas (at the close of this penance.) (48—49)

CHAPTER IX.

NO sin is committed, if a cow* dies under restraint, or in fastening, which is considered necessary for her protection. This would not constitute either an act of intentional or unintentional cow-killing. (1)

A twig, equal to the width of a thumb in girth, and measuring a cubit in length, with a tuft of fresh, undried leaves at its top, should be (used as) a Danda (rod for goading cattle). (2)

He, who beats or strikes down a cow with anything other than a rod of the above type, should atone for his sin by doubly practising the penance laid down before in connection with an act of cow-killing. (3)

An act of cow-killing may be divided into four classes according as a cow is killed under restraint, or in fasting, or by yoking her to a plough, or by simply beating. A Pâda (quarter) penance should be practised for a cow killed by restraining her, while a half penance should be practised if she is killed on account of being kept bound to a stake. (4)

* The term cow includes a bullock also.

A three quarter part of the penance should be practised if a cow dies on account of being yoked to a plough, while the penance should be practised to its full extent if she is killed down right by hammering. (5)

An offence of (cow-killing) by restraint is committed if a cow dies on account of being kept restrained in a pasturage, cowshed, castle, or plain, or at the shore of a sea or river, or in a ditch, or rock-cave, or on a barren ground. (6)

An offence of cow-killing by fasting is committed if a cow dies on account of being bound with any kind of binding chord, strappings, bells, etc., either in a house or forest, no matter whether such fasting is intentionally made or otherwise. (7)

An offence of cow-killing by yoking is committed if a cow or bullock dies on account of being yoked to a plough, or through being subjected to a heavy pressure, or to carry an extremely heavy load, or on account of being bound in rows of three or four. (8—9)

If a cow (or bullock) dies on account of being struck with a rod or pelted with a stone, either intentionally or unintentionally, by a person, intoxicated, enraged, or insane, such a striking should be considered as the cause of her death. (10)

But if after having been struck down as (above described), the said cow (or bullock) regains her consciousness, and rises up, or eats five or seven mouthfuls of hay, or drinks water, no expiation is necessary for the (beating etc.). (11—12)

A quarter part of the expiatory penance should be practised after having destroyed the pregnancy of a cow if the impregnated matter lies in a gelatinous and undifferentiated state in her womb; half of that should be practised if the foetus is caused to be aborted after the signs of pregnancy have become fully patent ; and a three quarter part of the expiatory rite should be performed if her pregnancy is destroyed after she has become quick with her calf. (13)

A penitent should shave the hair on his body in connection with practising a quarter part of the penance ; shave his mustache in practising a half penance, and all his hairs, excepting the tuft of hairs on his crown, in practising a three quarter part of the penance. A complete shaving from one's head to foot is enjoined to be made in respect of practising a full penance under the circumstance. (14)

A pair of clothes should be gifted away in connection with a quarter ; a vessel of bellmetal, in connection with a half ; a single bullock, in connection with a three quarter ; and a pair of bullocks, in connection with, a full penance. (15)

But the foetus of a cow may be quick with life even before the full development of its limbs. The expiatory rite for an act of cow-killing should be doubly performed after having destroyed a full developed calf in the womb. (16)

A quarter part of the expiatory penance should be practised after having broken down the horns of a cow with a rod or stone ; a half penance should be the expiation in the case where the horns are completely rooted out. (17)

The practice of a Pāda kṛichchha Vratam is the expiation for an act of spraining the tail of a cow ; that of a Dvipāda kṛichchha Vratam is the expiation for fracturing any of her bones, that of a Tripāda kṛichchha Vratam is the expiation for breaking her ears, while that of a kṛichchha Vratam is the expiation for an act of cow-killing. (18)

No expiatory rite should be performed in respect of the death of a cow that survives six months even after the fracture of her waist, horns, or of any other bone in her body. (19)

A cow-beater should apply oil with his own hands to a wound or ulcer in her body, caused by the beating, until it is fully healed up, and live upon fodder until she becomes strong and sound again. (20)

A cow, (under the circumstance) should be well-cared for until she becomes sound again in all her limbs. Then her assaulter should make obeisance to Brāhmaṇas and renounce his feigned bovine character. (21)

But if all her limbs do not become sound again, if she suffers mutilation in any part of her body, then a half of the expiatory penance for an act of cow-killing should be practised. (22)

Now I shall describe the expiatory penance for one who kills a cow, out of anger, with a log of wood, stone, or weapon. (23)

Having killed a cow with a log of wood, one should practise a Sāntapanam Vratam; a Prājāpatyam Vratam should be practised after having struck her down with a brick-bat; a Taptakṛichchha Vratam, after having pelted her to death with stones; and an Atikṛichchha Vratam, after having killed her with a weapon. (24)

Five cows should be gifted away in connection with a Sāntapanam penance; three, in connection with a Prājāpatyam; eight, in connection with a Taptakṛichchham; and thirteen, in connection with an Atikṛichchham penance. (25)

A cow similar in features to the one killed by the penitent or her equivalent in value should be gifted away in connection with the practice of an expiatory penance (under the circumstance). This is what is enjoined by Manu. (26)

It is sinful to fasten or restrain a cow (or bullock) for the purpose of branding her body; but it is not sinful to bind or restrain cows (or bullocks) for the purpose of milching, or putting them together in a shed at evening, or for yoking them to carts. (27)

For an act of burning the skin of (a bullock) at the time of branding, or for subjecting a bullock to carry an extremely heavy load, or for an act of perforating the (septum of its) nose, or for an act of leading a bullock over impassable mountains or rivers, the performance of an expiatory rite is imperatively obligatory. (28)

A quarter penance should be practised for an act of over burning; a half penance, for that of subjecting a (bullock) to carry an extremely heavy load; and a three-quarter penance, for that of perforating its nose. A full penance should be practised for an act of cow (bullock) killing. (29)

Whether fastened, or free, if a bullock dies on account of its skin being over burned, a quarter part of the penance should be practised (by its owner) by way of expiation. This is what is enjoined by Parás'ara. (30)

Restraint, fastening, strapping, subjecting her to carry a heavy weight, beating, and sending her fully strapped to impassable places may be set down as the six factors, which tend to kill a cow (or bullock). (31)

Pressed by a chord through her private parts, if a cow dies in a house, the owner of the house should practise an Ardha Krichchha penance for the expiation of his sin. (32)

A cow should neither be bound with a rope made of the fibres of cocoanut, hemp, or rush, nor with an iron chain. A man should be posted with an axe in his hand by the side of a cow, in the event of her being so bound. (33)

A cow should be bound with a rope made of Kāsa, or Kus'a grass, with her head towards the south. No expiatory rite is necessary, or be performed even if such a rope catches fire and the cow is burnt down. (34)

What would be the process of expiation, if an adjacent hay-stack catches fire and burns down a cow, fastened close by? One should extinguish one's sin (under the circumstance) by repeating the sin-absolving Gāyatri. (35)

He, who pushes down a cow (or bullock) into a tank or well, or fells down a tree upon her back, or sells her to a beef-eater, commits the sin of cow-killing. (36)

A three quarter penance should be practised, if in the attempt at succouring a cow from (such a dangerous (situation) her neck, leg, rib, or ear is broken, or if she dies, or is drowned in a well or tank. (37—38.

No expiatory rite should be performed, if a cow dies in attempting to drink water in a stream, tank, well or fountain. (39)

No expiatory rite should be performed, if a cow dies by falling in a ditch near a well, or in a river or tank, or in a reservoir of water consecrated to public use. (40)

If a cow dies by falling in a ditch near the door of one's house, or in a tank situate within one's premises, or in an excavation made for the construction of one's house, it would be obligatory on the owner of such a ditch, tank or excavation to practise an expiatory penance for the death of the cow. (41)

It shall be incumbent on her owner to practise an expiatory penance, if a cow (or bullock) is killed by a tiger, snake, or fire, or is struck by lightning while under restraint in a shed at night. (42)

No expiatory rite should be performed, if a cow is killed by an arrow during the storming of a village by a besieging army, or by the tumbling down of an edifice, or by a heavy down-pour of rain. (43)

No expiatory rite should be performed in respect of the death of a cow, that is killed in battle, or by a wood fire, or by conflagration, or during the destruction of a village. (44)

No expiatory rite should be performed in respect of the death of a cow, that dies while strapped for medical or surgical purposes, or during the extrication of her calf in a case of difficult parturition. (45)

Expiation is necessary for the death of a cow, dead on account of being kept huddled together with other sick kine, or for the reason of being treated by an ignorant cow-doctor. (46)

Persons, who witness the slaughter or unnatural death of a cow, without in any way attempting to rescue her, stand charged with the sin of cow-killing. (47)

In a case where several persons stand accused of the offence of cow killing but the real killer is not definitely known, it will be lawful for the king's officers to ascertain the real culprit by administering oaths to them severally and with the help of external evidence as well. (48)

In a case where several persons have accidentally killed a cow, it shall be incumbent on each of them to practise a quarter part of the penance (enjoined to be practised for expiating the sin of cow-killing). (49)

The blood of a killed cow should be carefully tested in order to ascertain whether she had been lean or diseased in life, inasmuch as the nature of the penance would vary according to the state of her health at the time of death. Hence, the testing should be carefully done. (50)

The performance of a Chândrâyaṇam has been enjoined by Manu, the only one who knew all the scriptures, as an expiation, under any circumstance, for the sin of cow killing. (51)

He, who wishes to grow his hairs during the practice of an expiatory penance, under the circumstance, should practise it double and pay a double honorarium in connection therewith. (52)

A king, a prince, and an erudite Brâhmaṇa may practise an expiatory penance without shaving his head. (53)

He, who grows his hair (during the practice of a penance) without paying a double honorarium therefor, does not stand absolved of his sin. He, who advises such a form of penance, goes to hell. (54)

Whatever sin a man commits attaches itself to his hair. Hence, he should clip his hairs to the length of two fingers' width from their ends. (55)

This rule should be followed by maidens and matrons (under the circumstance, inasmuch as shaving of the head and a separate mess and bed are prohibited in respect of a woman. (56)

A woman (in her penance) should not pass the night in a pasturage, nor should she follow the kine during the day, especially in a forest or at a confluence of rivers. (57)

O Vyāsa, wearings of antelope-skins (during the term of a penance) are prohibited in respect of women. They should practise the penance by bathing thrice, every day, and by worshipping the gods. (58)

Living among her friends, (a woman) should perform all the Vrataś such as Krichchha Chāndrāyaṇam, etc.; clean in body and spirit she should keep at home following the regulations as laid down. (59)

He, who having killed a cow, tries to conceal his sin in this life, is consigned to the pangs of Kālasutra hell, after death. (60)

Liberated from that hell, he is born as a eunuch or leper, or as an indigent person in his seven successive incarnations. (61)

Hence, one should confess one's sin and discharge religious duties peculiar to one's order. One should not be extremely angry with an infant, woman, or an old man. (62)

CHAPTER X.

I HAVE dealt with the expiatory penances to be practised by the members of the four social orders for the expiation of their sins. A man having known a prohibited woman should practise a Chāndrāyaṇa penance. (1)

A morsel of food should be diminished, each day, in the dark fortnight (of the month the penance is practised) and likewise increased, each day, in the light fortnight, the penitent foregoing all food on the day of the new moon. This is the process of practising a Chāndrāyana. (2)

The morsel of food (to be taken by the penitent) should be to the size of a hen's egg, as otherwise, it being contrary to the spirit of the scriptures, the Vratam, (the penance) will not expiate the sin of the penitent. (3)

Brāhmaṇas should be feasted at the close of the penance, and pairs of clothes and cows should be gifted to them. (4)

Having gone unto a Chandāla or S'vapāk woman, a Brāhmaṇa should fast for three nights with the permission of Brāhmaṇas. (5)

He should shave his head together with the tuft of hair on his crown, practise three Prājāpatya penances, and then having performed Brahma Kurcham (a kind of penance in which the penitent having fasted on a day of full moon drinks Panchagavyam on the next morning), should propitiate the Brāhmaṇas. (6)

He should daily recite the Gāyatri Mantra, and make the gift of a cow and bullock to a Brāhmaṇa, whereby his sin would be undoubtedly extinguished. (7)

Having visited a Chandāla or a S'vapāk woman, a Kshatriya or Vais'ya should practise two Prājāpatya penances and make the gift of a cow and bullock to a Brāhmaṇa. (8)

A S'udra having known a Chandāla or a S'vapāk woman should practise a Prājāpatya penance, and make the gift of a cow and bullock to a Brāhmaṇa. (9)

Having known, through ignorance, his mother, sister or daughter, a man should practise three Krichchha Vratas, and a Chāndrāyana penance, thereafter, and cut away his genitals for the expiation of his sin. The same penances, etc., should be practised for expiating the sin of knowingly going unto one's own mother's sister. (10—11)

As enjoined by the holy Parás'ara, he, who knows his own mother's sister, out of ignorance, should practise Chândráyaṇa penances, and make gifts of ten cows and ten bullocks to Bráhmaṇas, whereby he would be pure again. (12)

Having riden one's own father's wife, or mother's (female) friend, brother's daughter, preceptor's wife, daughter-in-law, brother's wife, or the wife of one's own maternal uncle, or the daughter of a cognate relation, one should practise three Prájápatya penances and make the gift of a pair of cows to Bráhmaṇas, whereby his sin would be extinguished. (13—14)

Having gone to a she-animal, prostitute, she-buffalo, she-camel, female monkey, she-ass, or a sow, one should practise a Prájápatya penance. (15)

Having carnally known a cow, one should recover his purity by practising a Trirátri Vratam, and by making the gift of a cow to a Bráhmaṇa. He, who goes unto a she-ass, she-camel, or she-buffalo, may regain his purity by fasting for an entire day and night. (16)

During the out-break of a war, civic disturbance, pestilence, or epidemic, or on the apprehension of a foreign conquest, one should keep a constant eye upon one's own wife. (17)

Having held incest with a Chāṇḍāla, a woman should confess her guilt to ten eminent Bráhmaṇas. (18)

Immersed up to her chin in a well containing clay and liquid cow-dung, she should stay there for one night, abjuring all food, whereby she would regain her purity. (19)

After that, she would be lifted out of the well, and having entirely shaved her head she should take a barley diet. After that, she should fast for three nights, passing the last night of her penance in water. (20)

After that, a decoction of the roots, leaves and flowers of Shankhapushpi in combination with Panchagavyam and washings of gold should be given her to drink. (21)

She should take a single meal, each day, till the appearance of her monthly flow, living out-side (of her, husband's house) during the full term of the penance (22)

At the close of the penance she should feast the Brāhmaṇas and make the gift of a pair of cows to them, whereby she should be pure again. This is what Parās'ara enjoins. (23)

Women of all the four social orders should practise a Krichchha Chāndrāyana penance under the circumstance. A woman, like the earth, can suffer no defilement. (24)

A woman forcibly ravished by a man, in captivity, as well as she, who accommodates a man on account of being physically over-powered, or out of a sense of danger to her life, should regain her purity by practising a Sāntapanam penance. This is what has been enjoined by Parās'ara. (25)

A woman, who having been once ravished by another man, turns back with repugnance from the path of inequity, should expiate her sin by practising a Prājāpatya penance, whereby she would be pure after her next monthly period. (26)

Half the body of him whose wife drinks wine is degraded. There is no deliverance for the man whose half self is thus degraded. He should mentally repeat the Gāyatri mantra, and practise a Krichchha Śānta-panam penance. (27—28)

A fast for a night, after having drunk Panchagavyam with washings of kusha grass, constitutes the practice of a Krichchha Śāntapanam penance. (29)

She, who gets herself impregnated by her peramour, after having been deserted by her lord, or during his absence in a distant country, or after his demise, should be banished, the degraded, sinful one, in an alien kingdom (30)

A Brāhmaṇa woman, who elopes with another man, is called a fallen woman. She can never be taken back in her family. (31)

She, who, out of lust, goes away and forsakes her friends, relations, husband, and sons, is 'a lost creature both in this world and the next. (32)

No expiation exists for the sin of a woman, who, for ten days, thus remains absent from home. She should be reckoned among the degraded from after the tenth day after her elopement. (33)

No expiation exists for the conduct of a woman, who absents herself for ten days from home. Hence, under no circumstance should a woman be absent from home (without the knowledge of her guardians), as otherwise she would be reckoned among the degraded. (34)

The husband (of such a woman) receiving her back in his house (under the circumstance) should practise a Krichchha Chāndrāyana; and her relations, a half of that penance, while those, who might have eaten or drunk in her company, should regain their purity by fasting for an entire day and night. (35)

A Brāhmaṇa woman, who leaves her home out of her own accord, and without the instigation of any other mān, and happens to know more than a hundred men thereafter, should be abandoned by her friends and relations. (35)

Defiled is the house of a man, if such a woman enters it. The house of her paramour should be designated as her paternal house (37)

A house defiled by such an unholy presence should be purified by plastering it with Panchagavyam; all earthen vessels should be thrown out of it and clothes and wooden furniture kept therein should be purified in the usual orthodox method. (38)

Copper vessels (kept in such a house) should be purified by washing them with Panchagavyam, and utensils made of bell-metal and found therein should be purified by rubbing them with ten kinds of ashes. (39)

A Brāhmaṇa, in whose house (such a fallen) woman might have stayed, should report the incident to Brāhmanas, and having performed an expiatory rite according to their direction should gift a pair of cows to them and practise a Prāiṣṭya penance. (40)

The owner of such a house, other than a Brāhmaṇa, should fast for an entire day and night and purify it with a plastering of Panchagavyam under the circumstance. After that, he should treat the Brahmanas to a sumptuous repast in the company of his sons and servants. (41)

The sky air, fire, Chamasa with other utensils and implements of a religious sacrifice, Kusha grass, and terrestrial water are above all defilement. (42)

By dint of fasts, vows, ablutions, worship, Japa, and Homa, Brāhmaṇas are always purified. (43)

CHAPTER XI.

HAVING taken beef, or the boiled rice of a Chandâla, or any filthy organic matter such as sperm etc., a Brâhmana should expiate his sin by practising a Chândrâyaṇa penance. (1)

A Kshatâiya or a Vais'ya, under the circumstance, should practise a half Chândrâyaṇam, while a S'udra should regain his purity by practising a Prâjâpatyam. (2)

A S'udra should take Panchagavyam; and a Brâhmana, Brahmakurcham. A Brâhmana should gift a cow; a Kshatriya, two; a Vais'ya, three; and a S'udra, four cows, under the circumstance. (3)

A Brâhmana taking the boiled rice of a S'udra, or of one unclean with a birth uncleanness, or of one of uncertain caste, as well as the boiled rice which is forbidden to be taken, or is the remainder of another man's meal, out of ignorance, or in a time of distress, should practise a Krichchha penance on having come to know thereof, and drink Brahmakurcham by way of expiation. (4—5)

Boiled rice eaten by a snake, mongoose, or cat is purified by sprinkling it over with washings of Kus'a grass containing sesame. There can be no doubt about it. (6)

Having taken any kind of interdicted boiled rice, a S'udra is purified by drinking Panchagavyam; a Kshatriya or Vais'ya, under the circumstance, is purified by practising a Prâjâpatyam penance. (7)

If a Brâhmana leaves his plate and rises up from among a row of Brâhmanas, at a dinner, the rest shall not eat the remainder of the boiled rice left in their plates. (8)

A Brāhmaṇa, who eats such a remainder, out of greed or ignorance, should expiate his sin by practising a Krichshka Sāntapanam penance. (9)

Having taken, out of ignorance, a white garlic, egg-fruit, turnip or onion, or having unwillingly drunk the milk of a she-camel, or of an ewe, or the milky juice of a tree, a Brāhmaṇa should fast for three nights, and regain his purity by taking Panchagavyam. (10)

Having eaten a frog or a mouse, out of ignorance, a Brāhmaṇa, when he comes to know of it, should fast for an entire day and night, and regain his purity by living on a barley diet. (11)

Brāhmaṇas may always eat without impunity in the houses of Kshatriyas and Vais'yas, clean in their body and spirit and devoted to the performance of religious rites, on the occasion of a Homa or S'rāddha, whether celebrated in honour of the gods or of their departed manes. (12)

Clarified butter, oil, milk, treacle, and articles of confectionary cooked in oil and offered by a S'udra should be taken by a Brāhmaṇa only at the bank of a river. (13)

What would be the expiation for the sin of a Brāhmaṇa who eats the boiled rice of one impure with a birth or death uncleanness? How would the form of expiation vary according to the caste of the person whose boiled rice is thus partaken of? (14)

Having eaten the boiled rice of a S'udra, impure with a birth uncleanness, a Brāhmaṇa should recover his purity by eight thousand times repeating the Gāyatri Mantram. Gāyatri Mantra a thousand and five thousand times repeated, should be the expiation for respectively eating the boiled rice of a Kshatriya and S'udra under the circumstance. (15—16)

Having eaten the boiled rice of a Brāhmaṇa, impure with a birth-uncleanness, a Brāhmaṇa should recover his purity by practising a Prāṇāyāma, or by reciting the Vāmadevya Sāman. (17)

Rice, oil, milk, or any other kind of (raw) edible substance, come from the house of a S'udra, and cooked in the house of a Brāhmaṇa, becomes fit to be eaten by Brāhmaṇas. This is the injunction of Manu. (18)

Repentence purifies a Brāhmaṇa that takes boiled rice in the house of a S'udra, during a time of distress, or a hundred repetition of the Gāyatri Mantra is the expiation for his sin, under the circumstance. (19)

A Brāhmaṇa can safely partake of the boiled rice of a Dāsa, Nāpita, Gopāla, Kulamitra and Ardhasiri, among S'udras, as well as that of one who has resigned himself (to his care). (20)

A son begotten on the person of a S'udra's daughter by a Brāhmaṇa, and duly consecrated with Brāhmaṇic rites by another Brāhmaṇa, is called a Dāsa. A son thus begotten, but not consecrated, is called a Nāpita. (21)

A son begotten by a Kshatriya on the person of a S'udra's daughter is called a Gopāla, whose boiled rice a Brāhmaṇa can safely partake of. (22)

A son, begotten by a Brāhmaṇa on a Vais'ya's daughter and duly consecrated, is called an Ardhaka, (Ardhasiri), certainly whose boiled rice may be partaken of by a Brāhmaṇa. (23)

What would be the expiation for the sin of a man, who unwittingly drinks milk, water, milk-curd, or clarified butter kept in the vessel of one whose boiled rice should not be partaken of (by a Brāhmaṇa)? (24)

If a Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, Vais'ya or S'udra asks for the form of the expiatory rite (to be performed by him under the circumstance), Taking of Brahmakurcham, or fasting should be enjoined according to the caste of the penitent seeking the expiation. (25)

No fasting should be laid down in respect of a S'udra who is purified by making gifts. The eating of Brahmakurcham for a single day and night serves to purify even a Chandāla. (26)

Holy and sin-absolving is Panchagavyam, which is a compound of cow's urine, cow-dung, cow's milk, curdled cow-milk, cow-butter in a clarified state, and the washings of Kus'a grass. (27)

The urine of a black cow, the cowdung of a white cow, the milk of a copper coloured cow, and the curdled milk of a red cow should be collected (for the compound, Panchagavyam). (28)

The butter made out of the milk of a Kapilā cow, or all the above said four articles such as milk, urine, etc., of a Kapilā should be collected for concocting the compound. A Pala weight (8 tollas) of cow's urine, and three Pala weights of curdled cow milk should be given in (the compound, Panchagavyam). (29)

A Pala weight of clarified cow-butter, cowdung to the length of a half thumb, seven Pala weights of milk, and a Pala weight of the washings of Kus'a grass should enter into the composition of Panchagavyam. (30)

Cow's urine, (under the circumstance) should be taken by reciting the Gāyatri Mantram; cowdung, by reciting the one beginning with Gandhadvāra, etc., cow-milk, by reciting the one running as Apyayasva

etc., and milk curd by reciting the one commencing as Dhadhi Krāvna, etc. (31)

Clarified butter should be taken by reciting the Mantram, S'ukram, etc., and the washings of Kus'a grass, by reciting the one beginning as Devasyatva, etc. The whole (compound) Panchagavyam should be consecrated by chanting the Rik Mantram and kept by the side of fire. (32)

The six aforesaid substances should be mixed together by reciting the A'pohishthā, etc., Mantra, and consecrated by reciting the one, running as Mānastoka, etc. A Homa should be duly performed with seven Kus'a blades with uncut tops and of the colour of a parrot. (33)

The compound (Panchagavyam) should be lifted with such Kus'a blades and the penitent should cast it in the sacrificial fire by reciting the Mantraḥ Irāvati, Idam Viṣṇu, Manastoka, S'amvati, etc. The unoffered remainder of the compound should be taken by the penitent himself. (34)

The compound (Panchagavyam) should be stirred by repeating the Pranava Mantra, and churned, lifted and taken by the same Mantram. (35)

The sin that lies ensconced in the skeletal bones of a sinner is all consumed by this Brahmakurcham, as fire consumes its fuel wood. (36)

Impure is the water in a vessel over which drops of water fall dribbling out of the mouth of a drinker. He, who drinks such water, should practise a Chāndrāyana penance. (37)

A twice-born one drinking the defiled water of a well in which a dog, jackal or monkey has fallen, or in which bones and hairs have been cast, should practise (the following) penance by way of expiation. (38)

If a skeletal bone or hair of a man, crow, cat, boar, ass, camel, cow (bullock), elephant, peacock, rhinoceros, tiger, bear, or lion, falls into a well, or tank, the water of that well or tank should be considered as defiled. (39—40)

Those, who drink the water of such a tank (or well), should recover their purity by practising the following expiatory penances. (41)

A Brāhmaṇa becomes pure by fasting for three nights (under the circumstance); a Kshatriya, by observing a fast for two days; a Vais'ya, by fasting for an entire day and night, and a S'udra, by fasting for a night only. (42)

A Brāhmaṇa, who eats boiled rice of one who does not cook his own food, or cooks the food of another, or eats boiled rice cooked by another, should practise a Chāndrāyana penance. (43)

What is the merit of making a gift to an Apacha (lit., who does not cook his own food) Brāhmaṇa, in as much as both the giver and recipient of the gift go to hell. (44)

He, who having duly consecrated the sacred fire does not perform therewith the five domestic sacrifices, each day, is called Parapākanivṛitta by the Munis. (45)

He, who having quitted his bed at early dawn and performed the five daily domestic sacrifices, lives on another man's boiled rice, is called a Parapāka. (46)

He, who, although not a house-holder himself, makes gifts to Brāhmaṇas, is called an Apacha. (47)

Brāhmaṇas, true to the duties of each Yuga they are born in, should not be in any way censured, since they are the embodiments of the spirit of a Yuga. (48)

Having uttered a menacing sound (Humkara) to a Brāhmaṇa, or having bethoued one's superior, one should bathe and propitiate him for the whole day. (49)

Having chastised a Brāhmaṇa with a chord of rush, or dragged him by the neck with a piece of cloth, or defeated him in a quarrel, one should propitiate him by falling down at his feet. (50)

Having threatened a Brāhmaṇa with a stick, one should (expiate one's sin) by fasting for an entire night; having floored, or brought him down on the ground, one should fast for three nights; having drawn blood out of his body, one should practise an Ati Krichchha penance, while having assaulted him in a manner so as to cause any bruise on his body, one should practise a Krichchha by way of expiation. (51)

Living on a quantity of boiled rice that can be held in the palm of one's hand constitutes the practice of an Ati-Krichchha penance, while a continuous fasting for three days constitutes that of a Krichchha Vratam. (52)

A hundred thousand repetition of the Gāyatrī Mantra should be regarded as the expiation in a case in which all or multifarious sins have been combinedly committed. (53)

CHAPTER XII.

A MAN should bathe after having dreamt a bad dream, or after having vomitted, or shaved himself, or after having known a woman, or after an exposure to the smoke of a cremation ground. (1)

Members of the three twice-born castes, after having unwillingly taken wine, urine, or any kind of fecal matter, should again get themselves duly consecrated. (2)

The use of an antelope-skin, rush-girdle (Mekhalā), mendicant's rod, as well as the practice of vows and alms-taking are excluded from a rite of re-consecration. (3)

The practice of a Prājāpatyam penance is the expiation for S'ūdra, or woman, under the circumstance. He or she should regain his or her personal purity by bathing and taking the compound, Panchagavyam. (4)

What should be the form of expiation in the event of any obstruction to one's daily rite of ablution, or on the extinction of the sacred fire in one's house, or on the accidental break of one's vow. (5)

Members of the three social orders (Kshatriya, Vais'ya and S'ūdra) should regain their purity either by practising two Prājāpatyas, or by resorting to a place of pilgrimage, or by making a gift of eleven kine. (6)

Now I shall speak about the form of expiation in respect of 'a Brāhmaṇa (under the circumstance). He should betake himself to a forest, shave his head together with the tuft of hair on its crown, at a crossing of two roads therein, practise three Prājāpatyas, and make the gift of a cow with a bullock to a Brāhmaṇa, whereby he would recover his purity as narrated by the self-originated (Svāyambhūva) Manu. (7—8)

The holy ones have described five kinds of bathing such as A'gneyam, Vāruṇam, Brāhmam and Dīvyam. (9)

An A'gneyam bath consists in rubbing one's body with ashes; a bath by plunging in river is called

Vāruṇam; the one by reciting the Apoḥishtā Mantra is called Brāhmam, while the one by getting oneself drenched when the sun shines is called Divyam, the one in which the bather rubs his body with dust being called Vāyavyam. (10)

He, who bathes at the occurrence of (such a) phenomenon, acquires the merit of performing an ablution in the Ganges. (11)

The Gods and Pitṛis in aerial shapes, thirsty and in need of water, follow a Brāhmaṇa out on bathing, with the hope of obtaining libations of water. (12)

In despair do they return on having seen him squeezing water out of his cloth, hence, one should not twist one's wet cloth (after a bath) before offering libations of water unto one's departed manes. (13)

The Pitṛis abjure the libations of water offered by him, who forcibly brushes the water out of his hair after a bath, or spits out the water on the surface of water in connection with the performance of a rite of A'chamanam. (14)

A twice-born one, even after having made an A'chamanam (a rite of rinsing one's mouth with water) with a turban on one's head, or without tucking the hem of one's lower garment into the waist band (Muktakachchha), or without holding the holy thread on his shoulder, should be regarded as impure. (15)

Sitting on land one should not perform an A'chamanam on water, nor on land while standing in water; he, who, by touching both land and water, performs a rite of A'chamanam under either circumstance, becomes pure. (16)

or changed his cloth, or after a walk, although he might have rinsed his mouth before. (17)

A Bráhmana should touch his right ear after having sneezed, spitted, or spoken a lie, or pricked his teeth, or conversed with a degraded person. (18)

(The gods) Brahmá, Vishnuh, Rudrah, the sun, the moon, and the wind-god reside in the right ear of a Bráhmana. (19)

Commendable is a bath, during the day, in waters purified by the rays of the sun. A night bath, other than one made under the auspices of a lunar eclipse, is always prohibited. (20)

Maruts, Vasus, Rudras, A'dityas and other gods are merged in (reside in) the moon, hence ; a bath under the auspices of a lunar eclipse is enjoined as obligatory in the scriptures. (21)

A gift, other than the one made on the occasion of a wedding ceremony, lunar eclipse, or Sankránti (passing of the sun over to the next zodiacal sign), or under the auspices of a religious sacrifice (celebrated in connection with the harvesting and threshing of new corn), should not be made in the night. (22)

A gift in connection with the birth of one's son or the celebration of a religious sacrifice, or with the performance of a benedictory rite, or made under the auspices of a lunar eclipse, may be made during the night. (23)

The two middle quarters (Praharas) of the night are called Mahānis'i. Bathing is not prohibited during the first and last quarter of the night, as in the day. (24)

A Bráhmana having touched a tree growing on a

Chaitya (a tomb stone), a Chandāla, or a seller of Soma should bathe with all his clothes on. (25)

Weeping before the collection of the bits of skeletal bones of a deceased relation by one after cremation should be expiated by an ablution. A Brāhmaṇa weeping for a dead friend or relation within ten days of his death should perform an A'chamanam before bathing. (26)

On the occasion of a solar or lunar eclipse, all streams or reservoirs of water 'become as sacred as the Ganges in respect of making gifts or ablutions therewith. (27)

By bathing in water consecrated with the blades of holy Kus'a grass, or by performing a rite of A'chamanam therewith, or by drinking such water, a Brāhmaṇa acquires the merit of drinking Soma juice. (28)

Brāhmaṇas, devoid of Sandhyā and prayer, oustead of the office of keeping the consecrated fire, and unmindful of the study of the Vēdas, are called Vrishalas. (29)

A Brāhmaṇa, who is afraid of being thus degraded to the low status of a Vrishala, should read at least one chapter of, if incapable of reading, the entire collection (Vēdas). (30)

A Brāhmaṇa, who lives on the boiled rice of a S'udra, although he be a daily reader of the Vēdas, or a daily performer of Japas and Homas, does not come by a better fate. (31)

The knowledge, that is acquired from a S'udra, partaking of a S'udra's boiled rice, the act of sharing the same bed or seat with a S'udra, as well as his touch or contact, drags down a Brāhmaṇa, even if effulgent with the light of wisdom, to the degraded level of a Śūdra. (32)

Verily, I do not know, my child, in what kind of womb will a Brāhmaṇa be reborn in his next birth, that feeds himself fat on the boiled rice of a Śūdra, impure with a birth or death-uncleanness. (33)

He will be born as a vulture in his twelve successive incarnations; as a hog, in his next ten; and as a dog, in his next seven. This is the opinion of Mānu. (34)

A Brāhmaṇa, who in consideration of a honorarium casts libations of clarified butter in fire on behalf of a Śūdra, is himself degraded to the status of a Śūdra, while the latter is elevated to that of a Brāhmaṇa. (35)

Having observed a vow of silence, a Brāhmaṇa should not speak; having spoken during a meal a Brāhmaṇa should discard the remainder of his food. (36)

A Brāhmaṇa, who, at the middle of his meal, drinks water out of the plate in which he has been eating, degrades his own self; abortive are the S'rāddhas performed by him in honour of the gods, or of his departed manes. (37)

The Pitris return in despair, and the gods, unpropitiated, from the presence of a Brāhmaṇa, who does not offer libations of water unto them, even having got the proper libatory vessels by his side. (38)

If a house-holder, an intelligent and upright Brāhmaṇa, should always think of supporting his family and dependants with means in perfect conformity with the dictates of good conscience. (39)

A Brāhmaṇa should acquire and cultivate knowledge with money earned by honest means. A dishonest or unfair means of livelihood degrades a Brāhmaṇa, and divests him of the right of performing any religious rite whatsoever. (40)

Holy is the sight of a king, Kapilā cow, or ocean, or of a Brāhmaṇa, with the consecrated fire and well-versed in the Vēdas, hence, one should try to see them, every day. (41)

A fire-charner, a black cat, a black goat, and sandal-wood, as well as a good gem, clarified butter, sesame, and a black antelope-skin should be kept in one's house. (42)

A field measuring ten times the area of one in which a hundred kine can roam about unfettered in the company of a youthful bullock is called a Gocharma. (43)

One, guilty of a heinous sin, like an act of Brāhmaṇa-killing, either by body, mind, speech or act, should expiate it by making the gift of a Gocharma. (44)

A gift made to a poor relation, or specially to a Brāhmaṇa, well-versed in the Vēdas, tends to increase the longevity of its giver. (45)

A woman, menstruating a second time within sixteen days of her last flow, would be pure again by an ablution, that day, while she should remain unclean for three days, if it occurs after the sixteenth day. This is the opinion of Manu and Ūś'ana. (46)

Having touched a Chandāla woman, a Brāhmaṇa remains unclean for two days, having touched a parturient woman he remains unclean for three days, having touched a woman in her menses he remains unclean for six days, and having touched a degraded woman he remains unclean for eight days. (47)

his purity by a look at the sun after having unknowingly touched her. (48)

A foolish Bráhmaṇa, who sucks water with his mouth out of a well or tank, is sure to be reborn as a dog in his next birth. (49)

A Bráhmaṇa wishing to revisit his wife, after having solemnly abjured her company and declared her as an interdicted woman, should announce his intention to Bráhmaṇas. (50)

He, who fails to make gifts, or practise virtues, out of physical exhaustion, anger, ignorance, or nescience should practise the following expiatory penance for three days. (51)

Thrice he should bathe, each day, at the confluence of the Mahánadi, and make gifts of ten kine to Bráhmaṇas thereafter. (52)

Having eaten the boiled rice of a Bráhmaṇa addicted to sinful or vicious habits, one should observe a fast for an entire day and night. (53)

Having partaken of the boiled rice of a righteous Bráhmaṇa, well versed in the Védāntas, even for a single day and night, one is absolved of one's sin. (54)

Three Krichchha penances should be practised in connection with the death of him who dies with his face or anus unwashed, or expires suspended in the air with his feet not touching the ground. (55)

The Gáyatri Mantra should be repeated ten thousand times, and three hundred times the Pránáyāma should be practised. Twelve times the penitent should bathe, without rubbing his hairs dry, at any sacred pool, and make a pilgrimage, thereafter, to a shrine, not less than twelve kros'as distant from his place of residence.

This is what constitutes the practice of Krichchha Vratam, under the circumstance. (56)

A house holder, who, mad with lust, ejects his seed on the ground (practises masturbation), should repeat the Gāyatri, a thousand times, and thrice practise the Prāṇāyāma. (57)

On a Brāhmaṇa-killer having asked a Brāhmaṇa, well versed in the four Vēdas, about the form of expiation (to be gone through in his case), he should advise the miscreant to resort to the shrine at Sétuvandha. (58)

Abjuring the use of shoes and umbrella, he should live by begging alms of the four social orders on his way to Sétuvandha, not seeking the gifts of the unrighteous. (59)

He shall ask for alms by saying. "I am a miscreant, I have killed a Brāhmaṇa, now do I stand at your door for alms." (60)

He should live either in forests, or by the side of sacred fountains, or on the banks of holy rivers, or in cowsheds if staying in a town or village, during the time, confessing his sin to them all the while. (61)

Thereafter he should visit the stone bridge, ten thousand Yojanas long and a hundred Yojanas wide, built by the monkey general Nala across the ocean at the command of Rāma, whereby his sin of Brāhmaṇicide would be extinguished. (62—63)

A king guilty of Brāhmaṇicide should expiate his sin by celebrating a horse-sacrifice. The pilgrim in (the preceding case) or the sacrificial horse having returned from Sétuvandha, he or the king should treat the Brāhmaṇas to a sumptuous repast, in the company of his sons and servants, and make gifts of a hundred kine to Brāhmaṇas, well-versed in the four Vēdas. (64—65)

A Bráhmaṇa killer may be exonerated of his sin through the grace of the Bráhmaṇas. A person having killed his wife during the observance of a vow should practise a penance similar to that enjoined in connection with Bráhmaṇicide. (66)

A drunkard Bráhmaṇa should expiate his sin by resorting to the shore of a river that runs into a sea, and by, there, practising a Chândráyana penance, after which, he should feed the Bráhmaṇas, and make the gift of a cow and bullock to them. (67—68)

Having stolen gold, belonging to a Bráhmaṇa, the stealer should approach the king of the country with a club in his hand, and ask him to kill him on the spot. (69)

Discharged by the king, the stealer will get rid of his sin; but the king shall capitally punish him who has intentionally stolen (such gold). (70)

As oil drops poured on water soon spread over its surface, so sin is contaminated from one person to another by the use of the same bed, seat, or cushion, or through contact and conversation. (71)

All sins are extinguished through the practice of Chândráyana or Tulapurusha penance, as well as by living on barley diet, or by following the cows to pasturage. (72)

Thus is compiled the Dharma S'ástra by the holy Paráśara, composed of five hundred and ninety-nine verses. (73)

A perusal of this Dharma S'ástra, like a study of the Védas, is equally obligatory on those, who aspire to a residence in heaven (after death). (74)

S'ANKHA SAMHITA'.

CHAPTER I.

HAVING made obeisance to the Self-begotten one, the cause of creation and dissolution of the Universe, S'ankha, for the good of the four-fold social order, has framed this Code of Laws. (1)

Celebration of religious sacrifices, officiating as priests at the celebration of religious sacrifices, gift-making, teaching, acceptance of gifts, and study are (the acts), which should be done by a Bráhmaṇa. (2)

Gift-making, study, and due celebration of religious sacrifices are (acts), which should be done by a Kshatriya or Vais'ya. (3)

Protection of his subjects should be the specific duty of a Kshatriya ; trade, agriculture, and rearing of cattle are the specific duties of a Vais'ya. (4)

Serving the Bráhmaṇas, and performance of different handicrafts should be the specific duties of a S'udra. Practice of forbearance, truthfulness, and self-control, and cleanliness of body and spirit are equally obligatory on all, without any distinction of caste. (5)

Bráhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, and Vais'yas are the three twice-born castes ; their second birth takes place on the occasion of putting on the girdle of sacred rush. (6)

In his second birth symbolised by the wearing of the sacred girdle, the preceptor of a Bráhmaṇa, Kshatriya, or Vais'ya, who imparts the Gâyatri Mantra, should be regarded as his father, while the Mantra itself should be looked upon as fulfilling the office of his mother. (7)

Until the commencement of his study of the Védas, a Bráhmaṇa continues in the status of a S'udra ; he becomes twice-born after that. (8)

CHAPTER II.

ON the full manifestation of the signs of pregnancy, the rite of Nishéka should be performed (unto an enciente) ; the wise should perform the rite of Pum-savanam (rite for the causation of the birth of a male child unto her, as soon as she would be quick with the child. (1)

On the expiry of the period of birth-uncleanness (of its parents), the rite of nomenclature should be performed unto a babe, and its name should be made to consist of an even number of letters. (2)

The name of a Bráhmaṇa child should be (a term) of blissful signification ; that of a Kshatriya child should be a (term) denoting strength and vigour ; that of a Vais'ya child should be a term denoting wealth and prosperity, while that of a S'udra child should be of a lowly import. (3)

The name of a Bráhmaṇa should be appended with the term S'armā (of divine felicity) ; that of a Kshatriya should end with the term Varmā (protector) ; that of a Vais'ya should be appended with the term Dhana (wealth), while that of a S'udra should terminate with term Dāsa (servant). (4)

The rite of exposing the child to the sun, (as well as that of taking it out in the open) should be done in the fourth month of its life ; while the rite of Annaprās'anam should be done in the sixth month ; and the rite of tonsure, according to the custom prevailing in its father's family. (5)

A Brāhmaṇa boy should be invested with the holy thread at the eighth year of his age, inclusive of the period of his inter-uterine life; a Kshatriya boy should be invested with the holy thread at the eleventh, and a Vaishya boy, at the twelfth year of his age, reckoned as above described. (6)

The time for the rite of delayed investiture with the holy thread (Gauna Kāla) in respect of Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, and Vais'ya boys respectively extends upto the sixteenth, twenty second, and twenty fourth year of their life. (7)

Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, and Vais'yas, not invested with the holy thread at the proper time, become degraded and divested of the right of performing any religious rite. These unconsecrated ones, shorn of the prerogative of reciting the Gāyatri mantra, are dragged down to the level of breakers of vows. (8)

Members of the three twice-born orders should wear the sacred girdle at the time of being invested with the holy thread. A Brāhmaṇa Bramhachārin should wear a deer-skin; a Kshatriya, a tiger-skin; and a Vais'ya, a goat's skin; under the circumstance, in the shape of his upper garment. (9)

The sacred rods of these three orders should be respectively made of Parṇa, Pippala, and Vilva wood, respectively reaching their hair, ears, and forehead in height. (10)

The wood should be whole-skinned, unbent, and unburnt. The holy threads of the three (twice-born orders) should be respectively made of cotton, silk, and woolen threads. (11)

Brahmachârins of the three twice-born orders should respectively pronounce the term "Bhavan" at the beginning, middle, and end of their (solicitations) for alms, as "Bhavan (you), be pleased to give me alms." "Be pleased, Bhavan (you), to give me alms;" and "Be pleased to give me alms, Bhavan (you). (12)

CHAPTER III.

A PRECEPTOR, having invested a pupil with the holy thread, should teach him the Vedas; a preceptor, who gives lessons in the Vedas for money, is called an Upâdhyâya. (1)

A Brahmachârin having quitted his bed early in the morning, and having bathed and performed the Homa, should accost, self-controlled, his preceptor. (2)

Then having been commanded by the preceptor, and having cast a look at his face, he should commence the study of the Vedas, with the palms of his hands blended in the manner of a Brahmánjali. (3)

Both at the commencement and close of his Vedic studies, he should pronounce the Praṇava Mantra; the study of the Védas should be carefully omitted on days of non-study marked by interdicted lunar phases and astral combinations. (4)

The eighth and fourteenth days of a fortnight, the day of the new or full moon, a solar or lunar eclipse, earth-quakes, meteor-falls, personal uncleanness incidental to the death of a Sapinda or cognate relation, peals of thunder, roarings of rain-clouds, feeling of any amative propensities, conflagrations, village-disturbances, hearing of the sounds of music are the occasions on which the study of the Védas is interdicted. (5—6)

Even having been reprimanded, he should not study the Védas in a very loud voice, nor near the side of an ant-hill, cremation ground, divine temple, or phallic emblem. (7)

A Brahmachārin should beg alms of the Bráhmaṇas alone; having been commanded by his preceptor, he, pure in body and mind, should take his meal with his face turned towards the east, on return (from his alms-taking rambles). (8)

Humble in spirit, and without arrogance, he should do only what is good and beneficial to his preceptor; having performed the evening Sandhyá and worshipped the sacred fire, he should make obeisance to his preceptor, and carry out his behests. (9—10)

He should quit his bed before his preceptor rises from his sleep, and lie down after he has slept in the night. He should forego the use of honey, meat-diet, and collyrium, and foreswear all music, dancing, S'rāddhas, calumny, envy, and female company. (11—12)

Observing perfect continence, he should wear his girdle and carry his sacred rod, and lie down, self-controlled, on the bare ground. (13)

CHAPTER IV.

(AFTER finishing the study of the Védas), a twice-born one should marry a wife, not of the same Pravara

(spiritual clanship) or Gotra (family) with him, and not in any way related to him within five degrees, on his mother's, or seven degrees, on his father's, side. (1)

The eight forms of marriage, (recognized by our Dharma S'āstras), are the Brāhma, Daiva, A'rsha, Prājāpatya, A'sura, Gandharva, Rākshasa, and Pais'ācha. (2)

Of these, the first four forms of marriage are commendible in respect of Brāhmaṇas; the Gandharva, and Rākshasa forms are commendible in respect of Kshatriyas. (3)

The form of marriage in which the bride is courtingly given away to the bridegroom, without any solicitation on his part, is called the rāhma; that, in which a girl is given in marriage to a priest officiating at a religious sacrifice in the shape of a honorarium), is called Daivam; while that, in which the bride is given away with the present of a pair of cows, is called A'rsham. (4)

The form of marriage in which the bride is given to one who solicits her hands is called the Prājāpatyam; that, in which the bride is purchased or given away for money, is called the A'suram; while that, in which the bride and the bride-groom unite, out of love, is called Gāndharvam. (5)

A marriage by capture is called A'suram; while the one effected through stratagem is called Pais'ācham. (6)

A Brāhmaṇa can marry three wives, a Kshatriya can take a couple of wives, while a Vais'ya or S'udra can marry a single wife. A Brāhmaṇa can marry a Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, or a Vais'ya girl. (7)

A Kshatriya should marry a Kshatriya, or Vais'ya girl; whereas a Vaisya or Sudra should not take a wife other than one of his own caste. (8)

Even in distress, a twice born one should not wed a S'udra girl, inasmuch as a son begotten by him on her person will never find his salvation. (9)

Even, he, who is foremost of all virtuous men, and duly celebrates the religious sacrifices and practises penitential austerities, is degraded to the status of a S'udra by having the thirteen S'rāddhas done unto him by (such) a S'udra son. (10)

The Sapiṇḍa relations whose S'rāddhas are performed (by such a S'udra son) according to the usage of the family, even if they all have conquered (attained to) the region of heaven, are degraded to the status of a S'udra. (11)

The Sapiṇḍakaraṇam S'rāddha ceremony should be celebrated (by one), after having performed the twelve monthly S'rāddhas (of one's deceased relation) in accordance with the usage of one's family ; it should not be celebrated on the advent of the thirteenth (unperformed) S'rāddha, and a S'udra is not privileged to do the same. Hence, a twice born one should carefully avoid wedding a S'udra wife. (12—13)

A Bráhmaṇa girl shall hold mendicant's cups (Vaidalé) in her hands, a Kshatriya girl shall catch hold of an arrow, and a Vais'ya girl shall handle a stick for goading cattle, at the time of wedding. (14)

She, who bears the sacred fire, is a true wife ; she, who is faithful to her lord, is a true wife ; she, who is one in spirit with her husband, is a true wife ; she, who has borne children, is a true wife. (15)

A wife should be both carressed and admonished ; both fondled and checked, a wife becomes the source of beauty and prosperity of the household, and not otherwise. (16)

CHAPTER V.

There are five places (in the house of a) householder where animal lives are daily destroyed; they are the oven, the broomstick, the grinding stone, the pestle and mortar, and the water pitcher. (1)

For the expiation of the sin (of this destruction of lives), a householder should daily celebrate the five domestic sacrifices (known as Pañcha-yajña), whereby all his sin would be extinguished. (2)

These five religious sacrifices are called Deva-yajña, Bhuta-yajña, Pitri-yajña, and Nri-yajña. (3)

A daily performance of Homa is called Deva-Yajña; a daily offering of oblations is called Bhuta-yajña, a daily performance of S'rāddhas in honour of one's departed manes, as well as offering of libations to them, is called Pitri-yajña, and practice of hospitality to chance-comers (Atithis) at one's house is called Nri-Yajña. (4)

Forest-dwelling hermits (Vānaprasthas), Brahmachāriṇs, Yatis, and Brāhmaṇas, all live on the bounties of house-holders. (5)

It is a householder that celebrates a religious sacrifice, it is he who practises penitential austerities, it is he who makes charities and practises hospitality, hence, foremost is a house-holder of all other religious orders.

As a husband is the master of his wife, as Brāhmaṇas are the lords of the social orders, so a chance-comer (Atithi) is the lord of the house-holder at whose house he arrives. (7)

By worshipping her husband alone, and not so much by dint of fasts, vigils, vows, and penances, etc., a woman can ascend to heaven. (8)

By worshipping his preceptor alone, and not so much through the merit of oblations, Homas, or fire-worship, that a Brahmachârin can attain to heaven. (9)

It is by alone abjuring his food, and not so much by dint of forbearance, resignation, and fire-worship, etc. that a Vânaprastha (forest-dwelling hermit) can attain to heaven. (10)

It is not so much by observing a vow of silence, indigence, or secluded life, as by foreswearing sexual intercourse, that a yogin can achieve success (work out his own salvation.) (11)

It is not so much by celebrating religious sacrifices, or by worshipping the sacred fire, or by paying honorariums to Brâhmaṇas, as by propitiating Atithis, that a house-holder can ascend to heaven. (12)

Hence, a house-holder should duly propitiate an Atithi, arrived at his house, by offering him food and a bed. (13)

Morning and evening, libations of clarified butte should be cast in the sacred fire ; and Homas should be duly performed on the day of the new or full moon, as well. (14)

In the event of three years' or a year's provision being stored up in his granary, a house-holder should drink lively of the effused juice of Soma, either on the occasion of a Pas'ubandha, Châturmâsyam, or any other religious sacrifice. (15)

A Brâhmaṇa of limited means should celebrate the Vais'vanari sacrifices ; but under no circumstance should he ask anything of a S'udra, but give away whatever he wishes to give away. (16)

An intelligent man should not renounce the means of his livelihood, nor discharge his ancestral priest.

An old Brāhmaṇa, pure in birth and consecrated with religious rites, with the skin of his body shrivelled and muscles of his limbs loose and flabby, should be regarded as the proper person for the office of a priest. (17)

A Brāhmaṇa should constantly cause him to celebrate religious sacrifices who is possessed of the afore-said qualifications, and earns an honest living ; a Brāhmaṇa is authorized only to receive gifts of such a person. (18)

CHAPTER VI.

A HOUSEHOLDER, when he finds that his hairs have turned grey and the skin of his body has become loose and wrinkled, and that a son has been born unto his own son, should betake himself to forest. (1)

Either having placed his wife in the custody of his sons, or having been accompanied by her to the forest, he (house-holder) should daily propitiate the fire-god and live on produce of the forest. (2)

Those articles of fare, which he would take (during his forest life), he should offer unto his departed manes, and propitiate therewith any chance-comer who may arrive at his hermitage. (3)

From a village he should procure, self-controlled, eight morsels of food, wear clotted hairs on his head, and daily study the Vedas. (4)

By the practice of Tapas, he should cause his body to be more and more lean, every day, stay in wet clothes during the winter, and pass the summer in the practice of the Panchatapas penance (which consists in sitting amidst fires on four sides and with the summer sun burning over the head). (5)

During the rainy season, he should live unsheltered under the bare expanse of heaven, and take his meals at night, or at the fourth or sixth part of the day. (6)

A self-controlled Brahmachārin, he should live a life of penance and privation in the forest, whereby a twice-born one should become a member of the Brahmās'rama. (7)

CHAPTER VII.

HAVING duly performed a religious sacrifice, and made a honorarium of all his belongings (in the forest), and having installed the sacred fire on his own self (by eating the burnt ashes of the Homa fuels,) a twice-born one should enter the order of Brahmās'ramin. (1)

After the fires had been put on in the ovens (in a village), after the pestles and mortars had been duly laid aside, after the live charcoals had been extinguished in (the houses of villages), and after the villagers had all taken their midday meal, and the village-roads become entirely unfrequented by passers, a Yati should stroll out for alms in a village. (2)

Even having returned in empty hands, he should neither be grieved nor dejected; he should live contented on what he can obtain by begging; he should never allow his rice to be cooked by another, nor take his meal in another man's house. (3)

Yatis are enjoined to use earthen vessels, or those made of gourd-skin; and it is laid down that their purification consists in simply washing them with water. (4)

Companionless, he should trudge on his journey, wearing only a girdle-cloth to cover his nudity; he should stay (for the night) wherever he may chance to arrive at the evening, and live in a solitary apartment. (5)

He should let fall his foot-steps, purified by sight (i.e., carefully observing that he does not tread on any animate being); drink water purified (filtered) through a piece of cloth, speak words purified with truth, and act what the mind approves of as good (6)

Good or bad, whatever may happen in this life, he should be equally indifferent to them all; equally unconcerned if his body is besmeared with sandal paste, or bespattered with clay and ashes. (7)

Kind to, and seeking the good of, all creatures, judging gold, stone and brick-bat as of equal value, a Yati, absorbed in the contemplation of the Infinite, acquires the highest bliss. (8)

Him, who is apathetic, from his birth, to the concerns of life and looks upon this life as a series of mental and physical pain to be borne with the greatest unconcern, the gods know as a Brhâmaṇa. (9)

He, who views this body as a reservoir of excrements, and this life, which is started with a residence in the womb, as a crowning disappointment of all cherished hopes and desires, is alone fit to be liberated. (10)

The apathetic one, who considers as purposeless and unsubstantial the incidents of this world which are to be some how borne at the best, is undoubtedly liberated from the (chain of necessary existence.) (11)

The disease germs (Doshas) in the body should be consumed with the help of Prāṇāyāma, sins with the help of the concentration of mind, delusions of the world by withholding the senses from their objects, and the ungodly qualities by dint of meditation. (12)

The practice of Prāṇāyāma consists in reciting the Gāyatri Shiras mantra with the mystic Om with inflated lungs (suppressed breath.) (13)

The controlling (concentration) of the mind is called Dhāraṇā by the knowers of reality, whereas Pratyāhara consists in withdrawing the senses from their objects. (14)

The act of witnessing the god of gods, ensconced in one's heart, by means of Yoga, is called Dhyānam (meditation); all good comes out of this Yoga. (15)

In the heart reside all the gods; all the Prāṇas are ensconced in the heart; all the luminaries (such as the sun, the moon etc.,) reside in the heart; in short every thing has its seat in the heart. (16)

Having made of the body and the Prāṇava, the two fire churners, and contemplation, the churning, see the all-pervading god situate in the heart. (17)

The sun, the moon, and the fire are ensconced in the heart. The sun and the moon are on the two sides of the heart, the fire is in their middle. The fundamental principle (Tattvam) lies in the fire, and in that principle lies ensconced the deity that suffers no decay. (18)

The griefless one, through the purification of his own soul, beholds the glory of the supreme soul, subtler than the subtlest, and larger than the largest things of the world, burning effulgent in the hearts of all. (19)

The god Vāsudēva (the all pervading deity) never becomes manifest to those, blind with the delusion of life, since it is the screen of ignorance that veils the senses of those persons. (20)

This is the eternal, original, god, both manifest and unmanifest ; this is Vishṇu, the sinless, blissful, ordainer of the universe. (21)

He dreads not death who knows, with the help of Mantras, this eternal subjectivity situate beyond the confines of Tamas (ignorance) and effulgent as the burning sun. There is no other means of salvation. (22)

The principles of earth, water, fire and ether are called the five Mahābhutas (elementals). (23)

The eyes, the ears, the skin, the tongue and the nose, these five are called the intellectual (sense) organs of the body. (24)

The wise should know sound, colour, touch, flavour, and smell, as the objects of the five above-said sense-organs. (25)

The hands, the legs, the genitals, the tongue, and the anus are the five operative organs of the body. (26)

The mind, the intellect, the Ego, and the unmanifest Prakriti, these four, should be regarded as superior and prior (in respect of time) to the above-said organs. (27)

The Purusha or the soul is the twenty-fifth category, and he is beyond all these organs, and Mahābhutas, etc., The virtuous, who know him thus, obtain salvation. (28)

This supreme self of Vishnu is holy, eternal, changeless, and beyond the principles of sound, touch, taste, or smell ; it knoweth no pain or pleasure. (29)

He whose charioteer is true knowledge, and who drives this chariot of the body by taking hold of the reins of mind, alone reaches the goal of his journey, and attains that supreme self of Vishnu. (30)

If the hundredth part of a point of hair, divided into a hundred parts, is again divided into a thousand parts, the A'tmá is subtler than a hundred the part of such a thousandth part. (31)

The unmanifest Prakriti is antecedent to Mahat (the principle of intellection), the Purusha is prior to this unmanifest Prakriti. Beyond Purusha there is none ; he is the last resource, the last category. (32)

CHAPTER VIII.

NOW I shall duly describe the mode of ceremonial ablution (Kriyá Snánam). First the cleansing of the body should be effected with earth and water. (1)

Then having dived in and out of the water, and duly performed the rite of A'chamanam, he (the bather) should invoke the sacred pools therein, of which I shall presently speak in detail. (2)

Having invoked the god Varuṇa, the worshipful lord of the oceans, he should address him as follows—"Give me the sacred pool (Tirtham), O god, for the expiation of all sin. (3)

I invoke all the sin-absolving Tirthas in this water, dost thou, out of thy graceful compassion towards me, be pleased to locate them herein. (4)

Then having made obeisance to the god Rudra and all other water-dwelling divinities who grant boons (to their suppliants), he should respectfully say, "I place myself under the protection of the deities of the water. (5)

Then having supplicated the sin-absolving, effulgent, fire-god, he should say, 'sacred and holy are the waters.' I place myself under their protection." (6)

May Rudra, Agni, Varuṇa, and the serpent destroy my sin and protect me in every way. (7)

Thereafter, the three Mantras, running as Hiranya Varṇa, etc., the four Mantras running as Jagati, etc., and those respectively beginning with S'anno Devi, S'ama A'pas, and Idamāpas Prabahatē etc., should be duly recited. (8)

The Rishis, metres, and the deities of these Mantras should be mentioned by name, and thereafter, having performed the Sanmārjana rite (ceremonial rubbing), he should recite, in a devout spirit, the Aghamarshana (sin-absolving) Suktas, (9—10)

The metre of the Aghamarshana Suktam is Anustubh, its deity is Bhāva Vritta, and its Rishi is Aghamarshana; expiation of one's sin is the purpose for which it should be recited. (11)

Then having plunged into the water, he (bather) should thrice recite the Aghamarshana Suktam, and pour water over his head by reciting the Mahā Vyāhriti Mantras. (12)

As the horse-sacrific, the king of all religious sacrifices, tends to extinguish all sin, so the Aghamarshana Suktam is sin-absolving in its effect. (13)

Having bathed in this manner, a bather should put off wet clothes and put on clean and dry ones, and mentally recite the names of sacred pools and places. (14)

One should not squeeze one's wet clothes after a bath without first offering the drippings to one's departed manes. He, who bathes in the manner above described, acquires the merit of bathing in a sacred pool. (15)

CHAPTER IX.

Now I shall describe the mode of performing the auspicious rite of A'chamanam. The region about the root of the small finger of the hand is called Kāya Tirtham. (1)

The region situate about the root (ball) of the thumb is called the Prājāpatyam Tirtham; the tips of fingers are sacred to the gods, and are, hence, called the Daiva Tirthas, while the region about the root of the index finger is called the Pitri Tirtham. (2)

A twice-born one should thrice drink water with the region of his hand, known as the Prājāpatya Tirtham, then having twice rinsed his mouth with water he should touch the apertures of his nostrils, ears, etc., (lit. the ether of these orifices) with the fingers respectively enjoined to be made use of in these cases. (3)

A Brāhmaṇa is purified by drinking as much water as is enough to moisten the region of his heart; a Kshatriya, under the circumstance, should drink a quantity of water, enough to trickle down his throat; a Vais'ya, in these cases, should drink enough (water) to moisten his palate; while a S'udra or a woman should touch his or her teeth and lips with water, while engaged in performing an A'chamanam. (4)

In a sacred place, self-controlled and with his face turned towards the north, or with his hand placed between his thighs and his face looking towards the east, or without looking at any quarter of the skies, he (the performer) should perform the rite of A'chamanam by drinking with the proper fingers, the water which is unboiled and free from froths and bubbles. (5—6)

The two eyes should be touched with the thumb and index finger united together; the ears should be touched with the thumb and the ring-finger similarly combined. (7)

Then the two shoulders should be successively touched with the thumb and the little finger combined, while the nose and the navel should be touched with all the fingers held together. (8)

Then the head should be touched with the fingers enjoined to be used (in touching the head) in connection with a rite of A'chamanam. We have heard it said that, the three draughts of water drunk by a person (in connection with A'chamanam) tend to propitiate the divine trinity of Brahmá, Vishnu, and Rudra. (9—10)

The river-goddesses, Gangá and Yamuná are pleased by one's rinsing the mouth with water, while the As'vins are pleased by one's touching the nostrils, under the circumstance. (11)

The sun and the moon are pleased by one's touching the eyes ; and the firegod and the windgod, by touching the ears, in the course of an A'chamanam. (12)

All the gods are pleased by one's touching the shoulders, while the Purusha (self) is pleased by touching the head. (13)

Without the holy thread lying on his shoulder, without the tuft of hair on his crown being duly tied up in a knot, without having washed his feet before, a person, even if he has performed an A'chamanam, should be regarded as impure. (14)

Having placed the hands out-side the thighs, or having performed the A'chamanam with turbid water, one should not be deemed as pure. (15)

Having performed the rites of A'chamanam, and Firtha-Sanmārjanam as above laid down, one should touch the water by reciting the Mantra running as,

“thou pervadest the hearts of creatures, thou runnest all through the universe, thou art the sacrifice, thou art the Vashat, thou art the light, water, nutritious sap, and nectar.” (16—17)

Then having performed another A'chamanam with his face towards the sun, he should recite the Udyutam Játavedasam, etc., Mantra, and offer a libation of water. (18)

This is the rule to be observed by twice-born ones in respect of the performance of the Sandhyá rite. The Gáyatri Mantra should be recited standing during the morning Sandhyá, while it should be repeated in a sitting posture during the evening Sandhyá. (19)

Then the sacred Mantras should be recited according to one's might; the Rishis used to long perform the Sandhyás, hence, they attained longevity. (20)

CHAPTER X.

NOW I shall enumerate the most sacred Mantras, culled from all the four Védas; men are purified by reciting these sacred Mantras, or by performing Homa and worship therewith. (1)

Sin-absolving are the Aghamarshanam Suktam, the Deva Vratam Suktam, the Suddhavati Suktam, the Kushmāndi Suktam, and the Pávamāni Suktam. (2)

Mantrah, the Satarudri Mantrah, the Atharva Siras Mantrah, the Tri Suparna, the Mahāvratam, the Go-suktam, the As'va Suktam, the Indra Suktam, the two Sāmans, the three Pushpāngadikas, the Rathan-taram, the Agni Vrata, and the Vāmadevya Mantras are purifying. By chanting these Vedic Mantras, men are absolved of their sins, and are enabled to recollect the incidents of their former births. (3—10)

CHAPTER XI.

THUS the sacred Mantras from the Vēdas have been enumerated; the Sāvitri Mantrah is the holiest of them all; nothing can excel the Aghamarshanam in respect of sanctity; the (principal) Homa should be performed with water consecrated by reciting the Aghamarshanam and the Vyāhritis. (1)

The Sāvitri Mantrah is the most sacred of all the Mantras which are used for the purposes of Japam (mental repetition). Seated on a cushion of Kus'a blades, and bearing a girdle of Kus'a (on his left shoulder) flung in the manner of an Uttariyam (upper sheet or garment,) and holding blades of Kus'a grass in his hand, with his face turned towards the east or to the sun, a votary, meditating upon the self of the deity, should tell his beads by repeating the Sāvitri Mantrah. The rosary should be strung with beads of gold, gem, or crystal, or with pearls, or with the seeds of lotus or Aksha, or with lotus petals. Meditating upon the deity, the rosary should be counted with the left-hand. The Rishi and the metre of the Mantrah should be contemplated at the out-set (before commencing the Japah). Then the Gâyatri should be recited by prefixing the Vyâhritis and suffixing the S'iras Mantra to it. The seven Mantras, such as Bhuh, Bhubah, Svah, Mahah, Janah, Tapas, and Satyam, with the Praṇava Mantra prefixed to each of them are called the Vyâhritis. The Mantra running as Apojjyotih rasomritam Brahma Bhurbhubah Svaram is called the Siro Mantrah. (2)

With the Vyâhritis and Praṇava prefixed, and the S'iro Mantra affixed, to the Gâyatri, those who recite it, do not stand in dread of any thing. (3)

That goddess (Mantrah) ten times repeated destroys the sin committed during the day; a hundred times told, she (it) extinguishes all sin, while a thousand times repeated she (it) exonerates one from the effects of sin (Pâtakas) unknowingly committed. (4)

A gold-stealer, an ungrateful person, a Brâhmaṇicide, a defiler of his superior's bed (Gurutalpaga), or a drunkard is purified by a hundred thousand times repeating the Gâyatri. (5)

Having done three Prâṇâyâmas, self controlled, while bathing, one is exonerated from the sin committed during that day and night. (6)

Having done sixteen Prâṇâyâmas, with the Vyâhriti Praṇava Mantras, one gets rid of the sin of destroying the life of a fœtus, or of that committed, each day and night, in the course of a month. (7)

The (presiding) goddess of the Gâyatri, propitiated with Homa oblations offered unto her by repeating the Gâyatri Mantrah, grants all boons to the offerer; she, kind to her forest-dwelling votaries, causes the expiation of all sin. (8)

Desiring worldly peace and tranquility, one should cast, clean in body and spirit, ten thousand libations of clarified butter in the sacred fire by each time reciting the Gāyatri; intending to ward off a premature death, one should offer similar libations of clarified butter unto the fire by repeating the same Mantrah. (9)

A seeker of personal beauty should perform the Homa with lotus flowers, and a seeker of gold with Vilva fruits (by repeating) the Gāyatri Mantrah. (10)

One, seeking the beatitudo of Brahma, should cast self controlled, as before, libations of clarified butter containing sesame seeds, in the fire; by offering ten thousand libations with the repetition of the sacred Gāyatri, one is exonerated from all sin. (11)

A sinful soul (Self) acquires its purity by performing such a hundred thousand Homas, and attains to the region of Brahma, in the full enjoyment of all its wished for objects. (12)

Gāyatri is the progenitrix of (the universe); Gāyatri is sin-absolving; nothing more purifying exists than Gāyatri either in heaven or earth. (13)

Gāyatri succours the fallen by their hands from the sea of hell; hence, clean in spirit and body, a Brāhmaṇa should constantly practise (the recitation of the sacred) Gāyatri. (14)

A constant practiser of Gāyatri (Brāhmaṇa reciter) should be feasted on the occasion of a Daiva or Pitri S'rāddha; sin standeth not in the self of such a Brāhmaṇa, as a water-drop cannot abide in the solar globe. (15)

Undoubtedly, a Brāhmaṇa can attain his end (work out his salvation) by simply reciting the Gāyatri; a

Gāyatri-reciter, whether he does any other (Brāhmaṇic) rite or not, should be regarded as a true Brāhmaṇa. (16)

A slightly audible repetition of the Gāyatri Mantrak is a hundred times, and a silent mental repetition of the same is a thousand times, more meritorious (than the one commonly made.) The Gāyatri should never be loudly recited. (17)

A man, who constantly recites the Gāyatri, goes to heaven ; the repetition of the Gāyatri should be known as the door to the liberation of Self. (18)

Hence, having bathed, (a ceremonial bather), self-controlled, should mentally recite the Gāyatri Mantrak, the purifier of all sin, in a devout spirit. (19)

CHAPTER XII.

HAVING bathed, and recited the Gāyatri, a twice-born one, looking towards the east, should propitiate the gods by offering libations of water with (fingers united in the posture known as the) Daiva Tirtham, every day ; offerings of flower and water should be made (unto them) by reciting the Purusha Suktam. Then, with his face turned towards the south and his hand placed between his thighs, and his holy thread placed on his right shoulder, he should offer libations of water to his departed manes with the Pitri Tirtham, and in accordance with the rules of a Pitri S'rāddha. He should offer three libations of water to each of his father, grand-father, great-grand father, maternal grand-father, maternal great-grand father, mother, etc. Similarly, libations of water should be offered to each of his maternal grand-mothers, etc. After that, all the dead relations on his father's or mother's side, whose names he might remember, as well as the souls of his preceptors, brothers-in-law, friends, etc., he should propitiate by offering similar libations of water unto them; the authoritative verses on the subject run as follow :—

Tarpaṇas done without sesame, Kuśa grass, Mantras and copper, silver, or golden libatory vessels, do not become agreeable to the Pitris. (1)

Libations of water, containing sesame seeds and offered unto one's Pitris with a vessel made of gold copper, or Audumvara wood, or of the horn of a rhinoceros, last them for all eternity, and bear infinite fruit. (2)

Every day, S'rāddhas should be performed in honour of one's departed manes with fruits, cooked rice, water and milk, whereby they would be pleased. (3)

He, who, after bathing, offers libations of water containing sesame seeds to his Pitris, acquires the merit of Pitri-yajna; and they become pleased with him. (4)

CHAPTER XIII.

BRA'HMANAS should not be tested in connection with the performance of a Daiva S'rāddha; they may be examined in respect of their knowledge in Vedic Suktas on the occasion of celebrating a Pitri S'rāddha. (1)

Brāhmaṇas of impious conduct, as well as those who are hypocrites, cherish cruel or killing propensities, cat-fashion, under a calm and benign exterior, or are possessed of a less or excess number of bodily appendages, should be regarded as defilers of the row of Brāhmaṇas (sitting down to a dinner on the occasion of a S'rāddha ceremony—Panktidushaka's.) (2)

Brāhmaṇas, who are hostile to their elders and preceptors, or disturb their sacred fire, or desert their parents and preceptors, should be regarded as the defilers of a row of Brāhmaṇas (Panktiduṣhakās). (3)

Brāhmaṇas, who read the Vēdas on the interdicted days of study, or are devoid of piety and cleanness, as well as those who fatten upon sustenance supplied by S'udras, should be regarded as defilers of a row of Brāhmaṇas (Panktiduṣhakās). (4)

Brāhmaṇas, who have studied the Vēdas with six subdivisions, or know a large number of Riks or Sāmans (verses), as well as those who worship the five sacred fires, and thrice cast oblations, each day, in the consecrated fire, should be regarded as the sanctifiers of a row of Brāhmaṇas (Panktipāvanās). (5)

Brāhmaṇas, issuers of Brāhma form of marriage, as well as those who give away or marry such girls in that form of marriage, should be regarded as the sanctifiers of a row of Brāhmaṇas (Panktipāvanās). (6)

Brāhmaṇas, who are well-versed in the Rik, Yajus, and Sāma Vēdas, as well as those who have studied the Atharvan, should be regarded as the sanctifiers of a row of Brāhmaṇas (Panktipāvanās). (7)

Brāhmaṇas, who constantly practise the Yoga, are erudite, and given to the contemplation of the God, and regard gold and brick-bats as of equal value, should be regarded as (Panktipāvanās). (8)

Two Brāhmaṇas should be sumptuously fed, with their faces towards the east, on the occasion of the celebration of a Daiva S'rāddha; two Brāhmaṇas, with their faces turned towards the north, should be similarly feasted on the occasion of a Pitri S'rāddha ceremony.

A single Bráhmaṇa may be fed on either of these occasions when the means of the celebrator is limited. (9)

A celebrator of extremely limited means would be purified by feeding a single Punktipāvana Bráhmaṇa. The boiled rice, etc., should be offered in places duly enjoined for the purpose, and their residue should be cast in the fire. (10)

Oblations should be offered (to the Pitris) beside the vessel of the unused residue of cooked rice (Pātrānam), in failure whereof they should be duly cast in the fire. (11)

Devoid of hurry or anger, (one) should carefully celebrate the S'rāddha ceremony (of one's ancestors), and devoutly offer cooked food to the Bráhmaṇas on the occasion. (12)

Bráhmaṇas of all orders should be variously feasted and propitiated with presents of perfumes and unguents. A host, on the occasion, should not use any article of fare or luxury, at his house, without first offering it to a Bráhmaṇa. (13)

Strong-scented or odourless flowers, as well as those which are culled from trees or plants, growing on hills or tomb stones, should not be given. (14)

Flowers of aquatic plants and of red colour, in special, as well as woollen or new cotton twists should be gifted. (15)

The threads at the end of a piece of uncut woven cloth should be rejected (for the purpose), and lamps containing clarified butter or sesame oil should be lighted on the occasion. (16)

Sticks made of resin, honey, and clarified butter should be burned, and sandalpaste mixed with pasted saffron should be given. (17)

Mushrooms, cooked meat, soup, gourds, brinjals, and Kobidāras should be avoided. (18)

Long pepper, black pepper, round bulbous roots, prepared salt, and lard should not be used on the occasion. (19)

Rājamāsha, lentil seeds, catechu, the pulse known as Koradushaka, as well as the red milky exudations of trees should not be used on the occasion of a S'rāddha ceremony. (20)

Horse Apples, Labali fruits, radishes, milk-curd, pomegranates, Kandarājas, honey, sugar, and fried barley powder should be carefully given on the occasion. (21)

Having sumptuously fed the assembled Brāhmanas with warm Pāyasa (a kind of sweet porridge, and paid honorariums to them after they have washed their mouth with water, one the celebrator of the S'rāddha) should make obeisance to and dismiss, them by following them to a certain distance from one's house. (22—23)

A Brāhmaṇa, who having been invited to a S'rāddha ceremony, or having dined on the occasion of such a celebration, that day, knows his wife, commits a great sin. (24)

A S'rāddha ceremony performed by offering oblations of Vala Sākas, bird's flesh, the flesh of a rhinoceros, or a large-scaled fish, bears infinite fruit. This is the opinion of Yama, the law-giver. (25)

CHAPTER XIV.

A GIFT, made at Gayā, Prabhāsa, Pushkara, or Prayāga, or in the forest of Naimishia, bears infinite fruit. (1)

A gift made at any of the following sacred pools or places, viz., the banks of the Yamunâ, of the Ganges, and of the Narmadâ, Amarkantaka and Gayâ, bears infinite fruit. (2)

Endless is the merit of making a gift at Benares, Kurukshetra, Bhṛigutunga, Mahâpatha, Saptâranya, or at Âsikupa. (3)

A wise man should not celebrate a S'râddha ceremony either in a Mlechchha country, or at dawn, evening or night. He should not visit even a Mlechchha country. (4)

Gifts made under the auspices of Gaja Chchhâyâ Yoga, or during a solar or lunar eclipse, as well as those made on the last day of Vaishakha or S'ravana, or when the sun enters the sign of Makara or Karkata, bear infinite fruit. (5)

The wise should perform S'râddhas on the day of the tenth phase of the moon's wane after the day of the full moon in the month of Bhâdra with oblations of honey and Pâyasa. (6)

The Pitris, propitiated with the celebration of S'râddha ceremonies, grant joy, opulence, progeny, and residence in heaven to their performers. (7)

CHAPTER XV.

O YOU, the foremost of the twice-born ones, Brâhmanas, who practise Yoga and worship the consecrated fire, should be clean after the day of the birth or death of any of their Sapinda relations. (1)

The Sapinda relationship endures up to the seventh degree of consanguinity. A Brâhmaṇa becomes unclean for ten days on the birth or death of a Sapinda relation. (2)

A Kshatriya becomes clean after twelve days, a Vais'ya becomes clean after a fortnight, and a S'udra becomes clean after a month (under the circumstances). None of these will be clean before the appointed time. (3)

On an abortion of pregnancy taking place in the family, (the Sapinda relations of the father) would remain unclean for a number of days equal to that of the months of gestation, while in connection with the death of a child, dead before cutting its teeth, the uncleanness ceases on the day of its death. (4)

The uncleanness lasts for a whole day and night on the death of a child, dead before the rite of tonsure being done unto him, while it continues for three days in respect of the death of one, dead without being invested with the holy thread. (5)

The Sapinda relations of a girl's (father) would remain unclean for three days from the date of her death, while the period of uncleanness in respect of the death of an unmarried S'udra youth of sixteen years would last for a month. His Sapinda relations would remain unclean for a month. There should be no disputing this fact. (6—7)

Uncleanness, incidental to the death of an unmarried girl who dies after menstruating in her father's house, does never abate. (8)

The period of uncleanness, incidental to the birth or death of a child begot by a man of an inferior caste on a woman of a superior one, shall never abate as far as its mother is concerned. (9)

Of two concurrent and uniform uncleanness, the prior one will extinguish the latter. Of two concurrent but disuniform ones, the former will be extinguished, after the term of the later. This is opinion of the lord of virtue (Yama). (10)

On hearing of the birth or death of one's relation in a distant country, one would remain unclean for the unexpired portion of the period of ten days, after the hearing. (11)

Having heard such a news after the expiry of ten days from the date of occurrence, one would remain unclean for that day only, while having heard it after a year, one would be pure again by a simple ablution. (12)

A man would remain unclean for three days only on the death of a son though not of his own loins, or on that of a wife living with another, or previously married by him. (13)

A man would remain unclean for three days on the death of his preceptor, maternal grand-father, or of a married daughter in his own house. (14)

A man would remain unclean for a single day on the death of the king of his country, on the birth of a son of his daughter, and on the death of his maternal uncle, or of a son or wife of his preceptor. (15)

On the death of one's maternal uncle, one would be unclean for an entire day and night, while the period of uncleanness in respect of the death of one's priest, disciple, or of a fellow student of the Vedas, is one day only. (16)

A Bráhmaṇa would remain unclean for one day, three days, six days and ten days respectively on the birth or death of a Bráhmaṇa, Kshatriya, Vais'ya or S'udra Sapinda relation of his. (17)

A Bráhmaṇa would remain unclean for six days on the birth or death of his Kshatriya Sapinda; the period of uncleanness in respect of the remaining castes being twelve days only. (18)

Members of all castes would remain unclean for ten days on the death of a Bráhmaṇa Sapinda relation. This is the ordinance of Yama. (19)

No uncleanness exists in respect of a violent death by falling from the brow of a hill, or by hanging, drowning, burning, lightning, or sword-cut, etc., as well as in connection with the death of a suicide or degraded person. (20)

A Yati, a king, a Brahmachárin, a confectioner, as well as those who are initiated, or are in the king's employ, are never disqualified by a birth or death uncleanness. (21)

A Brahmachárin partaking of the food prepared by a person affected with a birth or death uncleanness, will be unclean; he would be pure after the lapse of the period of uncleanness of the owner of such food. This is the opinion of the wise. (22)

Those, who partake of the boiled rice of an unclean person, are re-born as insects; a man gets the same caste as the man, whose boiled rice he partakes of, before dying. (23)

All religious acts to be performed in honour of one's departed manes, save giving and receiving gifts, offering oblations to Prétas, casting libations in the sacrificial fire, and studying the Védas, are interdicted during a period of uncleanness. (24)

CHAPTER XVI.

ALL earthen vessels, defiled by impure things other than bodily excrements, are purified by again burning them in fire ; under the latter condition they should be rejected and thrown away. (1—2)

Vessels made of copper, silver, or gold, and defiled by the touch of bodily excrements should be purified by melting and recasting them ; defiled by the touch of any other impure thing they should be purified by washing them with water. (3)

Articles made of copper, lead, or brass should be purified by rubbing them with any acid substance ; articles made of iron or bell-metal should be purified by rubbing them with any alkaline substance, while those made of pearls or corals should be purified by simply washing them with water. (4)

Articles made of stone or conch shells, as well as potherbs, vegetables and pulses should be purified by simply washing them with water. (5)

Sacrificial vessels, during the celebration of a religious sacrifice, should be purified by rubbing them with the palms of the hand, while those articles, defiled by the contact of hair, should be purified by washing them with warm water. (6)

Cushions, beddings, and market-sheds, anywise polluted by impure contacts, are purified by an exposure to the sun ; sacrificial vessels are purified by sprinkling water over them. (7)

A room is purified by washing it with water, the ground is instantaneously purified by washing it with water, clothes are purified by washing them with water. (8)

A large quantity of paddy, kept in a room or vessel, is purified by sprinkling it over with water; articles made of pieces of wood fastened together are purified by rubbing them with water. (9)

White mustard seeds should be purified by winnowing them with a winnow; articles made of horns or tusks of animals should be purified by rubbing them with cow-hair. The venerable Yama has enjoined that articles made of leaves, shells of fruits, or of horns, as well as milky exudations of trees, salts, treacle, Kusumbha fruits, wool, and cotton should be purified by sprinkling water over them. (10—11)

Water defiled by any impure contact should be purified by pouring it over the earth, or by keeping it in a stone vessel; water that is devoid of any offensive taste, odours, or colour is pure; the water of a running brook or river is always pure and wholesome. (12—13)

Articles of trade or merchandise spread out for show, the mouths of such animals as horses, etc., all the limbs of cows except their mouths, and domesticated cats should be regarded as always pure. (14)

The bed, wife, child, sacred thread, wearing cloth and the Kamandalu vessel of one's own are always pure as far as one's own self is concerned; belonging to others one should consider them as impure. (15)

The face of one's own wife is pure during the night, pure is the mouth of a bird perched on a tree, the mouth of a dog is pure during a hunting excursion, the mouth of a calf is pure during an act of milching. (16)

A woman becomes pure by ablution on the fourth day of her menses; for the purposes of a Daiva or Pitrya S'râddha she becomes pure on the fifth day. (17)

A man polluted by the touch of spittal or muddy water of the road, above his navel, should regain his purity by instantaneously bathing. (18)

After urination or defecation, one should rub the impure orifices of the organs concerned with earth, enough to remove the bad smell, and then wash them with water, previously lifted for the purpose. (19)

After micturition, one should twice rub the external orifice of one's urethra, and seven times the palms of his hands, with earth, and then wash them with water ; after defecation a person should twenty-one times rub the palm of his left hand, and fourteen times the palms of his both hands, with earth, and then wash them with water. (20)

After cleansing the nails, the hands should be thrice rubbed with clay ; wishing personal cleanness one should always wash one's feet with clay and water. (21)

These rules of cleanness will hold good in cases of house-holders ; Brahmachārins should doubly perform those acts of personal purification which are enjoined to be done by house-holders ; forest-dwelling hermits should do thrice as much as those done by Brahmachārins, and Yatis should do twice as much as the Vānaprasthas in these respects. Acts of personal cleansing should be done with a quantity of earth, enough to fill the three phalanges of fingers. (22—23)

CHAPTER XVII.

BATHING at morning, noon and evening, each day, living, in a thatched cottage of dry leaves, and, on roots and bulbs of the forest, wearing large clotted hairs, and lying down on bare ground in the night, he (a gold-stealer, etc.,) should enter a village for alms, proclaiming his guilt to all and sundry. For twelve years he should live this life of penance. (1—2)

A gold-stealer, a drunkard, a Brāhmanicide, or a defiler of this elder's or preceptor's bed, or a person guilty of any of the Mahâpâtakas, is purified by practising the above-said penance. (3)

The same penance should be practised for expiating the sin of killing a Kshatriya engaged in celebrating a religious sacrifice, or a Vais'ya performer of religious sacrifices, or for the purpose of extinguishing the sin of defiling a hermitage. (4)

This expiatory penance should be practised after having given false evidence, or after having killed a person taken under protection, or after having misappropriated a trust property. (5)

A custodian of the sacred fire, after having unwillingly killed a friend or a woman, or after having unknowingly effected an abortion of pregnancy, should practise this (above said) expiatory penance. (6)

For the expiation of his sin, this penance should be doubly practised by a man, who has killed a Brāhmaṇa during the observance of a vow, or a Kshatriya, who has not settled down in life as a house-holder. (7)

After having killed a Kshatriya, false to his proper duties in life, a three quarter part of the same penance should be practised for expiation; after having killed a similar Vais'ya or a woman, only a half of the penance should be practised. (8)

After having killed a S'udra, or after having known a woman during her menses, a quarter part of the same penance should be practised for expiation; (similarly,) a quarter part of the same penance should be practised for extinguishing the sin of killing a cow, or of knowing another man's wife. (9)

For a month, a wise man should continuously practise this penance after having killed any village (domesticated) animal; the term of the penance is a fortnight only in respect of killing a wild fowl or beast. (10)

A Brāhmaṇa, having killed a serpent, or a hole-dwelling or an aquatic animal, should practise the same penance for a term of seven days. (11)

Having killed a hundred invertibrate animals, or a thousand vertibrate ones, one should practise, for a year, the penance enjoined to be practised for the expiation of the sin of Brāhmaṇicide. (12)

Having destroyed the means of livelihood of a member of any particular caste, the same expiatory penance should be practised as has been laid down for atoning the sin of killing him. (13)

Having unknowingly encroached upon the land of a Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, Vais'ya, or of a S'udra, one should practise an expiatory penance with the permission of Brāhmaṇas. (14)

Having stolen a cow, goat, or horse, or water, lead or silver, one should continuously practise the above said penance for a year. (15)

Having stolen sesame seeds, paddy, cloths, arms, or raw meat, one should practise, self-controlled, the above-said penance for a half year. (16)

Having stolen hays, faggots, whey, milk, tusks of elephants, or clarified butter, one should practise the above-said penance for a month. (17)

Having stolen salt, treacle, edible roots or flowers, or articles made of them, one should practise, self-controlled, the abovesaid penance for a fortnight. (18)

Having stolen iron, pulses, cotton twists, or hydes, one should practise the above-said penance for an entire night. (19)

Having eaten an onion, garlic, or mushroom, or the flesh of a camel, elephant, ass, lizard (Godhikā), domesticated hog, or cock, or of any of the five nailed animals (such as dog etc.), or having taken wine, or human excrements, one should practise the above-said penance for a whole year. (20—21)

Golden coloured godhās, tortoises, procupines, hares, although they belong to the group of five nailed creatures, are animals whose flesh may be eaten; but having killed any of these animals, one should practise the above-said penance. (22)

Having killed a swan, crow, king-fisher, heron, parrot, crane, Madgurakay owl, Khanjirata, diver, or any such bird, or a frog or snake, one should practise the above-said penance, for a month, without the least hesitation. (23—24)

Having killed a crane, or a Sakula or Sinhatunda fish, one should practise the abovesaid penance. Of fishes the species known as Pāthina and Rohita are edible. (25)

Having killed such aquatic birds as Jālapāda (webbfooted crane), Raktapāda, Subhiskiras, etc., one should practise the abovesaid penance for a week. (26)

Pheasants, peacocks, Lāvakas, Kapinjaras, Vartakas, and Bārdhrinasas are birds, whose flesh, according to the holy Yama, may be always eaten. (27)

Having eaten the flesh of a two tusked animal, one should practise the above-said penance for a month; having eaten that of a one-tusked animal, or of an animal with unbifurcated hoofs, one should practise the above-said penance for a fortnight. (28)

Having eaten the flesh of an animal that has died a natural death, or that of one not killed in a religious sacrifice, or the flesh of a horse or buffalo, or having taken the milk of a cow or she buffalo whose calf is dead, or that has been in heat or impregnated, one should practise the above-said penance for a fortnight. (29—30)

Having taken the milk of a forbidden female animal, or an article of confectionary made thereof, or the milky exudation of any red plant which is supposed to produce ulcers, one should practise the above-said penance for seven days. (31)

Having eaten stale boiled rice, or that which has been cooked over night, as well as articles cooked with treacle, one should practise the penance for three days. (32)

All acid fluids except milk, curd, sweet saps of trees, bad whey prepared with the addition of treacle, cakes made of wheat or barley, certain preparations of milk, Kulyas, Rāja vahas, all stale articles other than those obtained as alms, as well as the meat of an animal roasted alive, should be always avoided; having knowingly consumed any of these articles one should practise the penance for a year. (33—35)

Having eaten the boiled rice cooked by a S'udra, or by a professional actor, or by a thief in prison, or by a woman without any guardian, or by a black-smith, or by a Vena (a sect of S'udras), Kira (a sect of S'udras), goldsmith, carpenter, or courtesan, or by a miserly, cruel or degraded person, or by a mercenary soldier, farmer of revenue, or wine seller, or by a person affected by a birth uncleanness, a Brāhmaṇa should practise the above-said penance for a month. Having continuously partaken of the boiled rice cooked by a S'udrā, a Brāhmaṇa should practise the above-said penance for six months. (36—39)

Having eaten the boiled rice cooked by a Vais'ya, or by a female stranger, one should practise the penance for three months; similarly having eaten that cooked by a Kshatriya, one should practise the penance for two months. (40)

Having partaken of the unused residue of a Brāhmaṇa's meal, one should practise the penance for a month; having taken water kept in a wine-basin, one should practise the penance for a fortnight. (41)

Having partaken of the unused residue of the meal of a S'udra, Vais'ya, Kshatriya, or Brāhmaṇa, one should respectively practise the penance for a month, fortnight, week, and day. (42)

An erudite person, having partaken of a meal, slightly offered, should practise the penance for a month; he, who marries before the marriage of his elder brother, the girl thus married, the person who gives her away in marriage, and the priest who officiates at the ceremony, should practise, each of them, the penance for a year. Similarly, having partaken of food previously eaten by a dog, one should practise the penance for a month. (43—44)

Having partaken of food polluted by the touch of a mouse or mongoose, or infested with flies, mosquitoes, or hairs, one should practise the penance for three days. (45)

Having eaten cakes (and the articles of confectionary known as) Sashkuli, Sanjavs, Pāyasa or Krisharā (a preparation of rice, meat, pulse, and butter), not offered to the gods, one should practise the penance for three days. (46)

A Brāhmaṇa, wounded with an Indigo twig, or bitten by a dog, or suffering from a wound caused by the bite of an unchaste woman, should practise the penance for three days. (47)

Having heated the soles of his feet over fire, or having cast any thing impure therein, or having rubbed the soles of his feet with the blades of Kusa grass, a Brāhmaṇa should practise the penance for a day. (48)

A Kshatriya, who having killed an enemy, in battle, timorously flies from the field, afraid of his own life, should continuously practise the above-said expiatory penance for an entire year; similarly, having felled down an Ashvattha tree, one should practise the same penance for a year. (49)

Having visited his wife during the day, or bathed in foul water, or seen the nudity of another man's wife, a man should practise the penance for a day. (50)

Having cast any foul substance in fire or water, or used angry words to one's preceptor, one should practise the penance for a month. (51)

Having drunk water without closely observing it, or with his left hand, a Brāhmaṇa should practise the penance for three days. (52)

He, who unequally serves viands to Bráhmaṇas seated in the same row at a dinner, should practise, for a fortnight, the penance laid down for expiating the sin of a Brahmanicide. (53)

A merchant, having used false weights in trade, and a person, having kept milk in a wine-pot, or in a salt-pot, or having sold sesame with his hands, should practise the above-said penance for expiation. (54—55)

Having angrily roared unto a Bráhmaṇa or a preceptor, one should practise, self-controlled, for a day, the above-said penance. (56)

He, who offers funeral oblations to a deceased person, inherits the property, left by him. Having inherited (the property,) he should practise the form of penance, enjoined as proper for the caste he belongs to, on the occasion. (57)

Hide not thy guilt after its commission, inasmuch as hiding increases its heinousness; having committed a sin, a wise man should undertake the proper expiatory penance. (58)

A Bráhmaṇa, living in a forest abounding in savage and furious beasts, or in hunters, or at a place where life is manifestly insecure, should not practise any penance. (59)

Continuing in life, an individual may get rid of all kinds of sin by practising penances and charities. This is what is said by the lord Yama. (60)

A (healthy) body is the source of all pieties; hence, the body should be preserved (in health) with the utmost care. Virtues well up from a healthy body, as fountains spring up from beneath a hill side. (61)

A Bráhmaṇa, having pondered over the injunctions of all the Ethical Codes, and in unanimity with other

Brāhmaṇas, should lay down the form of expiation in a given case, and never do so out of his own accord, and without consultation. (62)

CHAPTER XVIII.

EVERY day, one should thrice bathe and practise the Aghamarshanam Vratam, take an ablution in a river in the night, and forbear eating three meals. (1)

One should always sit in the posture known as the Virāsanam, and make gifts of milch cows. This is what constitutes the Aghamarshanam, the expiation for all sin. (2)

For the first three days of its observance, a vowist should eat his meal at morning; at evening, during the second three days; and eat what is obtained by begging during the next three days, and fast for the last three days of the penance. This is what constitutes the Prājāpatyam Vratam. (3)

For the first three days, a vowist should take nothing but warm water; during the next three days he should take warm clarified butter, and warm water during the next three days; and fast for the last three days of the penance. This is what constitutes a Tapta Krichchha Vratam. (4)

A Parāka Vratah consists in fasting for twelve successive days; Vārāṇa Krichchha Vratam consists in cautiously living upon a solution of fried barley-powder, for a month, according to regulation. (5—6)

The foremost of the Brāhmaṇas call one's continuous living on Vilva, A'malaka and Kapittha fruits, for a month, an Atikrichchha Vratam. (7)

A Krichchha Sântapanam Vratam consists in living on a compound of cow-dung, cow urine, cow milk cow-butter, curdled cow milk, and the washings of Kus'a blades on the first day of its observance, and in fasting on the day following; these austerities, thrice practised, constitutes a Mahâ Sântapanam Vratam. (8)

A Tulâpurusha Vratam consists in eating fried barley-powder and fasting, on alternate days, for a month; a Vârdhika Vratam, which destroys all sin, consists in] living on cow-dung, each day, for a month. (9—10)

A Chânarâyaṇam Vratam consists in one's gradually increasing and decreasing the number of morsels of food with the successive increase or waning of the lunar phases. (11)

Persons, conversant with the Mantras, should mentally recite them; and perform Homas, with their recitations, according to their capacity. This is the means of absolution laid down for sinners by the pure-hearted and the virtuous. (12)

The intelligent, who carefully peruse this S'âstram framed by the holy S'ankha, are exonerated from all sin, and are glorified in heaven. (13)

GAUTAMA SAMHITA'.

CHAPTER I.

THE Védas, and the ethical rules, observed by those, well-versed in them (Védas), are the source of virtue (morals). Even great men are (sometimes) found to transgress the moral laws and to act improperly. Through an innate weakness of the heart, the great sometimes lose sight of the true end of life. In a conflict between two equally authoritative opinions on a particular subject, one of them must be followed.

A Bráhmaṇa child should be invested with the holy thread (either) at the fifth, eighth, or ninth year of his life. The computation should be made inclusive of the period of his inter-uterine life. This rite of investiture is a second birth. Hence, he, who invests him with the thread, is his preceptor, inasmuch as it is he who teaches him the Védas. Sons of Kshatriyas, and of Vais'yas should be respectively invested with the holy thread at the age of eleven and twelve. A Bráhmaṇa child, not invested with the thread before he is sixteen, becomes degraded. Sons of Kshatriyas and of Vais'yas, not respectively invested with the holy thread before their twenty-second and twenty-fourth year, are likewise degraded. Girdles (Munjis) made of Kus'a blades, of bow-strings, and of cotton twists should be respectively used by Bráhmaṇas, Kshatriyas and Vais'yas during the ceremony of investiture; and they should respectively wear, at the time, goat-skins, or skins of antelope, or of Ruru (deer), and cloths made of hemp twists, or silk cloths, and those known as Chira Kutapas (cotton home-spuns). Cloths made of cotton-twists may be used by members of all twice-born castes on the occasion. Certain authorities aver that Bráhmaṇas should wear cloths made of twists of trees; Kshatriyas should wear cloths dyed with Manjisthā; and Vais'yas, those tinged with turmeric, on the occasion.

Rods made of Viṣṇa or Palāsha wood should be used by Bráhmaṇas; those made of Ashvathva and Pilu wood should be respectively used by Kshatriyas and Vais'yas, in connection with investiture ceremonies; or rods made of the wood of any sacrificial tree may be used by members of all the (twice-born) castes, on the occasion. The rods should be made of whole-skinned wood, and be of sufficient lengths to respectively reach the crowns, foreheads, and tips of noses of Bráhmaṇa, Kshatriya and Vais'ya infants, during the celebration of the ceremony.

A Bráhmaṇa child should shave his entire head, a Kshatriya child should wear braided hairs, and a Vais'ya child should wear a tuft of hair on the crown of his head (on the occasion of investiture with the holy thread.)

Having touched an unused residue of another's meal with an article of (fare) in one's hand, one should perform an A'chamanam, without placing that article on the ground, whereby it would be pure again. Earthen or metallic vessels, as well as articles made of wood, or of cotton twists, anywise defiled by an impure contact, should be again purified by respectively rubbing, burning, cutting, and washing them with water. The purification of gems, as well as of articles made of conch-shells or mothers of pearls, should be made, as laid down in respect of metallic pots or vessels. Earthen vessels or articles made of bones should be re-purified in the manner of wooden ones. A plot of ground should be re-purified by ploughing it. Hydes, pulses, and ropes of threads should be re-purified in the manner of clothes. Articles, which are extremely polluted, should be rejected and thrown away.

All acts of purification should be commenced by looking towards the north or to the east. Seated in a pure place, with his right hand placed between his thighs, and catching hold of his holy thread, a worker of purification should wash his hands from his elbows downward; and observing perfect silence, he should three or four times, perform the rite of A'chamanam with water, enough to trickle down into the region of his heart. Then having twice rubbed or washed his feet with water, he should touch his eyes, and the apertures of his mouth, ears, and nostrils (lit. orifices of the sense-organs situated in the superclavicular region) with water, or place wet hands over them. He should rinse his mouth with water (A'chamanam) as above laid down, after having sneezed or risen from a sleep or a meal. Any thing pricked or tucked into between the teeth, which cannot be touched with the tip of the tongue, should be regarded as pricked or tucked into between the teeth. According to certain authorities, a thing tucked between the teeth, should be considered as such until it falls off. When fallen off, it should be spitted out like saliva, and the mouth would be thereby purified. Drops of one's own spittals, falling on one's own body, do not make it impure. One's body, cleansed of the deposit of an impure substance, and free from a bad smell, should be regarded as pure. After urination or defecation, one should cleanse the external orifices of the organs concerned with earth and water, as laid down by the regulation.

A preceptor, taking hold 'of the small finger of his pupil's left hand, should address him as, "O ye, read." Then a pupil should touch his eyes, ears, and the regions of his life and intellect with a blade of Kus'a grass, fifteen times repeat the Mantra (by placing his hand over) each of these localities, and thrice practise Prāṇāyāma. Sitting on a cushion of Kus'a grass previously spread out, he should recite five or seven Vyāhritis preceded by the Prāṇava, each morning, both at the commencement and close of his Vedic study. He should formally make obeisance to his preceptor; and seated on his right, with his face turned towards the north or to the east, he should recite the Gāyatri; and the Prāṇava Mantrah (Om), after the recitation of the Gāyatri. On a dog, ichneumon, snake, frog or a cat happening to pass between him and his preceptor, at the time of reading the Vēdas, a disciple shall fast, and live apart from his preceptor, for three days. He should practise Prāṇāyāma, and live on clarified butter, on any other animal happening to pass between them. This rule should be observed after having read the Vēdas at a cremation ground.

CHAPTER II.

ACTS, conversations, and eatings, unsanctified by regulations, and committed and made by one, before one's investiture with the holy thread, do not produce any demerit, inasmuch as one is not entitled to practise Brahmacharyam, or to cast oblations in the sacred fire, before that. A person, before being invested with the holy thread, does not stand under the obligation of following the rules of purification, after attending to the calls of nature. His bodily purification consists in simply washing or sprinkling his body with water, in contradistinction to the practice of A'chamanam. He suffers no defilement by the touch of any impure substance. He should not be employed in performing a Homa, or in offering oblations to the gods. He is precluded from reciting any Vedic Mantra except on the occasion of a S'rāddha ceremony, celebrated in honor of his departed manes.

All regulations and injunctions of the Sāstras should be followed by a person from after the ceremony of his investiture with the holy thread, and since then, he should duly attend to the study of the Vēdas and to the kindling of the sacred fire, practise truthfulness, and perform the rites of A'chamanam. According to certain authorities, he may make gifts of cows since that time.

One should perform the daily *Sāndhyā*s out-side one's own room. The rite of morning Sāndhyā should be performed standing; while that of evening Sāndhyā should be performed, in perfect silence, till the appearance of the stars and planets in the heavens. One should not look at the sun; and a Brahmachārin should forego the use of honey, (cooked) meat, scents, garlands of flowers, shoes, umbrellas, vehicles of all kinds, and unguents.

He should renounce all fright, anger, greed, ignorance, music, calumny, sexual intercourse, lust, gambling, thievish or killing propensities, and the service of the mean. He should not clean his teeth, or prick his ear-holes, or stretch or screw up his legs, or sit with his chin supporting on his hand, or laugh or yawn, or contort his limbs, or twist his body, in the presence of his preceptor. He should not address the sons or wife of his preceptor by their names, and avoid using any harsh language. (A disciple) should lie down in a lower bed than that of his preceptor's, and sleep after he has slept, leaving his bed before he rises. He should curb his tongue, appetite and arms. The name of a preceptor should be always mentioned with respect. One should thus behave to all of one's elders and superiors. He should avoid (sitting on) the same bed, or seat with his preceptor, or at a place where his preceptor sits. Serving a preceptor consists in hearing his behests from a lower seat, and in meekly and faithfully carrying them out. A disciple should stand up (rise from his seat) at the sight of his preceptor, and follow him whenever he goes out. Interrogated by his preceptor, he should give true and correct answers to his queries, sit down to study whenever he may be pleased to direct him in that behalf, and do nothing but what is pleasant and beneficial to him (preceptor). Likewise he should behave to his preceptor's sons and wife. He should not eat the unused residue of the meals of his preceptor's sons and wife, nor should he press their legs, nor catch hold of them (during an act of obeisance), nor help them in bathing or decorating their persons.

According to certain authorities, a preceptor's wife happening to be young, a disciple should not touch her feet during an act of obeisance; but returning from a sojourn in a distant country, he may be allowed to catch hold of her feet.

A Vedic student is at liberty to beg alms of all and of all castes, except those who are degraded or of bad repute. While soliciting alms, Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, and Vais'ya (students) should pronounce the term "Bhavat" (you) respectively at the commencement, middle, and end of their solicitations. One should neither beg alms of one's own preceptor, nor of one's cognates, or of members of one's preceptor's family. In the event of failing to secure alms from any other person, alms may be asked of the afore-mentioned persons in the inverse order of enumeration. All articles obtained by begging, should be made over to the preceptor. After that, with the permission of his preceptor, first had and obtained, he (disciple) should sit down to his meal. In the event of the preceptor being absent from his home, articles of fare, obtained by begging, should be made over to his wife or son, or to a senior fellow-student. Silently he should eat his meal till the appetite is fully satisfied. He should rise up from his dinner just as he has taken his fill, without casting any greedy look on the food left unconsumed.

A preceptor should admonish his disciple without beating him, or inflicting any kind of corporeal punishment on him. In cases of emergency he may be chastised with a cut piece of rope, or with a bamboo twig without leaves. A king should punish a preceptor for chastising his pupil in any other way. Each Vēda should be studied, for twelve years, or until it is thoroughly mastered and understood; and a pupil should live a life of perfect Brahmacharyam during each such period of twelve years. At the close of his studies, he should pay a honorarium to his preceptor and take an ablution with the permission of the latter. A teacher is the foremost of all preceptors or superiors; according to others a mother is the highest of them all.

CHAPTER III.

CERTAIN authorities aver that a (disciple), after the close of his Vedic studies, is free to choose and adopt any of the four orders of Brahmachārin, Grihastha (Householder), Bhikshu (Mendicant friar), and Vaikhānasa (forest dwelling hermits). These orders are but the offspring of that of house-holders; inasmuch as they preclude the possibility of progeny. Of all these orders (A's'ramas) that of Brahmachārin entails the perpetual surveillance to one's preceptor. Having served the preceptor, he should recite the sacred Mantras. In the absence of the preceptor, the same honour should be given to his son, and in the absence of the latter a senior disciple of the preceptor should be duly served. In the absence of all these he should attend to the sacred fire duly consecrated by his preceptor before his death. He, who lives such a life, self-controlled, goes to the region of Brahma (after death). The order of house-holders is neither hostile to, nor incompatible with, the three aforesaid orders. A Bhikshu, who does not store up any thing for the morrow, lives a life of perfect continence, and is a man of steady habits and temperament, should go into villages for alms during the rainy season. He may obtain alms from all except the fallen and the depraved. Without giving blessings to any body, and restraining his tongue, sight and hearing, he should put on the girdle cloth only to cover his nudity. The same girdle cloth, even if it becomes extremely dirty, should neither be cleansed nor washed. He should live on fruits of trees and grains of cereals, and avoid staying two consecutive nights in a village, for alms. Either he should completely shave the hair of his head, or wear a tuft of hair on its crown. Equally indifferent to all creatures, he should refrain from destroying any life; or from showing any special kindness to any being.

A Vaikhānasa (forest-dwelling hermit) should live on fruits and edible roots of the forest; practising penitential austerities, he should kindle up the sacred fire in the month of S'rāvana. He should forego all artificial preparations of food used in villages or made by man. Firmly devoted to the propitiation of the gods, of the Pitris, and of the celestial sages, he is free to accept the hospitality of all, except the fallen and the depraved. He may live by begging under certain circumstances. He should abjure all articles of fare containing anything reared by ploughing, and refrain from entering any village whatsoever. He should wear clotted hairs and be clad in rags or skin, observing temperance in eating. Certain Achāryayas hold the order of householders (Grihastha) to be the best of all, since its benefits are witnessed, every day, (in this life):

CHAPTER IV.

A HOUSE-HOLDER should marry a wife of his own caste, younger in his years, and not previously wedded to another. A marriage should take place between parties not belonging to the same Pravara (spiritual clanship) Persons not related to each other within five degrees of consanguinity on their mother's side, or within seven degrees on their father's, or not standing to each other in the relationship of a father's Vandhu, may be joined in wed-lock.

[The form of marriage] in which a girl, bedecked with ornaments and clad in excellent clothes, is given away in marriage to an erudite man of good conduct and respectable connections, is called the Brâhma form of marriage. The form in which the bride and the bridegroom are united together with the injunction that, "both of you lead the life of viture, united in holy wedlock" is called the Prâjâpatyam.

In the A'rsham form of marriage a cow and a bullock are gifted to the bridegroom. The Daivam form of marriage consists in giving away a girl in marriage, on the sacrificial platform, to a priest officiating at a religious sacrifice. The form in which a youth, and a maiden bedecked with ornaments, are joined in wedlock, out of love, is called the Gândharvam. The form of marriage in which a bride is purchased for money, is called the A'suram. The form in which the marriage is effected by kidnapping the bride is called the Râkshasam. A marriage, which takes place owing to the bride being ravished by the bridegroom during her sleep, is called the Paishâcham. The first four forms of marriage are based on virtue, while certain authorities hold the first six forms to be so.

Sons, issues of marriages celebrated between parties of the same caste (Brâhmaṇas), between Brâhmaṇas and Kshatriya girls, and between Brâhmaṇa and Vais'ya girls, are respectively called Savarṇas, Amvashtas, Ugras, Nishâdas, Daushmantas and Pâras'avas. Similarly sons begot by men, on women, of the same castes, or of castes second and third in succession in the inverse order of enumeration, are respectively [called Sutas, Mâgadhas, Ayogavas, Kshatras, Vaidehas, and Chan-dâlas. According to others, sons begotten on Brâhmaṇa women by Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, Vais'yas and S'udras, are respectively called Brāhmaṇas, Sutas, Māgadhas, and Chāṇḍālas. Similarly, sons begot on Kshatriya women by Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, Vais'yas and S'udras, are called Murdhāvasiktas, Kshatriyas, Dhivaras, and Pukkasas. Likewise, sons begotten on the person of a Vais'ya woman by a Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, Vais'ya, or S'udra, are respectively called Bhrijjakanthas, Māhishyas, Vais'yas and Vaidehas. In the same manner, sons begotten on a S'udra woman by a Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya, Vais'ya or a S'udra are respectively designated as Paras'avas, Yavanas, Karaṇa, and S'udras. Sons begot by fathers belonging to a superior caste on mothers belong to a caste immediately, and next to immediately, inferior to their's (father's) in the order of enumeration, respectively retain their racial superiority up to the seventh and fifth generations, while sons begot by fathers belonging to an inferior caste on mothers belonging to one immediately superior, or to one next to that in superiority to, that of their's (fathers') in the inverse order of enumeration, retain their degraded status up to the fifth and seventh generations respectively. Sons begot by men of inferior castes on women of superior castes in the inverse order of enumeration are disqualified from performing any religious rites such as S'rāddhas, etc.) Sons, who are the issues of inter-marriages among S'udras of different castes, become degraded and extremely depraved. Issues of A'rsha forms of marriage sanctify their ancestors up to the third degree; those of Daiva and Prājāpatya forms purify their ancestors up to the tenth degree, while those of Brahma forms sanctify the spirits of their cognates up to the third degree both in the ascending and descending line.

CHAPTER V.

DURING the menstrual period (from the fourth to the fifteenth day after the appearance of the flow), each month, one should visit one's wife, on any day except those interdicted (by the regulations). Each day, the Védas should be studied and offerings should be made unto the gods, Pitris, men, animals and Rishis. One should offer libations of water to one's departed manes, attend to the duties of every day life, and devise means of earning money with the utmost energy (one is capable of putting forth). Studying the Védas, and offering oblations to the gods and to one's departed manes, and practising hospitalities (Manushya yajna) are acts which are included within one's household duties. Burnt offerings should be offered in the sacred fire and unto the fire-god, Dhanvantari (celestial surgeon), Vishvedevas, Prajāpati and the creator. Offerings should be made unto the presiding deities of the different quarters of the heaven in angles of a (sacrificial chamber) respectively sacred to to each of them. Offerings should be made unto the Maruts and house-hold gods at the door of a room; those unto Brahmā should be offered after entering it; those unto the water-god should be offered in a pitcher, full of water; those unto the deities of the firmament should be offered by reciting the Mantrah, "Om obeisance to firmament," while those in honour of the spirits that roam about in the night, should be offered at the advent of even tide, each day. Blessings and alms should be given after being requested to that end, or gifts should be made for any religious purpose. Gifts made to a non-Bráhmaṇa, to a Bráhmaṇa, to a S'rotriya, and to one well-versed in Védas, respectively bear ordinary, double, and a thousand times (as much) merit, (as an ordinary one), and infinite fruit. Gifts (charities) should be distributed to pupils begging alms for their preceptors, to the sick soliciting medicines, to the indigent, to persons intending to celebrate any religious sacrifice, to students, to journey men in straitened circumstances, and to those engaged in celebrating Vis'vajit sacrifices. To others asking for alms, on the border of a religious platform, should be given cooked rice. Even having promised him, a gift should not be made to an impious or wicked person. An untruth spoken by an angry, elated, frightened, agonised or a greedy person, as well as by an infant, old man, or an idiot, or by an intoxicated or insane person, constitutes no sin. (A house-holder) should first feed, in his house, the infants, old men, pregnant women, sick-folks and married girls residing in his house (Suvāsini), as well as those who cannot be persuaded to take their meals a little after and all chance comers (arrived at his house). All matters (of business) should be submitted to the deliberations of one's preceptor and father's friends, and one should act according to, and abide by, their decision on the subject. One should worship with offerings of Madhuparkas one's Ritviks, preceptors, father-in-law, and uncles, as well as a king or a S'rotriya happening to come to one's house within a year, or within that time after the celebration of a marriage or sacrificial ceremony. A seat and water (for washing his feet) should be given to a non-S'rotriya Bráhmaṇa calling at one's house, while Arghyam and water for washing his feet and some kinds of food should be given to a S'rotriya calling at one's house. Cooked rice should be given to all good men, other than professional physicians, arrived at one's house, while to men of reverse stamp should be offered grass cushions, water and seats. In the absence of all these, one should offer a hearty welcome to all persons calling at one's house. The elders and superiors should be always respected. One's equals or superiors (happening to call at one's house) should be always served with beds, seats, sleeping rooms, and unfailing attention, and one should bid them adieu by following them up to a little distance from one's house. Even those courtesies and hospitalities should be shown, to a small extent, to one's inferiors, or to small men calling at one's house). A resident of a distant village, not having any appointed place of abode in one's own village, should be treated, for a single night, with the honours of an Atithi (chance-comer). A sun-worshipper should pass the night under a tree without sharing one's hospitality as an Atithi. Peace, health, prosperity and freedom from disease should be respectively enquired into, in respect of Bráhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, Vais'yas and S'udras. A S'udra, or a degraded Bráhmaṇa can never entertain an Atithi. A degraded Bráhmaṇa invited on the occasion of a sacrificial ceremony should be served with meals after a Kshatriya. Members of all castes other than Bráhmaṇas should be complacently fed in the company of one's (Bráhmaṇa's) servants.

CHAPTER VI.

ONE should catch hold of one's preceptor's feet, every day, when first meeting him. Having returned from a distant country, a man should first fall at the feet of one considered most revered among his parents, maternal or paternal relations, elders, and preceptors happening to be present together in a company. One should make obeisance by mentioning one's name as "I am so and so." No kind of formal courtesy or obeisance need be observed or made in an assembly of fools, or among husbands and wives. Except on the occasion of starting on a distant journey, one should not catch hold of the feet of any of one's female relations except those of one's mother, aunt (father's elder brother's wife) and elder sister. One shall never make obeisance to one's mother-in-law or to the wife of one's elder brother by catching hold of her feet. One should rise up from one's seat, at the presence of a priest, father-in-law, uncle, or of a maternal uncle, younger to one's own self in years, and not make obeisance to any of them. One should not make obeisance to one's elders in years (other than Bráhmaṇas, although living in the same house or village with one's self. A Bráhmaṇa should treat a S'udra, even of full eighty years, as his own child, but a member of a superior caste, although younger in years than a S'udra, should be bowed down by the latter.

A S'udra shall not address a member of any superior caste by name, nor any body should be allowed to address the king by his name. Servants, who should not be called by their names, ought to be addressed as "O you, O you." Similarly, a S'rotriya born on the same day with an addressor, a Chāraṇa residing in the same house with him and his senior by ten years, a Kalābhara older than him by five years. a Vais'ya official, three years older than his self, an illiterate Kshatriya and an initiated disciple should be addressed as "O you, O you," and not by their names. Wealth, connections (rich friends), office, birth, deeds, knowledge and age are the factors which primarily add to the respectability of a person. Each of these preceding factors is higher than the one immediately following it in the order of enumeration. But knowledge is the highest of them all, in as much as it is the source of health and virtues. One should give way to a wheelman, to an old man, to a bride, to a Snātuka, to a king, and to one of tender years who should be protected.

CHAPTER VII.

IN times of distress a Brāhmaṇa may learn an art or a science from a non-Brāhmaṇa teacher, and he should serve and follow his preceptor until the close of his study. Among the Brahmanic offices of celebrating religious sacrifices, teaching, and receiving gifts, each preceding function is more meritorious than the one immediately following it in the order of enumeration. Failing to secure any of these offices, a Brāhmaṇa is authorized to live by the profession of a Kshatriya (military profession), in failure whereof he is at liberty to adopt the profession of a Vais'ya (trade, agriculture, and cattle rearing). A Brāhmaṇa, even if he lives by trade etc., as a Vais'ya, shall refrain from selling perfumes, sweet vegetable saps, articles of confectionary, sesame, hemp-twists, silk cloths, skins, dyed or bleached cloths, milk or its modifications, edible roots, fruit, flowers, medicines, honey, hay, flesh, water, or any unwholesome article of fare for money. Animals such as goats, cows, etc., should not be sold to a butcher, or to one who may be reasonably apprehended to kill them. Men, girls, arms and weapons, land, paddy, barley, she-goats, and lamb, etc., should never be sold. According to certain authorities bullocks, kine, castrated bulls, are not marketable commodities. One kind of vegetable sap may be sold in exchange of another kind. Similarly, animals should be exchanged for one another, and salt, confection and sesame must be exchanged for similar substances of equal weight. Cooked articles may be exchanged for raw ones, and if possible a Brāhmaṇa may deal in all kinds of metals. Members of all castes, except S'udras, failing to earn a livelihood by their respective professions, may live by trade. Several authorities hold the latter view. Even while making this interchange of caste-professions, a Brāhmaṇa should refrain from eating any article forbidden to be taken by offspring of inter-marriages among those castes. In cases where life is jeopardised a Brāhmaṇa is authorised to bear arms, and a Kshatriya to live by trade.

CHAPTER VIII.

THERE are two persons in this world whose lives are perpetual vows. The one is the king, the other is a Brāhmaṇa. Of these one having the higher knowledge is the greater. The inner (racial) instincts of the four orders of society are perishable (changeable). The (racial) lives of men of all the four orders are subject to change, aberrations, and hybridisation. Virtue consists in preserving the purity of one's native stock. He alone is called a man of varied (profound) knowledge (Vahn S'ruta) who is conversant with the Védas, Védāṅgas (subdivisions of the Védas), history, Purāṇas, literature, and laws of human nature, constantly tries to imitate (realise) the teachings of the Védas in his life, is consecrated with the forty forms of consecratory rites, is devoted to the performance of (three kinds of) acts, humble to persons suffering from the six kinds of distempers, and has conquered the six senses. Such a person, even if he has committed any delinquency, should not be punished, condemned, or banished by his king from his native country. The forty consecratory rites are Garbhādhānam, Pumsavanam, Simmantonnyanam, Jātakarṇa, Nāmakaraṇam, Annaprās'anam, Chudākaraṇam, Brahmacharyam with a view to study the four Védas, ceremonial ablutions, marriage, celebration of religious sacrifices in honor of the deities and one's departed manes, the daily practice of hospitalities to men and beasts, celebration of S'rāddha ceremonies under the auspices of the full moon in the months of S'rāvana, Agrahāyana, Chaitra, and As'vina, as well as of those known as Ashtakas, rite of depositing fuels on the sacred fire, Agnihotram, Darsā Purnamāsī (a religious sacrifice celebrated on days of the full and new moon, each month), Chaturmāsya (a religious vow observed for four months from the month of S'rāvana to that of Agrahāyana and closed with the celebration of a religious sacrifice), Nirudha Pasubandha, (a kind of Vedic sacrifice), and of Sautramnee, Agnishtoma, Uktha, Shodasi, Vājapeya, Atirātram and Aptoryama (these seven forms of Soma Yajna). The eight forms of spiritual virtues are kindness towards all creatures, forbearance, non-hostility, cleanness (of spirit), annihilation of the desire of hurting any body, doing good to all, absence of niggardliness, and apathy. Persons not consecrated with the above-said forty consecratory rites, or not possessing these eight spiritual virtues, can never attain to the region of Brahma, or hold communion with him; on the contrary, those, consecrated with most of these forty consecratory rites and possessing a major portion of these spiritual virtues, are enabled to hold communion with Brahma, and to live in the same region with that Supreme Being.

CHAPTER IX.

HAVING completed his study of the Védas, a Bráhmaṇa should duly perform a ceremonial ablution, and marry. After that, he should discharge the duties of a householder, according to the injunctions of the S'ástras, and undertake the observance of the following rules of conduct (Vratas)

He should duly bathe, each day, (according to scriptural ordinances), and nourish a clean soul in a clean body. He should use excellent perfumes, and take an ablution (in a river if possible), each day. He should forego wearing an old or dirty, or an unclean and dyed cloth, or one previously worn by another, if his means admits of such a conduct. He should not put any shoes or rosary, incapable of being re-purified, and must not grow a beard except under circumstances enjoined in the scriptures. He should not simultaneously catch hold of a water-pot and a fire (lighted substance) with his both hands, nor drink water with the united palms of his hands. Standing he should not rinse his mouth with water previously collected for the purpose. He should not perform a rite of A'chamanam with water anywise defiled by the touch of a S'udra or of any impure substance, nor with that poured out by catching hold of the water-vessel with one hand. He should not urinate or evacuate the contents of his bowels, or caste any other impure organic matter looking towards the sun, or facing the wind, or looking at a cow Bráhmaṇa, or a divine image. He should not stretch his legs towards the image of any deity, nor draw out his feces or urine with a stone. He should avoid sitting on husks, ashes, hairs, and bits of broken bones. He should not hold any conversation with a Mlechchha, or with a pariah, and must not forget to mentally recite the names of saintly persons, or to talk to a Bráhmaṇa immediately after, in the event of being forced to enter into such a conversation.

A person having no kine of his own should be addressed as Dhenuhanya (fortunate with cows), and an ungente person (Abhadra) should be accosted as "Gentleman." Skeletal bones (Kapālas) should be called Bhagālas (skulls), and a ráinbow (Indradhanu) should be called a Mani Dhanu (lit: a Gem-bow). Seeing a calf stealthily sucking the milk of its mother, one should not report the fact to her owner, nor a man should make the least delay in washing his person after a coitus, or read the Védas while sitting or lying down in that defiled bed.

Having left his bed and studied before the break of dawn, a person should not lie down again, nor a man should sexually know a woman in her menses, nor one unbedecked with ornaments, one should not even embrace a girl who has not attained her puberty, nor a woman in her menses. A fire should not be kindled by blowing with the mouth, nor one should use obscene words, nor stir abroad garlanded, or smeared with sandal paste. One should not cast even a look at a wicked person, nor sit down to a meal in the company of one's wife.

A wife should not be seen even while performing her toilette, nor a house (room) should be entered by a private door (lit: filthy passage) One should not cause his feet to be washed by another, nor eat his meal at a place of questionable safety. Swimming across a river, climbing trees or inaccessible heights, and doing things which are ordinarily supposed to imperil life, should be always condemned. One should avoid getting into a risky boat, and do one's utmost to protect one's self. One should not go out covering one's head in the day, nor uncovering it in the night. Easing one's self at an uncovered and unscreened place, or close to one's house, or over ashes or dry cow-dung, or on the road, or in the shade, is always condemnable. At morning or evening, as well as during the day, one should ease one's self by looking towards the north, and towards the south during the night. Sandals, tooth-brushes, and seats, made of Palās'a wood, should never be used.

One should not eat, sit down, lie down, welcome, or bow down (to a superior), with one's shoes on. The morning, noon, and evening should be respectively made fruitful by pursuing matters of piety, wealth, and enjoyment. Piety, wealth and enjoyment are the sources of virtue. The nudity of another man's wife should never be observed, nor seats and cushions should be dragged on with the legs. All lidity of the eyes, genitals, hands, and legs, and overloading of the stomach should be foresworn. Biting of nails or weeds, digging into the ground with toes, rubbing and twisting the limbs of the body (are acts) which should never be done. One should not leap over the tether of a bound cow or bullock, nor do any thing that brings disgrace on his family.

One should not attend the celebration of a religious sacrifice without first being elected (as a priest) to that end; but one may so attend as a mere on-looker. Eating by taking morsels of food, kept in the folds of the tugged up hem of one's wearing cloth, is bad. Pressed by one's female slave, one should not take, in the night, the combination of the articles of fare known as Chaturviriyayam. Morning and evening, a person should eat his meal without anywise condemning the food served out to him. Bathing, or sleeping without clothes, in the night, should be condemned as unwholesome. One should act, as persons of venerable age, who are the knowers of their Selves and perusers of the Védas and are likewise devoid of greed, pride and delusion, would advise one to act (on definite occasions.) For the attainment of bliss through Yoga, an individual should resort to his lord (Is'vara) and not to any other being. A spiritual preceptor, a tutelary deity, and pious men in general are called Is'varas. One should rear one's dwelling house in a country where water, Kus'a grass and garlands of flowers are obtained, and which is inhabited by a large number of A'ryas, and Brâhmanas, custodians of the consecrated fire. One should circumambulate spacious and holy divine temples, or devoutly walk along its quadrangles. These rules of conduct should be faithfully followed and observed by all till death. It is imperatively obligatory on all to be cleanly in their habits, truthful in spirit and conduct, gentle in their speech and discourse, open and straight forward in their dealings, and faithful to the teachings of the Vēdas. Those, who are charitable, loving in their hearts, amiable in disposition, firm in the discharge of their duties, and have subdued their senses, succour the souls of their parents, together with those of seven generations of their relations both in the ascending and descending lines. Snātakas, who are perpetual vowists and constant practisers of austerities, suffer no fall from the region of Brahma.

CHAPTER X.

EVERY twice-born one is entitled to prosecute the study of the Vēdas, to celebrate Vedic sacrifices, and to practise charities. Of these, teaching, celebrations of religious sacrifices, and acceptance of gifts are functions which specifically from the right of a Brāhmaṇa. A duly initiated preceptor, cognates, and friends of a Brāhmaṇa, as well as his relations, older in his years, may teach him the Vēdas in consideration of fees. Brāhmaṇas, failing to earn a living by any of the above-said means, may live by taking to agriculture, trade, or money-lending. A king has several special duties of his own in addition to those described as obligatory on people in general. They are (1) Protection of all, (2) Just punishment of the wicked according to the provisions of scriptural laws, (3) supporting Brāhmaṇas who are S'rotriyas, or do not exert themselves for any worldly gain, or are devoid of all means of earning, or are in a state of pupelage, intending to settle down as householders at the close of their study (Upakurvaṇa), (4) constant readiness and exertion for the conquest of foreign territories, (5) adoption of extreme caution during times of distress, (6) and the leading of his soldiers in battle from his war-chariot with a bow and arrow in his hands, without setting his back upon his foes. Destruction of life in war is not culpable, but a king by killing an antagonist, whose horse or charioteer has been shot dead, or whose arms and weapons have been broken or damaged, or a Brāhmaṇa, or a messenger sitting or lying down maimed at the root of a tree, or a person taken captive in war, or sitting with his hairs dishevelled, commits sin. A Kshatriya, serving under a foreign king should be allowed to do all things that can be legitimately done by his king. A victor has the sole right to booties obtained in war. Animals of conveyance and (surplus) treasures seized in war should go to the king. A king should distribute treasures (booties) other than these among his subordinates. A subject is bound to pay revenue to his king. Cultivators should pay a tenth, eighth, or a sixth part of their produce to the king as revenue. Several authorities aver that a fiftieth part of the profit on animals and gold should be paid to the king. Generally a twentieth part of the profits of trade, and a six part of that made on fruit, honey, flowers, medicines, or bulbs should go to the coffer of a king, inasmuch as a king ensures the safe possession of all these articles.

The surplus of the revenue, after defraying all the charges of a good and efficient government, should be appropriated by a king for his personal expenses. Artisans of different guilds should serve the king with their skilled labour, each month, turn and turn about, all the year round. Free workers or craftsmen, even including potters and boatmen, should thus serve their sovereign. They will be entitled to get their food only from the royal store during their term of service. Tradesmen would not pay the king's taxes in the event of their goods being sold in the market at rates lesser than their cost price. On obtaining an unclaimed good, or an article whose owner's name is not known, one should immediately inform the king of the matter; and the king shall cause a proclamation to be made within his territory, stating the description of the article thus obtained, and asking for proofs of its ownership. It shall be lawful for a king to keep such an article in his custody for a year. Failing to ascertain its real owner within that time, the king shall cause a fourth part of the value of the article to be paid over to the person who had first found it out, making over the balance to the public treasury.

All coparceners are equally entitled to a property obtained by right of inheritance, or acquired by that of sale, purchase, or gift. Only Bráhmaṇas are entitled to (unclaimed) estates originally acquired by way of a gift; Kshatrayas are solely entitled to (unclaimed) properties acquired by conquest; Vais'yas are solely entitled to unclaimed properties acquired by trade, while S'udras are solely entitled to those acquired by service.

A king shall have no right to an underground treasure found by a Bráhmaṇa; whereas the procedure to be adapted in respect of non-Brahmana finders have been set forth above. According to certain authorities a non-Bráhmaṇa is entitled to a sixth part of an underground treasure found and unearthed by him.

In a case of theft, a king shall cause the stolen article to be recovered from the thief and make it over to its rightful owner. A king shall protect the estate of an infant till he attains the age of discretion.

Vais'yas are authorised to ply on a trade or agriculture, and to rear cattle and carry on money lending, in addition to the four duties of prosecuting (Vedic) studies, celebrating religious sacrifices, and making gifts. The fourth order of society is S'udra, and Sudras are all of one caste. Even S'udras should practise forbearance, toleration, and truthfulness, and wash their hands and feet for the purposes of A'chamanam. A S'udra is competent to celebrate the S'raddha ceremonies in honour of his departed manes. A S'udra shall support his own servants, and devote himself to the services of any of the three superior social orders. A S'udra shall take his salary from his master. He shall put on the old and cast off clothes of his master, wear his old shoes, use his old umbrellas, and partake of the unused residue of his meals. Otherwise a S'udra may earn his livelihood by doing any kind of handicraft. The person, whom a S'udra might serve as his master, is bound to support him in his old age, even if he becomes incapable of doing further service. Likewise, a S'udra is bound to support his master in his old age, or if fallen on evil days. His master shall have a right to his estate, and he will be competent to order him to accept other mens' service. "Namas" (obeisance) is the only Mantra which a S'udra is competent to utter. According to several authorities; a S'udra is competent to do the Pākayajna. Members of an inferior social order should respectively serve members of superior social orders. In the absence of any distinctive function or profession, A'ryas and An-āryas are equal in status (caste)

CHAPTER XI.

A KING is the sovereign lord of all except the Brāhmaṇas: He should always do good to his subjects and speak in a sweet and majestic voice. He should be well versed in the Vēdas and science of reasoning. Pure, self controlled, full of resources and equipped with the willing service of efficient men, he should deal even handed justice to his subjects, and do what pre-eminently conduces to their good. Members of all the three social orders except Brāhmaṇas should make obeisance to a king, seated on a higher seat (than the rest of his courtiers), and even Brāhmaṇas should show him every mark of deference. A king shall lawfully protect the members of the four social orders in the due discharge of their proper duties, and walking by the path of virtue he shall make others conform to that path, and cause them to perform their respective duties in life. A king is {supposed to take a share in the virtues of his subjects. A just, erudite; eloquent, well born, handsome, elderly Brahmana of unimpeachable character, who has practised penitential austerities, should be appointed as the royal priest, and a king should do all (religious) acts according to his advice. The energy of the Kshatriyas (military vigour) backed by the energy of the Brāhmaṇas (knowledge and wisdom) leads to success. and suffers no defeat. The words of men, who have the gift of reading and foretelling dreadful natural phenomena, should be listened to with the greatest readiness. Several authorities aver that the safety and prosperity of a king solely depends upon these people (readers of unnatural phenomena). The royal Ritviks shall undertake the performance of those mystic rites, in the sacred fire chamber, that are calculated to bring peace, health, prosperity and a long life to their sovereign, and such like acts of bliss, or to kill or Jeopardise the health of his adversaries.

A king shall adjudicate the contentions of his subjects. Injunctions found in the Vedas, Vedāṅgas, Purāṇas, and customs of a country or family, and racial usages, not incompatible with those injunctions, are the factors which should determine the decision of a royal tribunal in these cases. Customs obtaining among traders, rearers of cattle, money lenders and artisans, should be respectively taken into consideration in adjudicating the contentions of these people. A king should learn all about these usages from the members of those respective guilds, and award what is found due to each in conformity with the principles of equity and good conscience. In cases of doubt, the opinions of erudite Brahmanas, well versed in the Vedas, should be consulted, and the judgment should be given according to their decision. By so doing a king shall come by good and bliss in this life. It is manifestly true that the energy of the Kshatriyas backed by that of the Brāhmaṇas forms the main stay of the regions of the celestials, Pitris and men. The creation (primary object) of punishment is for checking the miscreants and wrong-doers. Members of the four social orders, true to their respective duties in life, after having enjoyed the unenjoyed residue of the fruit of their works, are reborn as long-lived, intelligent, erudite, virtuous individuals in families of special sanctity. Those, who are false to their duties in life, are destroyed. Punishing the wrong doers, and rewarding the virtuous have been laid down by the wise, hence kings and wise men are never condemnable.

CHAPTER XII.

A KING shall cause that limb of a S'udra to be cut off with which he might have assaulted or offended a Brâhmaṇa. A S'udra, detected in the act of sexually knowing a Brâhmaṇa woman, or guilty of that offence, should be punished by cutting off his genitals. A S'udra who has robbed a Brâhmaṇa, or keeps any article belonging to a Brâhmaṇa concealed after having stolen it, may be punished with death. A king shall cause molten lead or shellac to be poured into the ear-holes of a Sudra who has willfully heard a recitation of the Vedas. Similarly, the punishment for his reciting the Vedas is the cleaving of his tongue. A fine of a hundred Panas should be realised from a S'udra striving to be equal to a Brâhmaṇa in a bed or seat, or treating a Brâhmaṇa on the road as an equal. Similarly, a fine of equal value should be realised from a Kshatriya who might have badly treated a Brâhmaṇa, whereas the fine should be doubled in cases of actual assault. For the offence of rudely treating a Brâhmaṇa, a Vais'ya should be punished with a fine of two hundred and fifty Panas. (On the other hand) for the offence of rudely handling a Kshatriya, a Brāhmaṇa should be made to pay a money penalty of fifty Panas, while his punishment for rudely behaving with a Vais'ya would be a fine of half as much amount. No Brāhmaṇa should be punished for roughly handling a S'udra. As a Brāhmaṇa is punished for doing any offensive treatment to a Kshatriya, so a Kshatriya is punished for offensively behaving with a S'udra. The offence of gold theft should be successively regarded as doubly more heinous in respect of Vaisya, Kshatriya and Brāhmaṇa stealers than that committed by a S'udra. Members of all castes should be equally punished for the offence of abusing Brahmanas. A fine of five Krishnala is the punishment for taking a small quantity of turmeric, paddy, or potherbs without the knowledge of its rightful owner. A master is liable for the mischief done by an animal owned by him, or the keeper of such an animal shall be held responsible in the event of its being lent to him for keeping. In the event of any mischief being done by a stray cattle on the road or in an unfenced field, the owner of the animal or of the field should be successively held responsible for it. An owner of a cow or a bullock shall be liable to pay a fine of five Māshās, that of a camel six Māshās, and of an ass five Māshās for any mischief done by any of these animals. An owner of a horse or of a she-buffalo shall be liable to pay a fine of ten Māshās for any mischief done by it, the penalty to be paid by an owner of a goat or a lamb, under the circumstances, being two Māshās only. A fine of a hundred Māshās should be paid by the owner of a stray animal for its destroying the whole crop of a field; money-penalty of the same amount should be paid by a man for his ommission in doing the right act, or for his commission of a wrong one. Moreover, all the money, except that found necessary for defraying the expenses of his food and clothing, should be confiscated. Hay for cattle, fuels for fire, flowers from plants and creepers, even though belonging to others, may be collected by one as one's own. Similarly, one may collect fruits from trees growing in an unfenced orchard not one's own.

Interest on money (lent) should not exceed a twentieth part thereof. According to certain authorities, interest may be charged at the rate of five Māshds per month in the event of the term of the loan being more than a year. Interest on money lent for a long period should double the amount of principal. Interest must not be charged from after a mortgaged property has been redeemed by paying off the principal, or in the event of the person of a mortgagor, intending to redeem the mortgaged property, being seized by the creditor (mortgagee). Compound interest (Chakra Vridhhi) on money lent may be allowed under certain circumstances. Personal services by a mortgagor, or enjoyment of the mesne profits of a mortgaged property may be counted as payment of interest. Interests on animals, precious stones, wool, fields, etc., should not be charged at more than five times the ordinary rate. A person holding an uninterrupted and continuous possession of a property in the face of its owner, other than an infant or an idiot, shall acquire a proprietary right therein. But such a continuous possession of a property owned by a S'rotriya, king or an itinerant Brahmachārin, or by a person of renowned virtues would not give rise to any title thereto in favour of the possessor. Any thing short of an absolute possession of animals, land.

The heirs of a person are bound to pay off his debts. But a son is not bound to discharge a debt incurred by his deceased father in his life-time for standing as a surety for another, or due by him to a wine-shop or a gambling saloon, or to his king as an unpaid tax on a trade. No unblameable person is bound to make good any food stuff, treasure, etc., held in trust by him, in the event of their being accidentally destroyed. But he is bound to make good the loss if they are destroyed through his wilful negligence.

A stealer of gold, weighing about eight Ratis, shall surrender himself to the king with a club in his hand, confessing his guilt in dishevelled hairs. He shall be exonerated of his crime, if he dies or not, after having been assaulted by the king with that club. A king commits sin by not striking the culprits hard in these cases. All forms of Bráhmaṇas are above corporeal punishment. A Bráhmaṇa, found guilty of an offence, should be deprived of his privileges, and his king shall cause his guilt to be proclaimed in the country, and banish him therefrom by branding his body with sticks of hot iron. A king, by punishing a Bráhmaṇa in any other form, shall be liable to atone for his sin.

An abettor of theft, as well as the person who receives any stolen article with a guilty knowledge, should be regarded as equally punishable as a thief. Punishments should be inflicted in consideration of the heinousness of a crime and of the bodily strength of a criminal, or otherwise according to the dictates of persons, well-versed in the Védas.

CHAPTER XIII.

IN cases of litigation, a king shall ascertain what is true and what is false from the witnesses. Even honest S'udras, devoid of all feelings of envy and partiality, and whom the king may safely trust, may be cited as witnesses. A greater preference should be attached to the statement of a Brāhmaṇa than that of a non-Brāhmaṇa (witness). Witnesses, not formally adduced to give testimony, are not bound to appear at the court, but such witnesses, (accidentally) present in the court, if interrogated by the king, must speak truth, inasmuch as truth-speaking leads to heaven, and a lie is the key to hell-door. Even non-subpœned witnesses may give testimony in cases where (summoned) witnesses have fallen ill. An intoxicated person may cite witnesses to speak in his behalf. The king, the members of a tribunal, and even witnesses present therein acquire demerit through any violation of moral laws (in the course of a legal proceeding). Non-Brāhmaṇa witnesses shall give testimony either on oath or on solemn affirmation. Their evidences should be taken in the assembly of the king and the Brāhmaṇas, or before an imaged deity. Ten generations of a witness, giving false evidence on account of (for the acquisition of) a small animal, go to hell. False testimony, given on account of a cow, horse, or a man, leads ten, thousand, ten thousand and a hundred thousand generations of the speaker to hell. By speaking falsehood for the ownership of a land one commits the same sin as is committed by killing all the animals.

Falsehood spoken for (safe-guarding) the right of water produces a sin which is similar to that spoken of for the sake of a proprietary right in land. Falsehood, spoken in connection with an act of sexual intercourse, equally soils the soul of the speaker as the two above. Falsehood, spoken on account of honey and melted butter, is equally venal as that spoken on account of a domestic animal. Falsehood, spoken for the sake of a cloth, paddy, or the Vēdas, is equally defiling as that spoken for the sake of a cow. Falsehood, spoken for the sake of a carriage or conveyance, is equally culpable as that spoken for the sake of a horse. A king shall punish a perjuring witness either with a fine or corporeal punishment. A falsehood, spoken for saving the life of a good man (falsely accused of an offence), constitutes no sin ; but such a lie for the sake of saving the life of a wicked person should never be told. A king or his judges shall adjudicate legal proceedings. In proceedings concerning wives, kine, disputes of pregnancy, recognisances should be taken for a year, and the trial should go on after that time. Matters, of which a delayed adjudication may result in loss or damage, should be peremptorily adjudicated. Truth spoken before the president of a royal tribunal (Pra'dviveka) forms the highest virtue.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE period of death-uncleanness in respect of the initiated, Ritviks and Brahmachārins, lasts for ten nights, that in respect of the cognates of a deceased relation is for eleven nights. Kshatriyas remain unclean for twelve nights, Vais'yas remain unclean for fifteen days, and S'udras remain unclean for a month under the circumstance. A death-uncleanness occurring within the term of a previous and existing one terminates with the latter. A new death-uncleanness, occurring in the small hours of the night on which a previous one would abate, lasts for another two days, while occurring on the morning of that date it lasts for three days more. The period of uncleanness incidental to the death of a person killed by a cow or a Brâhmaṇa lasts for three nights only. No death uncleanness should be observed in connection with the death of a suicide, dead by poison, hanging or drowning, or of a person dead from observing a religious fast (Prâypaveshanam), or of one killed by fire or an arrow, or in a battle, or in appeasement of a royal wrath.

The tie of Sapiṇdaship terminates either in the fifth or seventh degree of consanguinity, and rules laid down in connection with death uncleanness shall hold good of birth uncleanness as well. The period of uncleanness incidental to the occurrence of a miscarriage of pregnancy in one's family lasts for as many number of days as that of the month at which the miscarriage has taken place, the observance of which is binding only on the parents. A death or birth uncleanness, heard of after the tenth day of its occurrence, should be observed (by the hearer) for another three days. As'a-pinda relations of a dead person remain unclean for two days after his death, while a disciple, on the death of his preceptor, remains unclean for a day and night. Similarly, the period of uncleanness to be observed in connection with the death of a S'rotriya is one day only. Such an uncleanness incidental to touching or carrying a dead body is one day. S'udras and Vais'yas remain unclean for ten days by voluntarily partaking of the boiled rice of a person labouring under a death or birth uncleanness ; while Bráhmaṇas and Kshatriyas, in distress, who have partaken of the cooked rice of one defiled by a birth, or death, uncleanness, should likewise remain unclean for ten days. A man remains unclean for three days on the death of a spiritual preceptor, or of a wife or son of a spiritual preceptor, or of a Yajamāna or of a disciple. A member of a superior caste touching the dead body of a member of an inferior caste, and vice versa, should observe a period of uncleanness laid down in respect of the member of the caste of the deceased. Having touched a Chandāla, parturient woman, or a woman in her menses, or a dead body, or a person defiled by the touch of any of these persons, one should regain one's purification by bathing with one's clothes on. Likewise, a man, having followed a corpse to a cremation ground, should recover his personal purity by bathing with all his clothes on. Certain authorities hold that having touched cooked food eaten by a dog (lit : unused residue of a dog's meal) one should regain one's purity by acting as above described.

CHAPTER XV.

Now I shall discourse on the mode of celebrating S'rāddha ceremonies. Gifts should be made on the day of the new moon for the peace of the soul of one's deceased father ; similar gifts may be likewise made on the fifth days of lunar months. S'rāddhas should be performed on the receipt of articles enjoined to be used in the S'rāddha ceremonies, and on the advent of Brāhmanas, fit to be employed for the purpose at a place or country, where such performances are held as highly meritorious. The cooking and quality of the rice (to be used in connection with a S'rāddha ceremony) should be made as good as one's means would admit of. Nine or any odd number of S'rotriya Brāhmaṇas of unimpeachable character, and full of health, vigour, and personal beauty, and possessing eloquence and learning, should be feasted on the occasion of a S'rāddha ceremony. Certain authorities aver that young Brāhmaṇas should be feasted instead, and the performer of the ceremony should look upon each of them as his own father, and refrain from making friends or friendly ribaldry with them. In the absence of a son, one's Sapīṇdas, disciples, or Sapīṇdas on the mother's side, shall be competent to celebrate one's S'rāddha ceremony.

In the absence of disciples, one's priest (Ritvik) and spiritual preceptor shall be competent to perform one's S'rāddha. An offering, consisting of sesame, Māsha pulse, barley, Vrihi grain, and water, offered unto one's departed manes, gratifies their cravings (for Pīṇdas) for a month. A S'rāddha ceremony celebrated with the offerings of venison, or mutton, or with the flesh of a hare, Ruru deer, rhinoceros, or boar, in honour of one's departed manes, fills them with satisfaction for a year. A S'rāddha performed with the offerings of cow-milk, and sweet porridge (Pāyasa) fills them (with satisfaction) for a year. Offerings, consisting of the flesh of a large or black goat, or of that of a rhinoceros or Kālasāka, smeared with honey, and made unto one's departed manes, fill them with satisfaction for a period of twelve years. Thieves, eunuchs, degraded persons, athiests, *Virahās Didhisupatis† Agredidhishupatis‡ and men who act in the capacity of priests to women only, worshippers of village deities, goat-keepers, drunkards, gluttons, wicked or depraved individuals, professional false witnesses and warders should not be fed on the occasion of a S'rāddha ceremony. Similarly, persons who partake of the boiled rice prepared by Kundas,§ sellers of Soma Juice, incendiaries, poisoners, Avakirnis,|| keepers of concubines, persons who have wilfully known interdicted women, cruel men, individuals who have married before the marriage of their elder brothers, and such elder brothers, storers of grain, persons abandoned by their own people, parasites, individuals suffering from bad nails, psoriasis, purrigo and kindred cutaneous affections, professional sureties, usurers, trades-men, artisans, archers, and professional dancers, singers and musicians should not be fed in connection with celebrations of S'rāddha ceremonies. Individuals whom their fathers have reluctantly separated from the family commensality should not be likewise fed on the occasion of a S'rāddha ceremony. Several authorities aver that one's cognates and disciples should not be fed in connection with the celebration of one's S'rāddha ceremony.

* Virahas. Persons who have neglected their domestic fires.

‡ Husbands of married women whose elder sisters are still unmarried.

A performer of a S'raddha ceremony should cause to be fed that day (date of the celebration of the S'rāddha) Brāhmaṇas, possessed of more than three qualifications. A S'rāddha ceremony performed by a person, seated on the bed of a S'udra, leads to a residence of his departed manes among excrements, for a month. Hence, one should practise Brahmacharyayam on the day of the celebration of a S'rāddha ceremony. Oblations of boiled-rice looked at by a dog, Chandāla or by a degraded person (after a S'rāddha ceremony) become defiled, hence such boiled-rice should be given away or strewn over with sesame seeds. Brāhmaṇas, who are sanctifiers of rows (Pankipāvanās), guard against the soiling of such oblations. Persons, well-versed in the Vēdas with six sub-divisions, who are elderly Snātakas as well, and have a thorough knowledge of the Sāma Vēda, Trināchiketas, Trimadhus, Trisaparnas, and of Mantras and laws of virtue, and teach the Vēdas to their disciples, are called Panktipāvanās (sanctifiers of a row of Brāhmaṇas, seated down to a meal). Incompetent Brāhmaṇas should not be engaged for performing Homas. According to a certain authority such men should not be engaged in performing S'rāddhas only.

CHAPTER XVI.

OBSERVING perfect continence, and with all the hairs of his body shaved, one should read the Vēdas in the months of S'rāvana and Bhādhra, or during the five months the sun follows the southern course. One should not eat cooked meat during the time. These vows should be observed for two months or more. The Vēdas should not be studied on days when the roaring winds raise up clouds of dust from the ground, nor on nights when claps of thunder, or peals of trumpets, or sounds of drums, or barks of dogs, or brayings of asses, or howlings of jackals are heard, nor when thick mists enshroud the earth, in an unnatural season of the year, nor when purple rainbows are observed to span the firmament.

One should not study the Vēdas while attending to a call of nature. Several authorities aver that the Vēdas should not be studied on rainy evenings, nor on days or nights, when the sun or the moon is founded to be surrounded by rings of haloe, nor while seating on ant-hills. One should not study the Vēdas while in a state of fright, nor while riding a carriage, nor while seated with a leg cocked up. One should not study the Vēdas during the term of a birth or death uncleanness, nor at a cremation ground, nor by the side of a high road. Similarly, the Vēdas should not be read near a Sūdra or a Chāṇḍāla (Divakirti), not at places exhaling a fetid smell or containing carcasses. One should not study the Vēdas during the term of a birth-uncleanness, nor having had (lit : after the rising of) eructations. The Vēdas should not be read on the happening, in an unnatural season, of such physical phenomena as roarings of rain clouds, earth-quakes, meteor-falls, down-pours of rain and flashes of lightning. Likewise the Vēdas should not be read during conflagrations of fire, or on descents of thunder-bolts in unnatural seasons of the year. The Rik and Yajur Vēdas should not be read after having heard the chantings of S'áman. Similarly, roars of rain-clouds, heard in the sma'll hours of the night and before the expiry of the third watch, interdicts the study of the Védas on (the next morning). Several authorities aver that flashes of lightning seen in the morning should be likewise considered as prohibitive of the study of the Védas. No part or portion of the Védas should be read on evenings, marked by claps of thunder, or roars of rain clouds. Roars of rain clouds, heard after the mid-night, prohibit the study of the Védas on the next morning. Similarly, roars of rain clouds heard on the morning interdict the study of the Védas during the entire day. The death of the king of one's country, as well as interviews of friends on returning from a foreign country, should be regarded as instances on which the study of the Védas is prohibited. On the day on which the reading of a Véda, commenced before, is finished, all further studies should be regarded as interdicted by law. The Védas should not be studied on the occasion of a S'ráddha ceremony, or friendly feast, nor on the reader having suffered from vomiting that day. Non-study for two days has been enjoined from the day of the new moon, each month, and the Védas should not be studied on days of the full moon, in the months of Kártika, Phálguna, and A'sháda. For three nights one should refrain from studying the Védas on the advent of the three Ashtakás. According to certain authorities, such prohibition exists only in respect of the last Ashtaká. One should not study the Védas on the occasion of friendly dinners. Several authorities aver that the study of the Védas is prohibited during the first three hours and a half of each night. That portion of a Véda, which has once been studied, should not be read over again. One should refrain from studying the Vēdas in a town, nor they should be read near the performer of a S'rāddha ceremony who has not fed the Brāhmaṇas with boiled rice, nor till one can recollect them.

CHAPTER XVII.

BRAHMANAS should eat in the houses of twice-born ones, true to their proper duties in life, and boldly receive, for the performance of their Daiva and Pitri S'rāddha ceremonies, as well as for the support of their preceptors and servants, the unsolicited gifts of commendable water, barley, fruits, honey, edible roots, beds, cushions, milk, paddy, milk-curd, fish, *Priyangu*s (a kind of creeper) flowers, Kus'a grass and vegetables. Even Brāhmaṇas, who have abjured their own vocations, should receive those gifts from all except the S'udras. Brāhmaṇas may safely partake of boiled rice, belonging to the keepers of their own domestic animals, or to tillers of their own lands, or to their own paternal servants, or to hereditary friends of their families, even if such keepers of animals, tillers of lands, servants, and hereditary friends be S'udras; but they cannot eat boiled-rice belonging to S'udras, not falling under any of the foregoing categories. Boiled-rice of traders other than actual artisans may be safely partaken of by Brāhmaṇas. Boiled rice, defiled by the touch of hairs or insects, should never be eaten. Boiled rice, touched by a woman in her menses, or trampled down by a bird, or looked at by a destroyer of human fetus (procurer of abortion), or smelled by a cow, or having an offensive look, or served without any curries, salads, or milk-curd, as well as that which is stale, and twice-cooked should not be eaten. Boiled rice served without cooked edible leaves (S'akas) or saturated with unwholesome fatty matters, offensive to taste, as well as putrid meat or honey should not be eaten. Boiled rice, collected from the refuge of other men's plates, or cooked by a prostitute, or belonging to an accursed individual, or to a man of low parentage, or to one under the ban of law or punished by a royal court (of justice,) or to a carpenter, miser, hunter, captive, artisan, or a professional physician, as well as that given by one's enemy, or by an Uchchishta bhogi, or by a Brahmana, falling under the category of one supposed to defile a row of Brahmanas seated down to a dinner (Apankteya) should not be partaken of. Eating before the weaklings (of one's family) have taken their meals should be regarded as prohibited. Boiled rice, not formally dedicated to a deity, or in respect of which the rite of A'chamanam has not been performed, as well as the one which one can not leave at will, should not be eaten. Pure and impure boiled rice should not be promiscuously mixed together. Boiled rice, which has not been consecrated by having been offered unto a deity in the course of a Pujā, should not be partaken of. The milk of a parturient cow should not be used till before the expiry of ten days from the date of her parturition. Similarly, the milk of a she-goat, or of a she-buffalo should not be used till before the expiry of ten days from the date of her delivery. The milk of an ewe or of a she-camel, or of a female animal with un-bifurcated hoofs should not be used at all. The milk of a cow in heat, or of one showing inclination to be impregnated, as well as that of one whose calf is dead, should never be used. The flesh of all five-nailed animals except that of a porcupine, hare, Ghodā (a genus of large lizards) rhinoceros, or a tortoise should be rejected as unfit for human consumption. The flesh of an animal possessing two rows of teeth, or of one possessing both wool and hair, or of one with unbifurcated hoofs, as well as that of Kalavinka (sparrow), diver, crane (Chakravāka), swan, crow, vulture, hawk, or domestic cock, or of a bird whose head and legs are red, together with the flesh of a boar, cow, or bullock, should never be eaten. Boiled rice (food) not prepared for, and offered unto, a deity, as well as the flesh of an animal, not slaughtered in connection with a religious sacrifice, should never be eaten. Garlicks, tender shoots of trees, as well as milky exudations and red saps of plants or trees should be regarded as unfit for human use. The flesh of a wood-pecker, heron, Tittibha, Māndhātṛi and such like birds, as well as that of birds that fly by night, should not be eaten. The flesh of Pratudas (birds that dart upon their prey), of Vishikeras (birds that scatter their food with legs before eating), of web-footed birds, wholesome fish, as well as flesh of those enjoined to be slaughtered in connection with a religious sacrifice, or of those not killed by any poisonous beast or reptile, and wholesome flesh in general may be eaten.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A WOMAN (wife) is subservient to her lord even in respect of doing religious acts, and she should never supersede him (act independently of him) in these matters. Controlled in her speech, mind, and senses, during her menstrual period, she, after the death of her husband, should evince her desire to be the mother of a male child by her husband's younger brother. In the absence of such an uterine brother of her deceased husband, she should get herself impregnated, for giving birth to a male child, by a Sapinda or a cognate relation, standing in the same category even through ties of spiritual clanship (Rishis), or bearing her the same relationship through the female line. Under no circumstances, she should let her menstrual period pass unfruitful. The causation of the birth of a male child in the womb of a widow by any one, not related to her as her husband's younger brother (or cousin), is interdicted according to the opinion of certain authorities. A widow, under the circumstance, will not be competent to get herself more than twice impregnated by her dead husband's brother. In the absence of any express stipulation, sons, begotten on her person, shall belong to their progenitor. Sons, begotten on the field (wife) of a person, who is alive, shall belong to the legitimate husband of the wife, or they shall be regarded as belonging both to their progenitor and the husband of their mother. In fact the fathership in these cases shall belong to either of these two persons (progenitor or mother's husband) who shall maintain the children.

A wife is bound to wait for six years for a husband who is unheard of, and to go to him on hearing of him. A wife shall refrain from even talking about her husband in the event of his taking to asceticism. Similarly, a Bráhmaṇa shall wait for twelve years, or for six years, according to several authorities, for an elder brother, considered in the relationship of fellow students of the Vēdas, in matters of keeping the sacred fire, or of marrying his daughters, etc.

After her three successive menstrual periods, an unmarried girl, happened to be not given away in marriage by her father or paternal kinsmen, shall renounce the ornaments given her by her parents, and shall be competent thereafter to marry a commendable bride-groom in express defiance of her father, or father's friends. A girl should be given in marriage before she menstruates, and her guardians commit sin by not marrying her before that time. According to certain authorities, a daughter should be married before leaving her age of girlhood.

Money (gifts) may be taken from S'udras for the purpose of celebrating a nuptial or sacrificial ceremony. For other acts as well, money gifts may be received from S'udras, possessing a large number of cattle, from Brāhmaṇas, not keepers of the sacred fire, who are respectively masters of a hundred heads of cattle and are given to low pursuits, and from Somapas, who are respectively masters of a thousand heads of cattle. Articles of fare should be taken by one from persons of noble pursuit, in the event of one remaining without food up to the seventh part of the day. Every body is duly bound to speak the truth to his sovereign. A king is bound to support Brāhmaṇas of good conduct who are well-versed in the Vēdas, in the event of their practice of virtues: being interfered with by thoughts of maintenance; otherwise he shall acquire demerit.

CHAPTER XIX.

DUTIES appertaining to (different) castes and orders of society have been described. Now I shall describe the acts by doing which a person becomes sinful. Now we shall discuss about the necessity of (atoning for the sin of) officiating as priests at the religious sacrifices of those who should not be thus served, of eating interdicted articles of fare, of omitting to do the proper acts, of speaking falsehood or that which should not be spoken, and of enjoying forbidden things. Several authorities aver that atonement is of no avail, since (our) acts are indestructible; while others opine that atonement (Prāyaschittam) is necessary. The Vedic aphorism that "by performing an Agnishtoma sacrifice over again, one gets progeny" predicates the necessity of one's making atonement for one's sin, "A vow-breaker, or a person not initiated with the holy thread (Vratya) becomes absolved of his sin by celebrating an Agnishtoma sacrifice." "A Bráhmicide is exonerated from his sin by celebrating a horse-sacrifice." A penitent should be caused to celebrate an Agnishtuta sacrifice." These Vedic aphorisms emphatically demonstrate the necessity of atoning for one's sin. For the expiation of his sin, a sinner should practise penitential austerities, observe fasts, practise charities, perform Homas, and read the Upanishads, the Vedānta, the Samhitās forming the sub-divisions of the Védas, and the Madhuvāta, Aghamarshanam, Atharvas'iras, Rudra'dhyāyam, Purusha-Sūktam, Rajan-Rahin Sāman, Rathāntaram, Purushagatim, Mahāndāmnim, Mahā-Vairājam, Mahādivākirtiyam, Mahishyavamānam, Kushmāndam, Pa'vamānim, Sāvitrīm, and any of the Yeshtya Sāma Mantras. One's sins may be absolved by one's living simply on water, by abjuring all food except leaves of edible plants or trees, by living only on barley diet, by licking gold, by drinking melted butter or Soma-Juice, or by eating only fruits.

A pilgrimage to any of the sacred pools or rivers, or a sojourn to a hermitage, mountain, or pasturage is purifying in its effect. Observance of perfect continence, truthfulness, touching of water, fasting and lying down on the ground in wet cloths, are what constitute Tapasyā. Gifts of gold, cows, clothes, horses, lands, sesame seeds, melted butter, and food should be made. Twelve months, six months, four months, three months, two months, one month, or twenty-four days, twelve days, six days, three days, or one entire day and night should be respectively understood as terms of penitential penances. Any of the aforesaid measures of atonement should be adopted according to the nature of the place at which a person atones for his guilt. The austerity of these penances should be proportionate to the heinousness of one's sin. The practice of a Krichchham, Ati-krichchham, Krichchhāti-krichchham, or Chāndrāyaṇam penance should be regarded as a sufficient atonement for all kinds of sin.

CHAPTER XX.

SINNERS, after suffering torments at sixty four different places of torture, are respectively reborn with the following physical deformities, or diseases. A Brahmanicide is reborn as a phagedenic leper, a drunkard is reborn with black teeth, and a defiler of his preceptor's bed is reborn as a congenital blind or maimed person. A gold-stealer suffers from bad nails at his next incarnation, a cloth-stealer is punished with psoriasis, a fire-stealer is punished with ring-like patches of eruptions on his skin, an oil-stealer is punished with pthisis, a gold-stealer is afflicted with ring-worm, a stealer of edible things is afflicted with indigestion, and a knowledge-stealer is punished with dumbness at their next birth. A man who kills his own preceptor is tormented with epileptic fits at his next incarnation. A cow-killer is reborn as a blind individual, a tell-tale is reborn as one with putrid nose, and a poisoner of other men's ears is tormented with fetour in his mouth at his next birth. A teacher of S'udra students is reborn as a Chandāla. A seller of lead, of brass, or of Chowries is afflicted with the vice of drunkenness at his next rebirth. A seller of animals with unbifurcated hoops is sure to be born in the womb of a female huntress at his next incarnation. A partaker of a Kundā's boiled rice is reborn in a family of menial servants. An astronomer suffers from tumours at his next birth, an atheist is reborn as a professional actor, an eater of interdicted articles of fare is tormented with boils and tumours at his next birth, a guide to a stealer of men or of the Vēdas is reborn as an eunuch, and a carnal knower of a cow, or of a Chandāli or Pukkasi woman is afflicted with diabetes at his next birth. A husband, who induces his own virtuous wife to lie with another man, is reborn as a blind individual. A person who carnally knows a courtesan or a woman of his own Gotra, as well as he who holds incest with his own father's or mother's sister, is successively reborn as a haunch back, dwarf, insane, diseased, deformed, indigent, short-lived, foolish, irascible, worthless, thievish, carrying out other men's behests, bald-pated, and miscreant person in low and vulgar families. Hence one should atone for one's sin. Atonement preserves one's virtues intact and helps one to be reborn with commendable attributes and physical traits.

CHAPTER XXI.

A MAN should renounce a father who is a regicide, or an insulter of the Vēdas, or attends on S'udras as a priest, or procures abortions. Teachers and marriage-relations of a man, who mixes freely with S'udra men and women of Antyāvashyīn class, should assemble together to interdict the offering of libations of water unto his spirit, after death. No funeral rites should be done unto him after his death, and the vessels to be used in the course of this interdicting rite should be of a defiling character. Slaves or servants should be sent to a town for fetching such polluted vessels. Then a slave girl should be ordered to fetch a pitcher full of water, and the man to be interdicted should be caused to stand with his legs apart, and with his face turned towards the south. Then the congregated persons shall loudly utter, "let us interdict the offering of libations of water unto this man." So saying they will mention the name of the interdicted individual and catch hold of one another's arms. His teachers and marriage relations, after having performed A'chamanam in the manner of Prāchināvali, shall cast a look at his face and enter the village by a separate path.

He, who unknowingly speaks to such a person after the ceremony of formal interdiction, should regain his purity by repeating the Sāvitrī Mantra for a whole night in a standing posture, while having knowingly conversed with him, he should repeat standing the Sāvitrī Mantram for three consecutive nights. In the event of his agreeing to do the necessary expiating penance, a golden pitcher should be caused to be filled with the water of a holy lake, and the interdicted person should be sprinkled over with water out of that. After that, the same pitcher should be successively made over to, and taken back from, the penitent, and the attending priest should recite the S'ántam Dau, S'ántā Prithivi, etc., Mantram from the Yajur Véda. After that, libations of melted butter should be cast in the sacred fire by reciting the Pávamānim, Taratsamandī and Kushmāndī Mantras. As an alternative gold should be gifted to a Bráhmaṇa and a cow to an A'chārya. He, in respect of whom expiation by death has been laid down, should do the proper penance and atone for his sin with his life. All funeral rites should be duly done unto his spirit after his death. Sprinkling of bliss-giving water over the penitent is laid down in respect of all minor delinquencies.

CHAPTER XXII.

BRAHMINICIDES, drunkards, men who defile the bed of their own Gurus, as well as persons who carnally know any female relations on their father's or mother's side, atheists, miscreants, and men, who do not renounce the degraded or keep their company, should be regarded as degraded persons.

Those, who associate with these (degraded) persons for a year, become themselves degraded. Degradation or fall in these instances means deprivation of the rights and privileges of a Brāhmaṇa, and a degraded status in the next world. According to certain authorities. "Degradation" spells as hell. Manu has not included the first three of these heinous sins regarding woman within his list of sinful acts. Several authorities aver that a procurer of abortions, even if he does not defile the bed of his preceptor, should be regarded as a Mahāpātakin. A woman, by carnally knowing a man, inferior to her in caste, becomes degraded. Bearing false witness, malice shown towards one's own king, and speaking falsehood to one's preceptor, should be regarded as acts equal to Mahāpātakas in their atrociousness. Of Brāhmaṇas who are not competent to sit in the same row with other good Brāhmaṇas (Apankteyas), beef eaters, denouncers of the Vēdas, Avakirṇas and those who have renounced the use of vedic Mantras or of the sacred Gāyatri, should be regarded as Upapātakins (minor sinners) Ritviks or teachers, attending as priests at any religious ceremony undertaken by any of these individuals, or giving instructions to any of them in scriptural knowledge, should be looked down upon by the society, and they should be held as degraded under certain circumstances. According to certain authorities, people who receive gifts from any of these people should be regarded as degraded. But no sin appertains to parents in receiving gifts from degraded sons, but degraded sons are disqualified from inheriting properties coming down from their parents. By falsely calumniating a Brāhmaṇa in society, one becomes equally degraded (as any of the aforementioned persons). By casting a false obloquy upon an innocent Brāhmaṇa, one acquires twice as much demerit as a calumniator of the foregoing type. A capable man that looks with indifference at the oppression of a weak person by a strong one, when he can fully succour such a distressed person, becomes doubly sinful. For rudely attacking or insulting a Bráhmana, one is punished with a residence for a hundred years in hell. By thus assaulting a Bráhmana one resides for a thousand years in hell. By drawing blood on his person one resides in hell for as many number of years as the number of dusts with which he dusts his wound.

CHAPTER XXIII.

A BRAHMANICIDE, without in any way covering or shielding his body, shall thrice pass through a blazing fire, or shall make himself the target of a soldier in battle, or shall roam about begging for twelve years in the garb of a Brahmacharin, carrying a Khattānga (club) and a human skull in his hands, confessing his guilt to the world. He shall turn away from the sight of an A'rya. A Bráhmanicide, by duly performing three ablutions, and by practising the A'sanas (postures of Yoga) at morning, noon, and evening, each day, shall perform the rite of A'chamanam, whereby he will regain his personal purity. As an alternative he shall thrice combat with a man, who has stolen all the possessions of a Bráhmana, for the recovery thereof; and he shall be adjudged pure even if he dies in his attempt at recovering the goods of such a Bráhmana; or under the circumstance, he shall give to a Bráhmana that much money for the loss of which he contemplates to put an end to his life. A king, having killed a Bráhmana, should regain his personal purity by performing an Avabhritha ablution after the celebration of a horse-sacrifice, or he should perform any other Agnistut sacrifice by way of atonement. Having killed a woman in her menses or a pregnant woman in whom signs of pregnancy have not been fully patent, one should practise the foregoing kind of expiatory penance. A Brāhmaṇa, having killed a Kṣatriya, should practise, for six years, the most austere of penances, and at the close of that he should make the gift of a bullock and a thousand kine. Having killed a Vais'ya, he should practise, for three years, the same austerities, and make the gift of a bullock and a hundred kine. Having killed a Sūdra, a Brāhmaṇa should practise, for a year, the same austere Brahmacharyayam, and make the gift of a bullock together with ten cows. The same expiatory penance should be practised for atoning the sin of killing a cow or a woman who has not menstruated.

Having killed a frog, ichneumon crow, she-mouse, or a hole-dwelling animal, one should practise the same expiatory penance as laid down in respect of atoning the sin of a Vais'ya-killing. Having killed a thousand of such vertebrate animals as lizards etc., or a cart-load of such invertebrate vermins as bugs, leeches, lice, etc., one should practise the same expiatory penance as the foregoing one. As an alternative a small gift should be made to a Brāhmaṇa for each animal destroyed. Having killed a eunuch, or a man with rudimentary (undeveloped) genitals, one should make the gift of a Palāla weight of lead and Māsha pulse to a Brāhmaṇa. Having killed a boar, one should make the gift of a pitcherful of clarified butter to a Brāhmaṇa. Having killed a serpent, one should make the gift of an iron rod to a Brāhmaṇa. Having killed a Brahmavandhu (nominal Brāhmaṇa) woman, one should make the gift of an animal to a Bráhmaṇa, whereas no such expiatory gifts should be made after having killed a Venujivin (one who lives by making bamboo-made articles). Having committed homicides out of greed for wealth, food, or beddings, one should practise Brahmacharyayam for a couple of years for each act of man-killing. Having killed an individual, attached to another man's wife, one should practise Brahmacharyayam for three years in succession. Having picked up an article belonging to a S'rotriya, one should return it to its owner, or renounce its possession. Having uttered a thousand words] in combination with an interdicted Mantra, one should perform an Agnyutsáde or Nirákriti penance, which is the atonement for all Upapátakas (minor sins). A false wife should be kept imprisoned in a room, on an allowance of daily sustenance. Having held incest with a female beast, other than a cow, one should recite the Kushmānda Mantram, and perform a Homa with libations of melted butter.

CHAPTER XXIV.

HOT wine should be poured into the mouth of a Bráhmaṇa, addicted to wine, until he dies ; such a death is the only atonement for his sin. Having unknowingly taken wine, a Bráhmaṇa should practise a Tapta-krichchham penance by living for three days on each of the following substances, vis., milk, melted butter, water and air ; and after that, he should be again initiated with the thread. Having eaten any excrementitious matter, or semen, or the flesh of a camel, ass, domesticated pig or cock, or of a wild beast, or having smelled the smell of wine coming out of the mouth of a drunkard, one should live on melted butter (for a day) and practise Prāṇāyāma. The same expiatory penance should be practised for taking anything bitten by any of the foregoing animals. A man, who has defiled the bed of his elder or preceptor, should lie down on a red-hot bed of iron, or he should be made to embrace a hot iron image of a female, or he should cut his genitals, and holding them in his united palms, should walk towards the south-west quarter, until he drops down dead from bleeding. Such a death absolves him of his sin. This penance should be likewise practised by one after having carnally known one's son's wife, or the wife of a friend, disciple or cognate, or after having held incest with a cow. According to several authorities, the atonement in these cases is same as what has been laid down in respect of an Avakirni. A woman of a superior caste, having been found guilty of illicit intercourse with a man of an inferior caste, the king of the country shall cause her to be torn alive by dogs at a public place, or the guilty man should be dealt with in the same manner. An Avakirni (vow-breaker) should worship the deity Nirṛiti at a crossing of two roads by sacrificing an ass; then clad in the skin of that ass from the surface of which hairs have not been removed and carrying a red alms-bowl, he should live by daily begging alms at the doors of seven men, confessing his guilt to the world, all the time. After thus living for a year, he should be judged pure again. An emission of one's semen during sleep, or out of fright, or on account of a disease should be atoned for by begging for seven days in the manner of an Agnidhan, and by performing a Homa with libations of melted butter. An act of masturbation should be atoned for in the two following ways. Observing perfect continence, a masturbator should stand up from sunrise to sunset and take a single meal, each day, and mentally repeat the Gāyatri mantra; all night long. Having seen any impure thing, one should look at the sun and practise a Prāṇāyama. Having eaten any impure or interdicted article of fare, one should take a good purgative, and after the cleansing of his stomach he should fast for three days; or without striving to come by any food he should live on ripe fruits, just of themselves fallen [from trees], and before they are siezed by any five-nailed animal.

After vomitting, one should drink clarified butter. Having used any angry word, or behaved falsely and maliciously to any body, one should practise severe austerities, for three days. Having spoken a falsehood, one should perform a Homa by reciting the Vāruṇi, Pāvamāni Mantram. Certain authorities aver that, a lie is no lie if spoken for bringing about a matrimonial alliance, or the union of a man and a woman. But the slightest false-hood should not be spoken to a preceptor, inasmuch as a small lie in such a case leads the seven generations of the speaker to hell. For one year a Krichcha Vratam penance should be practised for atoning the sin of one's going unto an Antyāvasāya woman. An unwitting intercourse, under the circumstance, calls for a practice of the same penance for twelve days. Having visited a woman in her menses, one should practise a Krichchha Vratam, for three days.

CHAPTER XXV.

A PERSON, who has got no notoriety as a sinner, should practise an expiatory 'penance in secret. Having received the gift of an interdicted article, or having felt a desire for accepting such a gift, one should recite, standing in water, the four Riks beginning as Tarat Samandi, etc. Having felt a desire for eating an interdicted article of fare, one should make a gift of land. Having visited a woman in her menses, a man should recover his purity by simply bathing. Several authorities aver that, the penitent, under the circumstance, should live on milk regimen, for ten days, or live on simple water for two or three days. A procurer of abortions should take a light meal in the forepart of the day, and then clad in wet clothes, should perform a Homa, saying that, "I offer oblations unto hairs, nails, skin, flesh, blood, ligaments and bones (of the destroyed fetus) and unto the mouth of death and myself." According to several authorities, drunkards, Brāhmanicides, gold-stealers and defilers of their preceptors' beds should perform a Mahā Vyāhriti Homa by reciting the Mantra, "extinguish my sin, O fire," or by casting libations of melted butter in the sacrificial fire by reciting the Kushmānda Mantram, or practise the afore-said expiatory penance, or practise Prāṇdyāma, and thereafter bathe and recite the Aghamarshanam Suktam. The last named measure is equally purifying as an Avabhritha ablution made after the celebration of a horse-sacrifice. As an alternative, those individuals (drunkards, etc.) should recite the Gāyatri a thousand times. Sunk in water, a sinner should thrice repeat the Aghamarshanam Suktam, which tends to extinguish all sin.

CHAPTER XXVI.

THEN they discoursed on the places where the different portions of the vow of an Avakirni merge in after the vow is broken. The vital energy of an Avakirni merges itself in the Maruts, his strength enters the self of Indra, his Bráhmaṇic] energy resorts to Vrihaspati, and the rest lie concealed in Agni. Hence he should install the sacred fire on the night of the new moon, and cast libations of clarified butter in it by way of expiation (saying as follows):—"Out of lust I have broken this vow, out of lust I have carnally known a woman while practising Brahmacharyayam, (lit. become an Avakirni) I offer these libations unto Kāma-Kāma, I was overwhelmed, [by lust, my reason was overclouded. I offer these libations of melted butter unto Kāma-Kāma. Passion got the upper-hand of my soul, I was overwhelmed, I offer these libations of melted butter unto Kāma-Kāma. He should lay down the sacrificial twigs by reciting these Mantras, and having sprinkled water over them, he should construct the sacrificial platform (lit. places) and stand by it. Then he should thrice recite the Rik, running as Sanmāsinchatu. Then having recited the Rik, (commencing as) Traya Imē Lakṣa (These three regions) he should regain his purity and religious privileges through the purity and privileges of every one residing therein. Thus one should perform the Homa, and thus these Mantras should be recited, after which a cow should be gifted to a Bráhmaṇa. This penance should be likewise practised by one who has acted in a crooked or miserly way, or has done any of the interdicted acts, or has eaten any of the interdicted food. Having cast one's seed in a S'udra woman, or having eaten any interdicted food, one should take an ablution by reciting the Vāraṇi Mantra or any other sacred Mantra of the Vēdas. Having sinned with tongue or mind, one should, after reading the five Maha Vyāhritis in the morning, read the Sarva Svāpo Va'cha, etc., and the Rik running as Ratris'cha Ma' Varuṇas'cha, etc., in the evening, or perform a Homa by casting eight sacrificial twigs in the fire with the recitation of Devākritisya, etc., Mantra ; whereby one would be absolved of all sin.

CHAPTER XXVII.

NOW I shall dicourse on the mode of practising the Krichchha (most austere) penances. Take a Havishya meal in the morning on the first day, then fast for three successive days. After that, take a single meal at night and do this for three successive nights, then for three days live on what is obtained without solicitation, and after that fast, for three days more. A penitent shall remain standing in days, and pass the nights sitting, during the entire term of the penance. He shall content himself with little, speak nothing but perfect truth, abjure the company of the uncivilised (Ana'ryas) and use the skin of a Ruru or Yaudha deer. At each bath he should consecrate and touch the water by reciting the A'pohishtā Mantra and thereafter perform the Tarpanam by offering libations of water to the following deities, as obeisance to Homa, to Mohama, and to the bow-wielding one (Pināka-hasta), etc. These Mantras should be likewise used in connection with rites of Homa and Suryopasthānam (invocation of the sun). Then after the expiry of twelve days, penitent shall cause the sacrificial porridge (Charu) to be cooked, and perform a Homa by offering oblations of that Charu to several deities. The Mantras to be recited at the time of offering these oblations are, "obeisance to Agni, obeisance to Soma, obeisance to Agni and Soma, obeisance to Agni and Indra, obeisance to Indra, obeisance to Vishvadevas, obeisance to Bráhmaṇ, obeisance to Prajāpati, obeisance to Agni, and obeisance to Svishtikṛit. After that, he should perform the rite of Brahma-tarpanam. By this we have described the process of practising the severest form of expiatory penances and austerities.

The second form of practising a Krichchha Vratam, consists in one's living on articles, obtained without begging or solicitation. The third form consists in living on water. By practising the first form of penance one becomes pure, holy and competent to perform religious rites. A practice of the second form extinguishes all forms of sin, except the Mahāpātakas, whereas that of one of the third form grants absolute absolution. A practice of any of these three forms of expiatory penances ranks equal in merit with an ablution made after the study of all the Vēdas. He, who is cognisant of this fact, becomes favoured of the gods.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Now I shall describe the process of practising Chāndráyaṇam. Rules to be observed in practising this penance have been already set forth. In the Krichchha form of Chāndráyaṇam, a penitent should have his head cleanly shaved, and observe a fast on the day of the full moon. The rites of Tarpanam, A'jya-Homa (Homa done with libations of melted butter), consecration of the clarified butter and invocation of the moon, should be done by reciting the Mantra, running as Apydyasva Sante, etc. Libations of clarified butter, should be cast in the sacred fire by reciting the four Mantras running as Yaddevādevahelanam, etc. Then a Homa should be performed by casting twigs of sacrificial trees in the fire with the accompaniment of Deva Kritārtha, etc., Mantra. The morsels of food should be consecrated by reciting the Om, Bhur, bhuvah, Svastapah Satyam Yas'ah Srirupam Giraujastejah Purusha Dharma Sivah Siva. Then Namas Svāhā should be mentally recited. The morsels of food should be made of a size as to admit of being easily introduced into the cavity of the mouth. These morsels should be made either of Charu (sacrificial porridge), or of articles obtained by begging, fried barley-powder, barley, leaves of edible plants, milk, melted butter, fruits, edible roots, bulbs, or of simple water; each preceding substance being held more meritorious than the one immediately following it in the order of enumeration. Such fifteen morsels of food should be taken on the day of the full moon, and a penitent shall daily decrease the number of morsels by one during the dark fortnight, observing a perfect fast on the day of the new moon, and thereafter increasing the number of morsels by one, each day, till the day of the full moon. According to certain authorities this penance of Chāndrāyaṇam is completed in a single month. By practising it for a month, a penitent is absolved of all sin, by practising it for a couple of months he purifies his own spirit together with those of his ten immediate ancestors and descendants, and consecrates the row (Pankti) of Bráhmaṇas in which he sits down. By practising it continuously for a year, one ascends to the region of the moon.

CHAPTER XXIX.

SONS shall divide among themselves the estates of their father, after his death. A father, on the cessation of the menstrual function of his son's mother, may divide his properties, in his life-time, among his sons, if he so desires it. A father may bequeathe his whole estate to his eldest son, providing mere maintenance to other sons, or leaving to them only properties enough to defray the costs of their subsistence. The merit of a divisioner of estates is increased by making such a partition. Twenty parts of a partitioned (paternal) estate, together with male and female slaves, domestic animals each possessing two rows of teeth, cars, cows and bullocks, should form the portion of an eldest son; blind, maimed, castrated animals, as well as those, that are deprived of the power of locomotion, should fall to the portion of a second, (lit. middle) son. In the event of his father dying, possessed of a large number of sheep, a sheep, cart, paddy, iron (implements), together with a house and a quadruped should fall to the portion of a youngest son, and the rest of the property should be equally divided among all the sons. As an alternative, an eldest son shall take two parts, and the remaining sons shall take one part, each, of a partitioned paternal estate; or each successive son shall take one part less than a brother immediately his elder. An eldest son shall take ten parts of animals, one animal with bifurcated hoops, and a bullock. A son of an eldest son shall take a sixteenth part of the number of animals, or he shall take an equal share with his youngest uncle, or sons of different mothers (by a common father) shall take specific shares according to the difference of their mothers.

A sonless father shall give away his daughter in marriage, saying "her sons shall be my sons." Several authorities hold that mere entertainment of such a thought by a father in his mind will create the right of Putrikā. Hence, there is a prohibition regarding marrying a brotherless bride, inasmuch as the existence of Putrikāship in such a case may not be easily discovered. Persons related to a (deceased) individual by ties of Gotra, Pinda, or spiritual clanship (Rishi), may inherit the estates left by him. The estates of a childless person shall go to his wife after his death, or his widow shall seek for a son from his uterine brother. A son begotten on such a widow by any one except her deceased husband's brother shall not be competent to inherit the property of his mother's deceased husband. Unmarried daughters, not well-settled in life, shall inherit the Stridhanam of their mother. Money-doweries obtained at the time of a sister's marriage shall go to her brothers after her mother's demise, or according to several authorities, they may take the money even during their mother's life-time. Estates left by a deceased individual should be first divided among persons living in commensality. On the death of an elder brother who had been living in commensality, a brother of his, living separate, shall inherit his property. A brother born after the partition (of his paternal estate) shall be an heir to his father's portion only, (and not to any subsequent accretions made thereto by his brothers.) Of brothers living in commensality and belonging to a joint-family, one happening to be a practising physician, while others are not physicians (Avaidyas), the physician brother shall be the owner of all the properties earned by him.

Aurasa (1), Kshetrāja (2), Datta (3), Kritrima (4) Gudotpanna (5) and Apavidha (6), all these (six) kinds of sons are competent to inherit their paternal properties. Kānina (7), Sahoda (8), Paunarbhava (9), Putrikāputra (10), Svayamdatta (11), and Krita (12) sons inherit only the Gotra of their fathers, but they, in the absence of any Aurasa, etc., sons of their father, shall be deemed competent to inherit a quarter part of the estate left by him.

A good and eldest born son of a Brāhmaṇa father by a Kshatriya mother shall take equal shares with a son begotten by his father on a Brāhmaṇa wife, but a son of a Kshatriya mother, under the circumstances, not possessed of the foregoing qualifications, shall not take the preference of an eldest born. Sons born of Vais'ya and Kshatriya wives of a Brāhmaṇa testator, (Dhani) shall inherit his property according to shares and principles laid down before in connection with sons of Brāhmaṇa and Kshatriya wives of a Brāhmaṇa. A son, begotten by a Kshatriya on a S'udra wife, shall inherit his property in the manner of a disciple, in the event of there being no other kinds of sons of his father, and on the proof his nursing him at his death-bed. A son begotten by a man on a wife belonging to the same caste with him (Savarṇa) shall be debarred from inheriting his paternal estates on his happening to lead an improper life. S'rotriyas should be regarded as heirs to estates left by childless Brāhmaṇas, while estates left by members of any other caste shall vest in the sovereign of a country. Idiots and eunuchs are entitled to maintenance only. A son of an idiotic father shall take a share like a son begotten on a S'udra mother. Water, articles of confectionary or of culinary art, slave girls, and articles necessary for the purpose of practising yoga can never be partitioned. All matters of doubt should be submitted to the deliberations of at least ten honest, greedless, impartial men of wisdom of the following type, for settlement. Four of them must be Brāhmaṇas well-versed in the Vēdas, one member of good conduct from each of the following orders vis., Brahmachārins, house-holders and Vānaprasthas (forest dwelling hermits,) and three several jurists, well read in the regulations (Law). A council consisting of ten members of the aforesaid types is called a Parishad. In the absence of a Parishad, all matters of dispute should be adjudicated according to the decisions of good S'rotriyas, well versed in the Vedas, inasmuch as they are above all feelings of partiality or unjust oppression. By practising special virtues the virtuous go to heaven, culture of knowledge being the highest of them all.

A'PASTAMVA SAMHITA'

CHAPTER I.

NOW I shall describe the modes of practising expiatory penances to be respectively practised for their benefit by sinners of all castes in the order of enumeration, as formerly narrated by A'pastamva. (1)

The holy sages (Munis) having approached that foremost of the Rishis, who was free from all calumnies and was blissfully seated in a secluded place, calmly reposing in the illuminating principle of pure knowledge—him A'pastamva of undistracted mind, the foremost of the knowers of yoga, they addressed as follows. (2—3)

Instruct us, O lord, how men, who walk in the path of inequity and are addicted to sinful practices, can obtain there exoneration. (4)

Rearing of cattle, prosecution of agriculture in times of distress, distribution of charities to the poor, and feeding, and giving medicines to, Brâhmaṇas, suckling and protecting the children are the duties of a house-holder. Tell us, O lord, how shall (a householder) atone for any act of injury unknowingly or unintentionally done to a cow, etc. ? (5—7)

Having been thus addressed by the Rishis, the holy A'pastamva, with his head bent down in recognition of the honour shown to him, looked at them and gave utterance to the following words of unflinching certainty. (8)

Any mishap happened to the life of a child, while suckling it, or to that of a Brâhmaṇa while feeding, or medicinally treating him, calls for no atonement. (9)

Later on I shall describe the form of an expiatory penance to be practised for the death of a cow, dead while treating her medicinally ; but according to several authorities, no sin is committed by giving sustenance or medicine to a cow (even if she dies in consequence thereof). (10)

Drugs, salt, oils, food and nutritious things in general conduce to the preservation of animal-life, and hence no atonement is necessary (if an animal dies during the administration of any of these articles.) (11)

But these things should not be given in inordinate quantities. They should be given in moderate doses and at proper seasons. The practice of a Kṛichchha Vratam is the atonement for the death of cow, dead in consequence of excessive drugging or feeding. (12)

Three days' fasting constitutes a quarter part of the penance. Living on food, obtained without solicitation, for three days, constitutes a quarter part of the penance. Taking only a single meal at night, for three days, constitutes a quarter part of the penance, and taking a single meal in the day, for three days, constitutes a quarter part of the penance. These four quarter parts constitute a Prājāpatyam Vratam. (13—14)

A S'ūdra, standing under the obligation of practising an expiatory penance, should practise that form of quarter Prājāpatyam in which a single meal at morning (day) has been enjoined to be taken for three successive days ; a Vais'ya, under the circumstance, should practise the form in which a single meal at evening (night) for three successive days is enjoined to be taken, a Kshatriya, under the circumstance, should live, for three days, on food obtained without solicitation, while a Brāhmaṇa should observe a continuous fast for three days. (15)

A single quarter of the penance should be practised on the death of a cow in confinement, two quarters on the death of a cow with the halter round her neck, three quarters, on the death of a bullock in harness, and the entire (four quarters) penance, on the death of a cow or bullock, dead from the effects of a blow or lashing. (16)

A half-penance should be practised on the death of a cow, dead through the effects of injudicious fastenings of bells round her neck, inasmuch as the purpose of such a fastening is mere ornamentation. (17)

A three quarter part of the penance should be practised on the death of a cow or bulluck, dead on account of harnessing it to a cart, or subjecting it to carry a weight, which is beyond its strength, or of fastening it to a rod or post, or keeping it huddled together with other cows in a pen of cowshed for a time which is beyond its endurance. (18)

Having killed a cow or a bullock with a weapon, cudgel, or stone, or with any other implement of violence, people, should practise the four quarters of a Prājāpatyam Vratam. (19)

A Brāhmaṇa, under the circumstance, should practice an entire Prājāpatyam; a Kshatriya, under the circumstance, should practise a three-quarter part thereof, a Vais'ya, under the circumstance, should practise a half Kṛichchha Vratam, while a S'ndra, under the circumstance, should practise only a quarter part thereof. (20)

For the first two months, calves should be allowed to suckle their mothers; for the next two months, only two teats should be fully milched, for the next two months a cow should be milched once a day; after that they may be milched as liked. (21)

If a cow dies in the attempt at controlling her within a fortnight after parturition, one should give a clean shave to one's head and practise a Prājāpatyam penance (22)

Pious men should yoke eight bullocks to a plough, those, living by agriculture, should yoke six bullocks to a plough. It is the cruel who yoke four bullocks to a plough, those who yoke a couple of bullocks to a plough should be branded as killers of bullocks. (23)

A three quarter part of the penance (enjoined to be practised for expiating the sin of cow-killing) should be practised on the death of a cow or bullock, dead on account of excessive milching, or for being subjected to carry an inordinately heavy weight, or in consequence of the perforation of its nose (for gliding through it the leading string), or from the effects of a fall from a hill or a river-bank. (24)

A cow should not be fastened with a rope of strings made of cocoanut or palm fibres, nor with one made of twisted Kus'a grass or of strings of leather, in as much as such a rope interferes with its comfort and free movements. (25)

A bullock should be fastened (to a pole) with a rope of Kus'a or Kās'a grass and with its face turned to wards the south; no expiation is necessary for the act of one's trampling a fire under foot while attending to a cow or bullock. (26)

On the death of a cow or bullock through injudicious fastening or penning, or through the administration of an improper medicine by a physician, one (its owner) should doubly practise the penance of Gouratam. (27)

Having broken the horns or bones of a cow, or having cut her tail, one should live simply on milk for seven days. (28)

Or one should live on barley diet mixed with cow's urine, under the circumstance, until she does not become sound again. This is what is enjoined by Us'anāh. (29)

No expiation is necessary for the death of a cow, dead from falling in a natural cave or in a well, while grazing or freely roaming about. (30)

Having jointly killed a cow, each of the several killers should separately practise a quarter-penance by way of expiation. (31)

No atonement is necessary for the death of a cow, dead from the effects of cauterisation, or from the effects of bringing about an instrumental parturition, in a case of difficult labour. (32)

One should clip the nails of one's fingers and toes, and shave the hairs of one's body while engaged in practising a quarter-penance. The beard and moustache should be shaved in connection with the practice of a half-penance; all the hairs of the head except a tuft of hair at the crown, should be shaved while practising a three-quarter-penance, while a complete shaving of the head is enjoined in respect of the practice of a full penance. (33)

Two fingers' widths of the tips of a woman's hairs should be clipped, where a complete shaving of her head would be found to have been laid down in the regulations. (34)

CHAPTER II.

ARTICLES of manufacture just received from the hands of artisans, things brought from out side a village, acts done by infants, women and old men, and things not directly found to be impure, should be regarded as pure. (1)

Having drunk water in a *Prapā, or that lying accumulated in a forest or in the furrows of a ploughed field, as well as that which is flowing out of a pond, or is owned by a S'vāpak or a Chandāla, one should regain one's purity by drinking Panchagavyam. (2)

A current and continuous stream of water, dusts blown about by the wind, women, infants and old men are never defiled. (3)

One's own bed, wife, progeny, wearing apparels and sacred bowl are always pure; belonging to others they are impure. (4)

Having drunk water out of, or bathed in, a well or tank, caused to be excavated by another, one should regain one's purity by drinking Panchagavyam. (5)

Water purifies the unused residue of another person's meal and things, that are generally impure, or are even smeared with excrement, when that water is defiled what can impart to it its lost purity? (6)

That water, by lying exposed to the sun, and through the contact of air and cow's urine, becomes pure again. (7)

Water, defiled by the contact of skin, hairs, and bones, etc., or touched by a camel, ass, etc., should be baled out of its receptacle, or the following method should be adopted for its purification. (8)

* A place where water is distributed to travellers.—Tr.

The water of a well that has been defiled by the contact of excrementitious matter, or into which a tiger, jackal, ass, or a camel has fallen, should be completely baled out, and several handfuls of clay should be taken out of its bottom. Then the compound known as Panchagavyam and handfuls of fresh earth should be cast into it. This is how a defiled well should be purified. (9—10)

A hundred pitchers of water should be baled out of a pond or tank, and Panchagavyam should be cast into it. This is how a defiled pond or tank should be re-purified. (11)

How shall a Bráhmaṇa, who has drunk the water of a well, defiled by a human carcass, shall recover his personal purity? I have a doubt as regards this. (12)

Having drunk water out of a well whose water has been defiled by the immersion of an undecomposed and unsecreting corpse therein, a Bráhmaṇa should fast for an entire day and night and recover his purity by drinking Panchagavyam, thereafter. (13)

Having drunk water out of a well, defiled by the immersion of a fetid and decomposed corpse therein, a Bráhmaṇa should practise a Chándráyaṇam or a Tapta Kṛichckha Vratam by way of purification. (14)

CHAPTER III.

HAVING unknowingly lived in the house of a man of vile caste, and come to know of it afterwards, a Brahmana should first obtain the commiseration of the Bráhmaṇas, and then practise a Paráka or a Chándráyaṇam Vratam for regaining his purification.

A S'ūdra, under the circumstance, should practise a Prájāpatyam penance. The remaining items such as honorariums, etc., are in accordance with the nature of the penance practised. (1—2)

The practice of a Kṛichchha Vratam should be laid down as a proper expiatory penance for those that might have taken any cooked food in that house; while those who have dined with such individuals should practise quarter Kṛichchha Vratas by way of expiation. (3)

People drinking, out of a well, defiled by the touch of a corpse, or with men, made unclean by the touch of a dead body, should fast for a day and thereafter regain their purity by drinking Panchagavyam. (4)

Old men, infants, invalids (sick folks) and pregnant women should take a single meal in the night in cases where a complete fast is enjoined for others; girls should have their meals, under the circumstance, at the expiry of two Praharas (six hours of the day). (5)

Old men of eighty years, boys below sixteen, women and sick folks are required to practise half penances only (for the expiation of any sin or misdemeanour) (6)

Friends and preceptors of infants, above five years and below eleven years of age, should practise expiatory penances on their behalf, when necessary. (7)

Persons, falling ill while practising a penance, should regain their purity by causing its unperformed residue to be practised by others, so that their lives may not be anyway imperilled. (8)

Persons, not helping with food a fasting penitent dying out of hunger, or of any disease, commit sin by withholding such help. (9)

Even the practice of an expiatory penance, for its full and proper term, by a person does not absolve him of his sin without the acknowledgement of it by Brāhmaṇas, a penitent, after the expiry of half the term of a penance, may be regarded as pure, if the foremost of Brāhmaṇas pronounces him so. (10)

Members of the three social orders (of Kshatriya, Vais'ya and S'ūdra) shall never utter the term, 'completed' in respect of the completion of an expiatory penance; even at the point of death they shall cause it to be pronounced by a Brāhmaṇa. (11)

The merit of causing a Brāhmaṇa to undertake a pilgrimage to a sacred place, or to make an ablution in a sacred pool, belongs to him on whose behalf he makes such a pilgrimage or ablution. (12)

CHAPTER IV.

WHAT is the proper expiatory penance for one, who drinks water out of a cup or well belonging to a Chandāla, and how does the form of that penance should differ according to the caste of a penitent? (1)

A Brāhmaṇa, under the circumstances, should practise a Sāntapanam Vratam, a Kshatriya, a Prājāpatyam; a Vais'ya, a half Prājāpatyam, and a S'ūdra, a quarter Prājāpatyam, respectively. (2)

Having unknowingly touched a Chandāla or Svapacha before washing his face after a meal, a Brāhmaṇa should regain his purity by practising an expiatory penance. (3)

After having eight thousand times repeated the Gāyatri; or a hundred times the Drupada Mantra, or after having recited, for three nights, any other sacred

Mantra in tearful eyes, he should drink Panchagavyam, whereby he would be pure again. (4)

A Brāhmaṇa, having touched a Chandāla before washing his person after attending to a call of nature, should, for three nights, practise the proper expiatory penance, while the term of the penance should be extended to six days in case where he might have touched a Chandāla before rinsing his mouth with water, after a meal. (5)

What would be the form of expiation for one, who has gone unto a woman in her menses, or touched a woman in her flow, or a member of any other vile caste, while drinking water, or has touched the excrementitious matter of these persons? (6)

What would be the form of expiation for him who might have touched any of these people? Having touched any of these, while taking one's meal, one should, for three nights, practise the proper expiatory penance, while one, defiled by the touch of any of these, while drinking water, should practise the penance for three days only. (7)

A touch of any of these individuals, after attending to any other call of nature, or after coition, should be expiated by practising a quarter Krichchha Vratam, while defiled by their urine and stool, one should practise the penance for one and three days, respectively. (8)

It is enjoined that one defiled by the touch of any of the aforesaid people, while brushing one's teeth, should practise the proper expiatory penance for a single day. (9)

What would be the form of expiation for a Brāhmaṇa, who has eaten fruits seated on the branch of a tree which a Chandāla has climbed up at that time? (10)

With the permission of Brāhmaṇas, he should bathe with all his clothes on, fast for a whole day and night, and thereafter regain his purity by taking Panchagavyam. (11)

A Brāhmaṇa, having touched anything impure, before washing his face after a meal, should regain his purity by fasting for a night, and by taking Panchagavyam, as well. (12)

CHAPTER V.

WHAT would be the form of expiatory penance for a twice-born one, who, touched by a Chandāla, drinks water before performing an A'chamanam? (1)

A Brāhmaṇa, under the circumstance, should regain his purity by fasting for three nights and by taking Panchagavyam, while the term of the penance is two days only for a Kshatriya, its other factors remaining the same. (2)

No expiatory penance, vow, Tapasyā, or Homa exists for a member of the fourth social order (S'ūdra). (3)

S'ūdras should not be enjoined to drink Panchagavyam, inasmuch as they are not privileged to utter any Mantras. A S'ūdra, guilty of any delinquency, should regain his purity by confessing it to a Brāhmaṇa and by making gifts. (4)

A Brāhmaṇa, who has unknowingly partaken of the unused residue of another Brāhmaṇa's meal, should recover his purity by reciting the Gāyatri, for a whole day and night. (5)

A Brahmana, who has unknowingly eaten the unused residue of the meal of a Vais'ya, should regain his purity by practising the penance for three nights, and by drinking the washings of S'ankhapushpi (a kind of creeper). (6)

A Brāhmaṇa commits no sin by partaking of the unused residue of the meal of a Brāhmaṇi, or by eating out of the same plate with her. It carries the sanction of the wise. (7)

A man, having partaken of the unused residue of any other woman's food or drink, should regain his purity by practising a Prājāpatyam. It is so laid down by the holy Angirā. (8)

Twice-born ones of different orders, having partaken of the unused residues of the meals of low-caste individuals, should respectively practise an entire, half and quarter Prājāpatyam penance by way of expiation. (9)

A Brāhmaṇa having partaken of any human excrements, should practise a Tapta-kṛichchha vratam, while having partaken of any thing previously eaten by a crow or a dog, he should practice a Prājāpatyam. (10)

A Brāhmaṇa, who, before washing his mouth after a meal, might have unintentionally touched a dog, cock, S'udra, wine bowl or any thing defiled by being seated upon by an unholy bird, should regain his purity by fasting for an entire day and night, and by taking Panchagavyam, thereafter. (11)

A Brāhmaṇa, touched by a Vais'ya who has not washed his face after eating, should recover his purity by thrice bathing and reciting the sacred Mantras in the course of a day. (12)

A Brāhmaṇa, touched by a Brāhmaṇa who has not washed his face after eating, should regain his purity by making an A'chamanam, after a bath. This is the injunction of the holy Apastamva. (13)

CHAPTER VI.

NOW I shall deal with the form of expiatory penance to be practised for wearing or using a cloth dyed with indigo. Indigo-dyed clothes are not defiling when worn by women for beautifying their persons, or used by them in their beds. (1)

By sowing, or selling indigo plants, or making livelihoods out of them, Brāhmaṇas should be degraded, or they should regain their purity by practising three Krichchha Vratas. (2)

Ablutions, gifts, penitential austerities, Homas, Tarpanas and the Panchayajnas, as well as the study of the Vēdas, made by him who wears an indigo-dyed cloth, fail to bear any fruit. (3)

A Brāhmaṇa, having worn an indigo-dyed cloth on his person, should regain his purity by fasting for a whole day, and by taking Panchagavyam. (4)

A Brāhmaṇa, through the pores of whose skin the expressed juice of Indigo enters into his body, becomes degraded, and such a Brāhmaṇa should recover his purity by practising three Krichchha penances. (5)

A Brāhmaṇa, whose body is pricked into by the twig of an Indigo plant, and especially if blood oozes out of that wound, should practice a penance by way of expiation. (6)

A Brāhmaṇa, having unknowingly walked through a row of Indigo plants, should fast for a whole day and night, and regain his purity by drinking Panchagavyam, thereafter (7)

Boiled rice (article of fair) carried in a cloth, dyed with Indigo juice, should be regarded as unfit to be partaken of by Brāhmaṇas, and those who partake of such boiled rice, should practise expiatory penances. (8)

A Brāhmaṇa having unknowingly taken the expressed juice of Indigo, should regain his purity by practising an expiatory penance. This is the dictum of the holy A'pastamva. (9)

That part of a field in which Indigo is sown remains polluted for twelve years, after which period it becomes pure again. (10)

CHAPTER VII.

AN ablution by a woman, on the fourth day of her flow, is commended. One should visit a woman on the suppression of her flow, each month. (1)

Hæmorrhage from the uterus of a woman should be regarded as a disease, and such a discharge of blood does not affect her personal purity, inasmuch as it is the outcome of a pathological condition, and not a normal, physiological function in itself. (2)

A woman remains unclean as long as the flow continues in her, each month. She becomes clean again on the suppression of the discharge, and becomes fit for the purposes of domestic or conjugal duties. (3)

On the first day of her menses, a woman becomes (impure as) a Chandāli, on the second day of her flow she becomes (unclean as) a woman who has killed a

Brāhmaṇa, on the third day of her flow she becomes impure as a washer woman, while she regains her personal purity on the fourth day. (4)

A woman in her menses, happened to be touched by a S'vapāk or a Chandāla, should fast for three nights and recover her purity by taking Panchagavyam, thereafter. (5)

On the advent of the fourth night of her flow, a woman should ask her lord to procreate progeny on her person. (6)

The company of a woman in her menses, touched by a dog or a S'vapāk, should be avoided; she should regain her purity by fasting for three days and nights and by taking Panchagavyam thereafter. (7)

A woman, touched by a dog on the first day of her flow, should fast for six days; touched, on the second day of her flow she should fast for three days; touched on the third day of her flow she should fast for a single day, while touched on the fourth day of her flow she should regain her purity by looking at a fire. (8)

How should the purificatory rite be done unto a girl who may chance to menstruate on the day of her marriage, before the completion of her marriage ceremony, or before the rite of consecration of her body in that connection has been performed? (9)

The girl (bride) should be caused to make an ablution on the fourth day of her flow. Then having clothed her in a new garment, the rites of Homa etc., should be performed over again, and the unfinished portion of the sacrificial ceremony should be completed. (10)

A woman in her menses, happened to be touched by a cock or a diver, should regain her purity by fasting for three nights and by drinking Panchagavyam as well. (11)

Having touched a woman in her menses before he has washed his mouth after a meal, a Brāhmaṇa should recover his purity by practising a Kṛichchha penance, and by making gifts. (12)

A Brāhmaṇa, having climbed to the same branch of a tree with a Chāṇḍāla-woman, or with a woman in her menses, should bathe at that very moment, with all his clothes on. (13)

A woman in her menses, happened to be touched by a dog, should fast for the unexpired residue of her term of uncleanness. (14)

Incapable of fasting, she should make an ablution ; incapable even of bathing, she should recover her purity by taking Panchagavyam. (15)

A Brāhmaṇa, having touched wine, or a woman in menses, before rinsing his mouth with water after a meal, should practise a full or half Kṛichchha penance. (16)

A Brāhmaṇa, happening to touch a parturient woman, or a woman in her menses, before he has washed his face after a meal, should practise a half Kṛichchha penance by way of expiation. (17)

A woman in her menses, happening to be touched by a Chāṇḍāla or a S'vapāk, should regain her purity by taking Panchagavyam during the unexpired residue of her term of uncleanness. (18)

A Brāhmaṇa-woman in her menses, happening to be touched by a S'ūdra-woman, similarly circumstanced as her self, should regain her purity by fasting for a whole day and night, and by taking Panchagavyam. (19)

Similarly, a Bráhmaṇa woman in her menses, happening to touch a Kshatriya or a Vais'ya woman in her flow, should bathe, that moment, with all her clothes on. (20)

A woman in her menses, happening to touch a woman of her own caste, similarly circumstanced as herself (in her flow), may recover her purity by simply taking a bath. This is the dictum of the holy A'pastamva. (21).

CHAPTER VIII.

ARTICLES of bell-metal, defiled by the touch of any impure thing other than wine, should be purified by rubbing them with ashes ; defiled by the touch of wine or of excrements, they should be purified by heating or scraping them. (1)

Utensils, made of bell-metal, smelled by cows, or out of which S'ūdras have eaten, or defiled by the touch of S'vápachas, should be purified by rubbing them with the ten kinds of ashes. (2)

Articles made of gold or brass, anywise defiled, should be purified by keeping them exposed to air and sun's rays ; blankets, defiled by the touch of a corpse or semen, should be purified by washing them with earth and water. (3—4)

Boiled rice, taken without any cooked vegetables, takes five nights to be digested, while that, taken with cooked vegetables (curries), takes a fortnight to be digested in the human stomach. (5)

Milk and milk-curd take a month, and melted butter takes six months, to be digested in the human stomach, while oil may or may not be digested in the human stomach in the course of a year. (6)

A Brāhmaṇa, who continuously partakes of a S'ūdra's boiled rice for a month, becomes a S'ūdra even in this life, and is re-born as a dog at his next re-birth. (7)

Partaking of a S'ūdra's boiled rice, company of the S'ūdra's, sharing the same bed or seat with a S'ūdra, and earning knowledge from S'ūdras are acts, which degrade even the effulgent ones. (8)

The soul, the Vēdas, and the three fires of a Brāhmaṇa, who has duly installed the sacred fire, perish, if he does not refrain from taking a S'ūdra's boiled rice. (9)

The son procreated by a Brāhmaṇa on his wife, after having taken a S'ūdra's boiled rice, belongs to the S'ūdra whose boiled rice he has partaken of, since the seed of a man is the essence of his food. (10)

Dying with a S'ūdra's boiled rice in his stomach, a man becomes a domesticated hog or dog at his next birth. (11)

A Brāhmaṇa may always take a Brāhmaṇa's boiled rice, a Kshatriya's on the occasion of a Parva, and a Vais'ya's on the celebration of a religious sacrifice, but he can never partake of a S'ūdra's boiled rice. (12)

A Brāhmaṇa's boiled rice is like the divine ambrosia, that belonging to a Kshatriya is like melted butter, that belonging to a Vais'ya is like its own self, while that belonging to a S'ūdra is like blood. (13)

The boiled rice of a Brāhmaṇa is consecrated through the merit of offerings to Vishvadevas, Homas, Japas, and divine worship, and through the purifying influence of Rik, Yajuh or Sāma-mantras. Hence, the boiled rice of a Brāhmaṇa is like the divine nectar. (14)

Since it is the Kshatriyas, who protect the society by administering even-handed justice and by enforcing obedience to regulations, boiled rice belonging to a Kshatriya is like clarified butter. (15)

A Vais'ya celebrates religious sacrifices with the help of bullocks, according to his might, and practises charities and hospitalities. It is through the merit of these pious acts that his boiled rice is consecrated. (16)

The boiled rice of the ignorant and drink-sodden S'ūdras, unconsecrated by any vow or Mantras, is like blood. (17)

Raw meat, honey, clarified butter, paddy, milk, and treacle, may be taken from a S'ūdra. (18)

Edible leaves of plants and creepers (S'ākas), meat, lotus-stems, sesame, sugarcane-juice, treacle, fruit, fried barley-powder, and asafoetida may be taken from members of all castes. (19)

A Brāhmaṇa, having taken boiled rice in a S'ūdra's house, during times of distress, should regain his purity by making repentance, or by a hundred times reciting the Drupada Mantras. (20)

An article kept in his hand, and happened to be defiled by the touch of a S'ūdra who has not washed his face after eating, should not be eaten by a Brāhmaṇa. This is the dictum of the holy A'pastamva. (21)

CHAPTER IX.

IF a Brāhmaṇa involuntarily passes stool, while eating, what would be the form of expiation in respect of such a Brāhmaṇa, made impure, while remaining with unrinsed mouth. (1)

Having washed himself, he should first perform an A'chamanam, and thereafter regain his purity by fasting for an entire day and night, and by taking Panchagavyam. (2)

Having unknowingly partaken of boiled rice belonging to a member of any caste whatsoever, and having failed to purify his person thereafter, a man should recover his purity by taking Yavān for three nights. (3)

A half anjali measure (quantity that can be contained in two palms of hands united together) of barley corn, one Pala (eight tollas) of clarified butter, [and five Pala weights of cow's urine constitute what is technically known as Yavān. A penitent shall not take anything more than this Yavān. (4)

What would be the proper expiation for a man after having eaten, drunk, or licked anything that should not be eaten, drunk, or licked, as well as after having taken semen or excrements? (5)

He should recover his purity by living, for six nights (days), on the expressed juice of Asvaththa, lotus, Audumvara, Vilva or Kās'a. (6)

Brāhmanas, who having renounced the world and made a determination to die either in fire or water fail to carry out their determination, should practise three Krichchha and three Chāndrāyana vratas by way of expiation. (7)

All the consecratory rites (of Brāhmanism such as the rites of tonsure, initiation with the thread, etc.,) should be done unto them over again, and they should practise Sāntapanams or Krichchha Chāndrāyanams as well. (8)

Persons, over whose heads crows, kites, and herons fly about, or whose persons are smeared with their

excrements, or into the apertures of whose noses and ears such excrementitious matter enters, become pure again by bathing, even with those impure substances remaining on their persons. (9)

A person, defiled by the touch of an impure thing above his navel, becomes pure again by simply bathing; touched at any part part of his body below the hands and umbilicus, he should regain his purity by washing the defiled part with clay and water. (10)

He, whose face is defiled by the touch of a shoe, or of any other impure substance, should rub his face with earth and wash it with water, and thereafter recover his purity by taking Panchagavyam. (11)

On the death or birth of a sapiṇḍa relation born of a Bráhmaṇa mother, a Bráhmaṇa remains unclean for ten days, on the birth or death of a Sapiṇḍa relation born of a Kshatriya mother, a Bráhmaṇa remains unclean for six days, on the birth or death of a Vaisya Sapiṇḍa, a Bráhmaṇa remains unclean for three days, and on the birth or death of a Sūdra Sapiṇḍa, a Bráhmaṇa remains unclean for one day only. (12)

Boiled rice (food), served out to an eater, and not eaten by him, should neither be given to another, nor used to offer oblations therewith in fire. (13)

Boiled rice, found to have been infested with flies or loose hairs, after one has eaten several morsels thereof, should be cast into the ashes, and one should make an A'chamanam thereafter. (14)

Having unknowingly partaken of a S'ūdras boiled rice, or that cooked with dry meat, one should practise a Kṛichchha penance. The penance should be doubled in a case of intentional eating. (15)

At a dinner party, if a man, who has seated down to dine, rises up without taking any thing, or rises up, while eating, the giver of such a dinner, as well as he who subsequently eats any thing thereat, should be regarded as defilers (of a row of Bráhmaṇas, seated down to a dinner—Panktidushaka's). (16)

He, who has eaten, or has been eating defiled boiled rice, should observe a fast and recover his purity by taking Panchagavyam. (17)

In connection with religious rites which should be done in water, one should perform the A'chamanam on land, while in connection with rites which should be done both on land and water, one should perform the A'chamanam, dipping one's feet in water. (18)

Entering in water for a bath, one should do the A'chamanam in water; coming out of water after bathing, one should do the A'chamanam on land. By so doing one becomes blissful and favoured of Varuṇa. (19)

One should put off one's shoes before entering a cowshed or an Agnis'ālā (room where the sacred fire is kept) or an assembly of Bráhmaṇas, or before reading the Védas and sitting down to a meal. (20)

One should not partake of boiled rice not belonging to one's Sapiṇḍa relation during the celebration of any post-natal rite, or of that of tonsure in special, as well as after the celebration of a S'ráddha ceremony. (21)

Having partaken of boiled rice belonging to a village-priest, or to one who acts as a priest to a large number of families (Vakuyáji), as well as that cooked in connection with a Garbhádhānam, or with a S'ráddha ceremony, performed for the first time (Nava S'ráddham) or under the auspices of a lunar or solar eclipse, one should practise a Chāndráyaṇam penance. (22)

Having taken boiled rice at one's house on the occasion of a Brahmaudanam, Nava S'râddha, Simantonnayanam, or an Anna S'râddha ceremony, a man should practise a Chândrâyanam penance. (23)

Boiled rice should not be partaken of in the house of a barren woman. He, who unknowingly eats at such a house, is consigned to the hell of Puyasam, after death. (24)

A father, accepting any amount of money, however small, from the husband of a daughter on the occasion of her marriage, is doomed to eat and drink excrements in the hell of Raurava, for many years, after death. (25)

Relations of a woman, who live by selling carts, clothes, and golden ornaments which have become her Stridhanam, commit sin; and they come by a worse fate in the next world. (26)

The boiled rice of a Kshatriya deprives its eater of his strength, that of a S'ûdra deprives its eater (Brâhmaṇa) of his Brâhmaṇic energy. He, who partakes of boiled rice without consecrating it, eats the rubbishes of the earth. (27)

He who partakes of boiled rice belonging to one affected with a birth or death-uncleanness, as well as he that eats boiled rice during a lunar or solar eclipse, or under the auspices of the astral combination known as Gaja Chhâyâ commits sin. (28)

Having eaten the boiled rice of a twice-married, or debauched woman, or of one who has been taken back in the family after an elopement, as well as that given by a woman during her first pregnancy, a Brâhmaṇa should practise a Chândrâyanam. (29)

Having eaten the boiled rice of a patricide, matricide, or a Brâhmaṇicide, or of one who has carnally known a step mother or a preceptor's wife, a Brāhmaṇa should practise a Chāndrāyaṇam. (30)

Having partaken of the boiled rice of a washerman, hunter, cobbler or a carpenter, or of a maker of Bamboo-made-articles, a Brāhmaṇa should practise a Chāndrāyaṇam. (31)

A Brāhmaṇa, happening to touch a dog or a S'ūdra, before washing his face after a meal, should recover his purity by fasting for a day and night, and by taking Panchagavyam. (32)

Boiled-rice should be given on the bare ground to a Brāhmaṇa, who constantly carries out the behests of a S'ūdra, as to a dog. There is no difference between such a Brāhmaṇa and a dog. (33)

How shall a Brāhmaṇa with an article in his hand, regain his personal purity after urination or defecation at a waterless place, or in a forest, or on a road infested with tigers or thieves? (34)

Placing boiled rice on the ground, he should attend to the call of nature and duly cleanse his person. Then by placing the cooked food on his lap, he should regain his purity by making an A'chamanam. (35)

Failing to wash his person after urination or defecation, a Brāhmaṇa should regain his purity by taking nothing else than Panchagavyam, for three nights. (36)

Having visited, under the influence of wine, a woman in her menses, a Brāhmaṇa should recover his purity by practising a Chāndrāyaṇam penance and by feeding Brāhmaṇas thereafter. (37)

A Brāhmaṇa of small knowledge, happening to touch a Chañḍāla before he has washed his face after a meal, should practise Brāhmacharyam by bathing thrice every day, and by lying on the bare ground and fasting for three nights. After that, he should regain his purity by drinking Panchagavyam. (38—39).

A Bráhmaṇa, drinking water in touch with a Chaṇḍāla, should regain his purity, by fasting for a day and night and by bathing thrice during the fast. (40)

A single meal on the first day, a meal at night on the second day, and a complete fast on the third day constitute a quarter Kṛichchha Vratam. A single meal on the first day, a night meal on the second, eating of unsolicited food on the third, and fasting on the following days constitute a half Kṛichchha Vratam. These two are light penances. (41—42)

Sellers of antelope-skins, horse or elephant sellers, corpse-followers, and recipients of gifts of sesame seeds, shall be re-born as men of low status. (43)

CHAPTER X.

Even after an A'chamanam (at the close of a meal) a person remains unclean so long as the water is not lifted up. Even after the lifting of water he remains unclean so long as the ground is not plastered with cow-dung, etc. Even after the plastering of the ground he remains unclean so long as he does not rise up from his seat and go somewhere else. (1—2)

The erudite call not Yama (the lord of death) Yama. The self of a man is the real Yama (controller of his destiny). He who has controlled his self, what will Yama (lord of death) do unto him? (3)

Neither a sharp sword, nor an infuriated serpent is so much killing, as anger which resides in one's own body (4)

Forbearance leads to happiness both in this world and in the next. Only one defect there is of men who practise forbearance, that their toleration may be misconstrued for incapability. (5)

It is not the strong or the erudite that shall attain salvation. It is not those, who live in splendid and delightful mansions, that shall attain salvation. It is not the well-fed or the well-dressed ones that shall be emancipated. It is the persevering, god-loving, long-suffering ones that do good to all, spread delight all around them, are devoted to the practice of Yoga and to the study of the Védās and are the knowers of their proper selves, that shall obtain emancipation. (6—7)

Homas and worship done in wrath, or libations of melted butter cast in the fire in an angry mood are all lost like water kept in an unbaked pitcher. (8)

Humiliation adds to one's Tapasyā, honour leads to its deterioration. A honoured or glorified Bráhmaṇa, like a cow which is daily milched, soon comes to grief. (9)

A Bráhmaṇa gains in his spiritual body by the practice of Āpas and Homas, as a cow gains in bulk by feeding upon aquatic plants. (10)

He, who beholds other men's wives as his own mothers, other men's possessions as mere brick bats, and all creatures as his own kinsmen, but rightly beholds. (11)

The practice of a Prájāpatyam is the atonement for the sin of eating the boiled rice of a washerman, hunter, carpenter, cobbler or of a Venujivi. (12)

Having gone unto an interdicted woman, or partaken of any interdicted food, one should regain one's purity by practising a Chāndrāyaṇam or a Prājāpatyam Vratam. (13)

He, who relinquishes the Agni Hotra, becomes a vow-breaker; the practice of a Chāndrāyaṇam penance is the only atonement for his sin. (14)

A birth or death-uncleanness, occurring before the celebration of a projected nuptial or sacrificial ceremony, expires that day, and the projected ceremony may be celebrated. (15)

Uncleanness incidental to the birth or death of a relation does not affect the celebration of a religious, nuptial or *Devadroni ceremony. (16)

* Procession with idols.

VASISHTHA SAMHITA

CHAPTER I

Now therefore* [is] the enquiry into the sacred law for the welfare of men. Knowing and following [it i.e., the sacred law] a religious man becomes most worthy of praise in this world and after death. The sacred law [has been settled by] the revealed texts. On failure of this, the practice of the Sishtas† (has) authority. Religious practices and customs [which prevail in the country lying] to the south of the Himalaya and to the north of the Vindhya, must be every where acknowledged, but not different ones [are to be considered] as sacred laws.

[People] say that this (tract of the country) is A'ryāvarta. Some [say that the country of the A'ryas is situated] between [the rivers] Gangā and Yamunā; [others say] as an alternative that so far as the black antelope grazes [the country is full of] Brahma effulgence.‡ Now the Bhāllavins§ quote [the following] verse in the Nidāna.¶

* Krishna Pandit, the commentator, holds that the word etā (therefore) is used to indicate that one, after initiation, is to be taught prescribed rules.

† One whose heart is free from desire. The definition occurs in the body of the text of the Benares edition.

§ See Max-Muller's History of Sanskrit literature. P. 193.

¶ It is a section of law dealing with the disquisition of the countries.

In the west the river rambling into the ocean,* in the east the region where the sun rises as far as the black antelope wanders so far [is found] Brahma effulgence.

The religious instructions which men, deeply versed in the three Védas and acquainted with the sacred law, declare for purifying one's self and others are Dharma (sacred laws); there is not the least doubt in it.

In the absence of (express) revealed texts Manu has declared the laws of countries, castes and families. He who sleeps at sunrise or sunset, he who has deformed nails or black teeth, he whose younger brother is married first, he who has espoused before his elder brother, the husband of a younger sister married before the elder, the husband of an elder sister, whose younger sister is married before, he who kills (i.e., neglects the recitation of) the Mantram, he who slays a Bráhmaṇa, these all are sinful men.

They say that there are five heinous crimes (Mahá-pátaka) viz., violating a preceptor's† bed, drinking spirituous liquor, killing an embryo, stealing the gold of of a Bráhmaṇa, associating with out-castes either by [holding] spiritual or matrimonial [alliances with them.]

He, who during a year associates with an outcast, becomes outcasted by sacrificing for him, by teaching him, by a matrimonial alliance [with him] and by using the same carriage or seat.

* Another text is Sindhurvidharani: The commentator Krishna Pundit means it ocean. Buhler translates it as boundary-river which is probably the Saraswati. We have followed the text Sindhurviharani. Viharani can never be an adjective of Sindhu which is masculine.

† The term Guru may also mean father, meaning 'Knowing one's own step-mother.

Now they quote the example :—

On learning being destroyed [one] may again acquire it : but all is destroyed with the loss of caste. By virtue of pedigree even a horse becomes estimable therefore [men] should wed wives from a respectable family.

The three castes shall remain under a Brāhmaṇa's control. The Brāhmaṇa shall declare their duties and the king shall carry them into practice. And a king, who rules in accordance with the sacred law, may take the sixth part of the riches (of his subjects), except from Brāhmaṇas. He [also] obtains the sixth part [of merit] of Ishta (sacrifices) and Purta (charitable works). It is said that the Brāhmaṇa first made the Védas known. The Brāhmaṇa saves [one] from misfortune. Therefore a Brāhmaṇa shall not be made to pay taxes. Soma is his king. It is declared that it (i.e., such conduct) brings on well-being both in this world and in the next.

CHAPTER II.

THERE are four castes (Varṇa), Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, Vais'yas and S'udras. Three castes, Brāhmaṇas, Kshatriyas, and Vais'yas (are called) the twice-born. Their first birth is from their mother and the second from the investiture with the sacred girdle. There (i.e., in the second birth) Savitri is the mother and the preceptor is said to be the father. They call the preceptor father because he gives instructions in the Veda.

They quote the following example :—Indeed the virile energy of a man, learned in spiritual science, is of two sorts, that which is above the navel and the other such is situated below; through that which is above the navel his offspring is produced when he invests one with the sacred thread and makes him holy. By that which resides below the navel, the children of his body are produced on their mother. Therefore they [should] never say to a S'rotriya, who teaches the Vēda "Thou art destitute of a son."*

Hārta quotes the following verse :—

There is no religious rite for a [child of the twice-born] before he has been invested with the sacred girdle. His conduct shall be known as equal [to that of] a S'udra before his new birth from the Veda. [The above prohibition relates to all rites] except those connected with libations of water, [the exclamation] Swadhā, and the departed manes.

[Sacred] learning approached a Brāhmaṇa [and said] "Preserve me, I am thy treasure, reveal me not to an envious person, nor to a wily man, nor to one who has broken his vow. I shall then remain powerful.

He, who covers [him], with great difficulty, with truthful deeds, confers on him immortality; [the pupil] shall consider [such a preceptor] as his father and mother; he must not grieve him [by saying] 'I am indebted to none.'

As those Vipras, who after being instructed do not honor their preceptor by their speech, in their hearts, or by their acts, will not be profitable to their teacher so the sacred learning will not profit them.

Reveal me, O Brāhmaṇa, as to the keeper of thy treasure, to him whom thou shalt know as pure.

* Some texts read apujya (unworthy of adoration) for aputro.

attentive, intelligent and celebrate and who will not grieve or revile thee."

As fire consumes a room so Brahma (Veda), not honored [destroys the enquirer]. One shall not proclaim the Veda to him who does not show him honor according to his ability.

The duties of a Brāhmaṇa are six vis., studying the Veda, teaching, sacrificing, officiating as a priest for others, giving alms and accepting gifts.

The duties of a Kshatriya are three vis., studying, sacrificing for himself, and giving alms. His own [special duty is also] to protect his subjects according to spiritual injunctions*: let him gain his livelihood thereby.

Those three [are also the occupation] of a Vais'ya besides agriculture, trading, tending cattle, and lending money at interest.

To serve these (i. e. the three superior castes is the occupation) of a S'udra.

These (i. e., the S'udras) have no fixed regulation about their means of livelihood, [arrangement of] hairs and dresses; but they must not allow the lock on the crown to remain untied.

Those, who are unable to live by their own lawful occupation, may adopt one which is not sinful but never one which is sinful. Having resorted to a Vais'ya's mode of living a Brāhmaṇa and a Kshatriya, while maintaining themselves by trade [shall not sell] stones, salt, hempen [cloth], silk, linen [cloth], skins, a dyed woven cloth, prepared food, fruits, roots, perfumes, treacles, water, the juice extracted from medicinal herbs,

Now they quote the following verse as an example

By [selling] meat, lac and salt, a Bráhmaṇa becomes directly outcasted ; by selling milk he becomes [equal to] a S'udra after three days.

Among domesticated animals, those with uncloven hoofs and those that have an abundance of hair, any wild animals, birds, tusked animals [must not be sold] ; of grains they declare sesamum [as forbidden.]

Now they quote the following verse as an example :—

If one applies sesamum to any other purpose save food, anointing and gifts he will be born again as a worm and together with his departed manes be plunged into excreta.

If they fail to gain their livelihood by selling rice they may sell sesamum at pleasure if they have themselves produced it by tillage.

Rasa (substance for flavouring food) may be given either in an equal quantity or less in exchange for a Rasa, but never salt. It is permitted to barter sesamum, rice, cooked food, learning and men (i.e., slaves). Even by exchange a Bráhmaṇa shall not take boiled rice from a Kshatriya who lends [money] at an exorbitant rate of interest.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

He who purchasing rice at a fair price, sells it for a higher price, is called a Vardhushika (usurer) and is blamed amongst those who recite the Véda.

Usury and killing an embryo when weighed in the scales the destroyer of an embryo remains at the top and the usurer sinks downwards.

One should give at pleasure gold double and grain treble [its value on repayment] unto a sinful [usurer] destitute of all religious deeds; [the case of flavouring substances] has been explained by [the regulation about] grain. Similar is [the case of] flowers, roots and fruits. [They may lend] what is sold by weight [taking] eight times [the original value at the time of re-payment].

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

By the king's will* shall stop the interest on articles. And after the coronation of [a new] king the capital grows again.

Two in the hundred, three, four and five, as has been laid down in the Smṛiti one may take interest monthly according to the order of the castes.

Hear the interest for a money-lender declared by the words of Vasishtha, five māśhās for twenty in this the law is not violated.

CHAPTER III.

[THE Bráhmaṇas] who neither study nor teach the Véda, nor maintain sacred fires, become of the conduct of a S'udra. Without studying the Rik, one does not become a Bráhmaṇa. They quote a sloka from Manu on this subject. "A twice-born person, who not having studied the Vēda, spends his labour on another [subject], soon falls, even while living, to the condition of a S'udra and his descendants after him.

* There are two readings rajanumatabhavana and rajatu-mrita-bhavana. We have followed the first. Dr. Buhler has followed the second and translated "the king's death shall stop etc." The succeeding passage tacitly indicates that interest is stopped on the death of a king. In that case it is merely a tautology. The one, that we have followed, clearly lays down a law that a king can stop the accumulation of interest at any time he likes.

He who lives by trade [does not become a Brāhmaṇa]; nor he who lives by usury; not those who obey a S'udra's commands, nor a thief, nor a physician.

The king shall punish the village where Brāhmaṇas, failing to observe their sacred duties and study the Vēda, live by begging, for it feeds the thieves.

What four or three (Brāhmaṇas), who have mastered the Vēdas, proclaim must be recognized as the sacred law, not [the determination] of a thousand inferior persons.

Many thousands [of Brāhmaṇas], who do not observe their sacred duties, who are not acquainted with the Mantram and who subsist only by the name of their caste, cannot form a Synod.

That sin, which ignorant persons, unacquainted with the sacred law, preaches, shall fall, multiplied a hundred-fold, on the speakers.

Offerings to the celestials and the departed manes must daily be given to a S'rotriya alone. Gifts made to a person who has not read the Veda do not gratify the celestials.

If an ignorant person lives in one's own house and a man vastly read in the S'ruti at a distance, gifts should be given unto the learned: there is no sin in neglecting an ignorant wight.

The sin of neglecting a Brāhmaṇa is not committed against a twice-born person who is ignorant of the Veda. Passing by a burning fire one does not offer libations into ashes.

An elephant made of wood, an antelope made of leather, and a Bráhmaṇa indisposed to the study of the Veda—these three have nothing but the name.

In those kingdoms where ignorant men eat the food of the learned, food meets with destruction and a great evil appears.

If any one finds treasure [the owner] of which is not known the king shall take it giving one sixth to the finder. If a Bráhmaṇa, who is given to the performance of six fold sacred duties, finds it the king shall not take it.

They say that by killing an assassin with a view to personal safety one commits no sin. There are six classes of assassins (ātatāyins)

Now they quote the following verses on the subject:—

An incendiary, a poisoner, one holding a weapon in his hand, a robber, the taker away of lands, the seducer of another man's wife—these six are called assassins (ātatāyins).

One does not become guilty of Brahmanicide, if he kills an assassin who comes with the intention of slaying, even if he is a master of the entire Veda together with the Upanishads.

He, who kills an assassin well-read in the Veda and hailing from a good family, is not visited, by that deed, by the guilt of the murderer of a learned Bráhmaṇa; [in] that [case] fury recoils upon fury.

A Trináchiketa, one who keeps five fires, a Trisuparna, one who [knows the texts of] the four sacrifices (Ashvamedha, Purushamedha, Sarvamedha and Pitri-medha), one who knows Vájasena [branch of the White Yajur Veda], one who knows the six Angas, the son of a woman married according to the Brahma rite, one who knows Chhandas (Vedic metre), one who sings Jesthasāman, one who knows the Mantram and the Brāhmaṇa, one who studies the sacred law treatises, one whose ancestors, both on the mother's and on the father's side, are known to have been S'rotriyas and learned men and Snátakas are the sanctifiers of the row.

[Four students of] the four Vedas, one who knows Mimāṃsā, one who knows the Angas a preceptor of the sacred law, three leading men of the three A'sramas (orders) constitute a parishad (a legal assembly) consisting, at least, of ten [members].

He, who after having invested a pupil with the sacred thread teaches him the Véda, is called an A'chārya.

He, who teaches a portion of the Véda, is called an Upādhyāya (sub-teacher); similarly one who [teaches] the Angas (subsidiary subjects) [of the Védas].

A Brāhmaṇa and a Vais'ya may take up arms in self-defence, or in [order to prevent] a confusion of the castes. That (i.e., to take up arms) however is the daily [occupation] of a Kṣatriya on account of his privilege for protecting Having washed his feet and hands up to the wrist and sitting with his face directed towards the east or the north he shall thrice rinse his mouth with water out of Brahmatirtha, the part of the hand above the root of the thumb, without uttering any sound. He shall twice wipe [the mouth]. He shall touch with water the cavities [of the head] He shall pour water on his head and on the left hand. He shall not sip water walking, standing, lying down or bending low.

Kshatriya [becomes] pure [by sipping water] reaching his throat; a Vais'ya by water that wets his palate; a woman and a S'udra by merely touching water [with the lips.]

The offering of water may be performed by a son. [One shall not purify himself with water] that has been defiled with colors, perfumes, or flavouring substances, nor with what is collected from unclean places. Drops [of saliva], falling from the mouth, which do not touch a limb of the body, do not make [one] impure.

If after having sipped water one sleeps, eats, drinks, or bathes he must again rinse his mouth with water.

Similarly if [one] puts on a cloth or touches the lips on which no hair grows. No defilement is caused by the hair of the moustache [entering the mouth].

If [remnants of food] adhere to the teeth [they are pure] like the teeth; and one is purified by swallowing those which [become detached] in the mouth.

One is not made impure by the drops which fall on his feet while some body gives to others water for rinsing mouth; they are said to be equally [clean] as the ground.

If while moving about in an eating house one touches the residue of food he shall then place that thing on the ground, sip water and afterwards move on again.

One should sprinkle with water all objects [the purity of which] may be doubtful.

Wild animals killed by dogs, a fruit thrown by a bird [from the tree], what has been spoiled by children, and what has been done by women, enumerating all these Prajāpati (the Lord of all created beings) has declared them to be pure.

A vendible article tendered for sale, and the faces of women are never impure. What has been dirtied by gnats and flies is never impure. Similarly [is] water collected on the ground and what satisfies the thirst of cows—enumerating all these Prajāpati has declared them pure.

Any thing contaminated by unclean [substances] becomes pure when the stains and the smell have been removed by water and earth. Objects made of metal, those made of clay, those made of wood and a cloth made of thread shall be [severally] scoured with ashes, heated by fire, planed and washed. Stones and jems [should be treated] like objects made of metal; conch-shells and pearl-shells like jems; objects made of bone like wood. Ropes, chips [of bamboo] and leather become pure [if treated] like clothes; fruits and Châmasa (a vessel for drinking Soma juice at a sacrifice) [if rubbed] with [a brush of] cow-hairs; a linen cloth [if smeared] with a paste of yellow mustard [and washed afterwards with water]. A land becomes pure, proportionate to the degree of defilement, by sweeping [the spot], by besmearing with cow-dung, by scraping it, by sprinkling [water] or by heaping [pure earth] on [it].

Now they quote [the following verses] as an example.

Land is purified by these four ways, (viz.,) by digging, burning, scraping, being trodden by cows, and fifthly by being besmeared with cow-dung.

A woman becomes purified by her monthly course; a river becomes purified by its current; a bell-metal becomes purified by ashes and a copper by acid [substances.]

But an earthen vessel, that has been defiled by spirituous liquor, urine, excreta, phlegm, pus, tears or blood, is not purified even by another burning.

The body is purified by water, the mind is purified by truth, the soul by learning and austerities and the understanding is purified by knowledge.

Gold is purified by water only, similarly silver. The Tirtha, sacred to the deities, lies at the base of the little finger. That sacred to human beings is at the tip of the fingers. That sacred to the fire is in the middle of the hand. That sacred to the departed manes [lies] between the fore-finger and the thumb.

One shall honor his morning and evening meals [saying] "they please me." [In the offerings of food to] the departed manes [one should say] "I have dined well." [On the occasion of dinners given for attaining] prosperity [one should say]. "It is perfect."

CHAPTER IV.

THE four castes are marked out by their origin and particular initiatory rites. The Bráhmaṇa was his mouth, the Kshatriya formed his arms, the Vais'ya his thighs, the S'udra was born from his feet. He created the Bráhmaṇa with the Gāyatri, the Kshatriya with the Trishtubh, the Vais'ya with the Jagati and the S'udra without any metre. This indicates [that a S'udra] shall not receive the sacraments. [His] refuge shall be in the [first] three [castes]. Truthfulness, absence of anger, liberality, abstention from injuring living creatures and the procreation of the offspring [are duties common] to all. One may slay an animal when he worships the manes, the deities and the guests. On [offering] a Madhuparka [to a guest], at a sacrifice, in all rites for the deities and manes, on all these occasions only one may slay an animal; so hath Manu said.

One may cook a full-grown ox or a full-grown he-goat for a Bráhmāna or a Kshatriya guest. In this way they offer hospitality. One should perform both watery rites and [the assumption of] impurity on the death [of a relative] who completed the second year. Some say that [this rule applies also to children] that died after teething. After having burnt the body [the relatives] shall enter water without looking at [the place of cremation].

Thereupon they, stationed there, of odd numbers and facing the south, perform the watery rites with both hands, right and left. That which is south is the region of the departed manes. Having gone home they shall sit fasting, for three days, on mats. If unable [to fast so long] they shall live on food bought or given unsolicited.

It is laid down that death impurity lasts for ten days in [case of] Sapinda [relatives]. The counting of days shall begin with that of death. It has been ordained that Sapinda relationship extends to the seventh generation. It has been declared that [impurity on the death of] an unmarried woman [extends] to the third generation and [lasts] for three days. Others* [than the blood relations] shall perform [obsequies] for married women. They (i. e., married women too [shall observe impurity] for them (i. e., their husband's relatives) [The rule of impurity] shall be exactly the same on the birth of a child for those men who long for complete purity or for the mother or father on account of their [supplying the] seed.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

On the birth [of a child] the male does not become impure if he does not touch [the mother], for there menstrual blood is known to be pure which does not exist in males.

A Bráhmaṇa becomes purified after ten nights, a Kshatriya after fifteen nights, a Vais'ya after twenty nights and a S'udra after a month.

If [a twice-born person] eats [the food of] a S'udra during a birth or death impurity he shall enter into a dreadful hell and be born in the womb of an animal.

[A twice-born person], who eats, by appointment, cooked food [from a S'udra's house] during the period of impurity, shall become a worm after death and lead his life.

It has been declared that [such a sinner] becomes pure by reciting the Samhitā for twelve months* or twelve half months† while fasting. On the death of a child of less than two years, or on a miscarriage, the impurity of the Sapindas lasts three nights.‡ Purification is immediate [according to Gautama.] If [a person] dies in a foreign land and [his Sapindas] hear [of his death] after ten days the impurity lasts for one night. If one, who has killed the sacred fire, dies on a journey [his Sapindas] shall perform his obsequies* and shall duly observe the impurity of death. So Gautama [says]. Touching a sacrificial post, an ascetic, a cremation ground, a woman in menses one who has lately given birth to a child and other impure men one shall bathe his head after sipping water.

† This is the penance when one commits a sin unknowingly.

CHAPTER V.

A WOMAN is never independent ; she has masters for her masters. That she has no fire or watery rite, is known to be untrue.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

[Her] father protects [a woman] in child-hood, her husband in her youth and her sons protect her in old age ; a woman is never fit for independence.

Her penance for being unfaithful to her husband has been spoken of in the [section on] secret penances. Month after month menstrual discharge dissipates her sins.

A woman, in her course, remains impure for three nights. [During that time] she shall not apply collyrium to her eyes, bathe in the water, sleep on the ground, sleep during the day time, touch fire, make a rope, clean her teeth, eat meat, look at the planets, laugh, do any work, drink water, out of her joined palms or out of a bell-metal, copper or iron vessel. It has been declared, that Indra having killed the three-headed son of Twasthri was seized by sin and considered [himself so affected]. All beings cried out against him [saying] "O thou slayer of a learned Brāhmaṇa! O thou slayer of a learned Brāhmaṇa!!" He ran to women [and said] "Take upon yourselves the third part of this my sin of Brahmanicide." They said, "What shall we have [for doing thy wish]?" He said, "Choose a boon." They said "May we obtain offspring during our season and may we live at pleasure with our husbands till the time of giving birth to children." They having obtained the boon and being replied 'So be it' took upon themselves the third part [of the sin] of Brahmanicide. Therefore the murder of a learned Brāhmaṇa takes place every month [with their menstrual discharge]. Therefore one shall not take food from a woman in her courses for such one puts on; every month, the shape of the guilt of Brahmanicide. The Brahmvādins [the reciters of the Veda] say:—"Collyrium and ointment must not be accepted from her, for that is the food of women. They do not like the conduct of those women in that condition and say "She shall not approach me." Those [Brāhmaṇas in] whose [houses] menstruating women sit, those who preserve no sacred fire, and those in whose family there is no S'rotiya are all sinful and equal to S'udras.

CHAPTER VI.

To live, according to regulations, is undoubtedly the highest duty of all men. One, whose soul is contaminated by vile conduct, perishes in this world and in the next.

Neither austerities, nor the Veda, nor the Agnihotra, nor gift of sacrificial presents can save one who has resorted to low conduct and deviated [from the path of duty.]

The Vedas do not purify him who is devoid of good conduct, though he may have studied them together with the six Angas; the metres leave this man at death as full-pledged birds leave their nest.

Like unto beautiful doors* [unable to please] a blind man how can all the Vedas with the six Angas and esoteric sciences please a Brâhmaṇa who is devoid of good conduct?

The sacred metres do not save, from sin, the deceitful man who behaves deceitfully. If one syllable is studied completely that Veda purifies duly.†

From good conduct proceeds spiritual merit, from good conduct proceeds wealth, through good conduct one acquires prosperity and good conduct destroys inauspicious marks.

Although destitute of all good marks a man, who follows good conduct, has faith and is free from envy, lives a hundred years.

* The Benares text reads dâra which Buhler has translated as wife; in that case darśanīyas must be in the singular.

† The Benares text differs which, Buhler, differing with the commentator, translates as follows:—"But that Veda, two syllables of which are studied in the right manner, purifies, just as the clouds give beneficent rain in the month of Isha." Isha is another name of Āsvina: the month of September.

Eating, acts of evacuation, dalliance and practice of austerities shall be performed secretly by one who is conversant with the sacred law; speech, intellect, energy, austerities, wealth and age must be most carefully concealed.

A man shall void urine and faeces facing the north in the day-time; but in the night he shall do it facing the south; doing so his life will not be injured.

The understanding of that man perishes who passes urine against a fire, the sun, a cow, a Brāhmaṇa, the moon, water and the twilight.

One shall not pass urine in a river, nor on a path, nor on ashes, nor on a cow-dung, nor on a ploughed field, nor on one that has been sown, nor on a grass-plot.

Either in the shade or in darkness, either in the night or in the day a twice-born person may pass urine in any position he pleases when he fears for his life.

One shall perform [the purification] with water fetched [for the purpose]: he shall perform bath with [what is] not fetched [for the purpose]; [for purification] a Brāhmaṇa shall take earth that is mixed with gravel, from the bank [of a river.]

Five sorts of earth must not be used, viz., such as lies in the water, such as lies in a temple, what is on an ant-hill, on a hillock, thrown up by rats and left by one after cleaning himself.

The organ must be cleaned by one [application of] earth, the [right] hand by three, both [feet] by two, the anus by five, the one (i.e., the left hand) by ten and both (i.e., hands and feet) by seven [applications.]

Such is the purification for a house-holder, it is double for religious students, treble for hermits and quadruple for ascetics.

Eight mouthfuls form the meal of an ascetic, sixteen that of a hermit, thirty-two that of a house-holder and an unlimited quantity that of a religious student.

An ox, a student, and a Brāhmaṇa who has kindled the sacred fire, can do their work if they eat; without eating [much] they cannot do it.

He is said to be destitute of action who is not attached to penances, charities, offerings to a deity, religious observances, self-imposed restraint, sacrifices and sacred duties.

The concentration of the mind, austerities, subjugation of the senses, charity, truthfulness, purity, compassion, sacred learning, temporal learning, discriminating knowledge, and faith in the existence of God are the characteristic marks of a Brāhmaṇa.

Those Brāhmaṇas can save [from evil] who are perfectly self-controlled, whose ears are filled with spiritual texts, who have subdued organs of sense and action, who have ceased to injure living beings, and who close their hands when gifts are given.

One who is envious, one who is wicked, one who is ungrateful, and one whose anger lasts long, these four are Chandālas by deeds; the fifth is one birth.

Bearing enmity for a long time, envy, speaking untruth, vilifying Brāhmaṇas, wickedness and cruelty,—know [them], as the characteristics of a S'udra.

Some become worthy recipients of gifts, on account of their proficiency in the Vēda and some through the practice of austerities. But that Brāhmaṇa, whose stomach does not contain the food of a S'udra, is even the worthiest of all recipients

[A Bráhmaṇa, whose] limbs are nourished by the food and flavouring substances [given by a] S'udra, does not meet the path leading upwards, even if he daily studies [the Véda], offers oblations to the fire and performs sacrifices.

If a twice-born person dies with the food of a S'udra in his stomach he will become a village-pig [in the next birth] or be born in [that S'udra's] family.

If after being fed with a S'udra's food he holds sexual intercourse his sons will belong to the giver of the food and he shall not ascend the celestial region.

[The learned] declare him as the worthy recipient who is endued with Vedic studies, who is of good family, who is of subdued passions, who is stationed in the All-intelligent, who fears sin, who knows much, who is beloved of the females [of his family], who is religious, who is a refuge of cows, and who is forgiving by the practice of penances.

Just as milk, curd, clarified butter and honey, poured into an unburnt earthen vessel, perish on account of the weakness of the vessel, and neither the vessel nor those liquids [remain], so a man, devoid of learning, who accepts cows or gold, clothes, a horse, land or sesamum, becomes ashes like a wood.

One shall not make his joints or his nails crack. He shall not drink water with folded palms. He shall not strike a king with his foot or his hand. He shall not strike water with water. One shall not strike down fruits with brick bats, nor a fruit by throwing another fruit at it. He shall not take sesamum paste with folded palms. He shall not learn a language spoken by Mlechhas.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

The opinion of the S'ishtas is that a man shall not be unusually active with his hands, nor with his feet, nor with his eyes, nor with his tongue and limbs.

Those Brāhmaṇas, in whose families the study of the Vedas, with all the subsidiary subjects, is hereditary, are to be known as S'ishtas on account of their seeing perceptibly the revealed texts.

He, indeed, is a Brāhmaṇa of whom no one knows if he is good or bad, if he is ignorant or deeply learned, if he is of good or bad conduct.

CHAPTER VII.

THERE are four A's'ramas or orders, viz., the student, the house-holder, the hermit and the ascetic. Of them a man, who has studied one, two or three Vedas without violating the rules of studentship, may enter any of these whichsoever he pleases. A [perpetual] student shall serve his preceptor until death ; in case the preceptor dies he shall serve the sacred fire. It is known [in the Veda] that a preceptor is the sacred fire. [A religious student] shall be of controlled speech, eat in the fourth, sixth or eighth hour of the day and go out a-begging. He shall remain under his preceptor, wear either matted locks or one on the crown of his head, follow the teacher while walking, stand while he is seated and remain seated while he lies down. He shall study on being called by the preceptor to do so. Having dedicated [unto the preceptor] all that he has received by begging he shall eat with his permission. He shall avoid to sleep on a cot, to clean teeth, to rub oil on the body and to apply collyrium. He shall remain standing during the day and seated during the night. He shall bathe thrice a day.

CHAPTER VIII.

A house-holder shall be of suppressed anger and joy. Having bathed he shall, commanded by the preceptor, take for a wife a young female of his own caste who does not belong to the same Gotra or Paravara, and who has not had intercourse [with another man], who is not related within five degree on the mother's side nor within seven degrees on the father's side. He shall offer oblations to the nuptial fire. He shall not send away elsewhere a guest who comes in the evening. A [guest] shall not live in his house without receiving food.

If a Brāhmaṇa, coming to his (i.e. a house-holder's) house for residence, does not take food he shall go away taking with him all the spiritual merit [of that house-holder].

A Brāhmaṇa, who lives for one night only, is called a guest (atithi) in the Smṛiti, for atithi is he who lives for a short time only.

A Brāhmaṇa, who lives in the same village or one who comes on pleasure or business, is not [called] an atithi. [But a guest], whether he comes at the proper time or an improper hour, must not live in the house [of a house-holder] without taking his food.

[A nouseholder] must have faith and be free from covetousness ; [If he is] capable of maintaining sacred fires he must not fail to kindle them ; if he is capable of drinking Soma juice he must not abstain from performing a Soma sacrifice.

[A house-holder] must be busy with reciting the Veda, procreating children and performing sacrifices. He shall honor visitors to his house by rising to meet them, by [offering them] seats, by speaking to them kindly and extolling their virtues. He shall [entertain] all creatures with food according to his ability.

A house-holder alone celebrates sacrifices, a householder alone practices austerities, therefore the order of house-holders is the most distinguished among the four.

As all rivers and rivulets go to the ocean to be united so all orders are to associate with the householders.

As all creatures live depending upon their mother so all the mendicants live depending upon [the protection of] the householders.

A Brāhmaṇa, who daily carries water, who always wears the sacred thread, who daily studies the Veda, who avoids the food of outcasts, who visits his wife in the proper season, who celebrates sacrifices according to rules, does not fall from the region of Brahman.

CHAPTER IX.

A VA'NAPRASTHA (hermit, shall wear matted locks and put on bark and deer skin. He shall not enter a village. He shall not tread a ploughed land. He shall gather wild growing roots and fruits. He shall draw up his virile power and be forgiving. He shall honor guests coming to his hermitage with alms of roots and fruit. He shall only give but never receive [presents.] He shall bathe thrice (morning, noon, and evening). Kindling fire according to the regulation of Srāmanaka (Sutra) he shall preserve the sacred Fire. He shall live at the root of a tree. Living thus for over six months he shall keep no fire and have no house. He who [thus] gives [their due] to the deities, departed manes and men, shall attain to the endless celestial region.

CHAPTER X.

A RELIGIOUS mendicant shall depart giving a present of the promise of safety from injury to all creatures.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

A twice-born person, who having given a promise of safety to all creatures wanders about, has nothing to fear from all creatures.

He, who lives in this world without giving a promise of safety to all living creatures, destroys the born and the unborn ; likewise does one who accepts presents. Let one renounce all the religious rites but not [the recitation of] the Veda. By discarding the Veda one becomes a S'udra and therefore one shall not renounce the Veda.

[To recite] one syllable (Om) is the highest [method of] reciting Brahmā (Veda) ; to suppress vital airs is the highest form of penance ; to live on alms is better than fasting and compassion is preferable to liberality.

[An ascetic] shall shave his head, shall own nothing and no home. He shall beg food at seven houses not selected before, when it is smokeless and when the pestle lies motionless. He shall wear a single garment, or cover his body with deer-skin or with grass that has been nibbled at by a cow. He shall live on the naked ground and shall not live long at one place. [He shall live] at the outskirt of a village, in a temple, in an empty house or at the root of a tree. He shall seek knowledge by the mind. Living always in the forest he shall not walk about within sight of the village cattle.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

Freedom from re-births is certain for him who always lives in the forest, who has conquered the sense organs, who has renounced all sensual gratification, whose mind is devoted to the meditation of the Supreme Self and who is [perfectly] indifferent. He shall be of no visible mark or rule of conduct. Though not mad he shall appear like a maniac.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

There is no salvation for him, who is addicted to the study of the science of words, nor for him who is given to the acceptance of presents in this world, nor for him who is fond of eating and clothing, nor for him who loves a charming residence.

One shall not seek to obtain alms by [explaining] evil portends and omens, nor by skill in astrology and palmistry, nor by [the exposition of] the scriptural injunctions, nor by casuistry.

He shall not be dejected when he gets nothing nor glad when he receives something. Renouncing all attachment for earthly possessions he shall seek only as much as will sustain life.

He alone is the foremost of those conversant with [the road of] emancipation who cares neither for a hut, nor for water, nor for clothes, nor for the three Pushkaras,* nor for a dwelling, nor for a seat, nor for food.

He shall eat in the evening what he shall get in the house of a Brāhmaṇa except honey, meat and clarified butter. Evening and morning the ascetics and pious house-holders shall derive satiation [from eating]. [An ascetic] shall live [at his option] in a village, should not be crooked, shall not have a house and be of concentrated mind. He shall not join his senses with their objects. By avoiding injury and kindness he shall be indifferent to all living creatures.

To renounce back-biting, envy, pride, conceit, unbelief, crookedness, self-praise, slandering, egoism, avarice, stupefaction, anger, and jealousy is the duty of all orders.

A Brāhmaṇa, who is pious, who wears the sacred thread, who holds in his hand a pitcher filled with water, who is pure and who renounces a S'udra's food and drink, shall not fall from the region of Brahma.

[A Brāhmaṇa] of six rites shall give Bali-offerings to the [presiding] deities of the house. Having offered food unto a S'rotriya [one shall] offer [it] unto a student and then unto the departed manes. He shall then feed his guests in due order, the worthiest first, then the maidens, the infants, the aged and the advanced [in age] members of his family and then the other members and dependants. He shall throw some food on the ground for the dogs, Chandālas, outcasts and crows. He may give to a S'udra the residue [of the food]. The self-controlled [house-holder] shall eat what remains.

A fresh meal, with all the materials [as for the first] shall be [made] if a guest comes after the Vaisvadeva has been offered; for such a guest he shall have a particular food made. It is known [in the Veda] that Vaisvânara fire enters the house [in the shape of a] Brâhmana guest. Through him they get rain and food through rain. Therefore people know that the [the reception of a guest] is a ceremony averting evil.

Having fed him one shall honor him, shall accompany him to the outskirt or until he gets permission [to return]. One shall offer oblations unto the manes during the dark fortnight after the fourth [day]. Having invited the Brâhmanas on the day previous [to the S'râddha] one shall feed the ascetics, virtuous house-holders who are Srotriyas, who are of advanced years, who do not follow forbidden occupations, pupils living in the house, and qualified pupils. One shall feed all except those who neglect their duties, those suffering from white leprosy, eunuchs, those who have black teeth, those who suffer from black leprosy, and those who have deformed nails.

Now they quote the following verses as an example: If one, conversant with the Mantrams, is afflicted with bodily [defects] which desecrate a row, Yama calls him irreproachable. And he too is a sanctifier of the row.

At a S'râddha, the remnants [of a meal] shall not be cleared away until the end of the day. They (i.e. the manes) for whom no watery libations have been offered) drink streams flowing from the sky.

They are nourished by the remnants till the sun is not set. The streams of milk become un-ending and movable.

Manu has said that both the remainder [in the vessels] and the fragments are the share of those members of the family who died before receiving the sacraments.

One shall give the residue, that has fallen on the ground, consisting of the wipings and water to the manes of those who died without offspring and of those who died young.

Food shall be dedicated unto the manes supported by both the hands. The wicked-minded Asuras always seek holes therein.

Therefore one shall not offer food in empty hands ; or he shall stand holding the dish [until] leavings of both kinds have been produced.

One shall feed two [Brāhmaṇas] at the offering to the deities, three at the offering to the manes or one on either occasion ; even a very rich man shall not be anxious to [feed] a very large number.

Good treatment, [consideration of] time and place, purity and [selection of] virtuous Brāhmaṇas [as guests] —a large company destroys these five ; therefore one shall not invite a large number.

Or one may feed even one Brāhmaṇa who has studied the whole Veda, who is endued with good conduct and who is free from all evil marks.

How can oblation to the deities be made if one feeds a single Brāhmaṇa at a S'rāddha. Having collected in a vessel [a portion of] all sorts of food, placed it in a temple one shall then begin the performance of a S'rāddha. He shall throw into the fire [a portion of that] food or shall give it to a Brahmachārin.

They shall, controlling the speech, eat the food so long it continues warm ; the manes eat it so long the qualities of the food are not spoken of.

The qualities of the food must not be spoken of as long as the manes (i. e., the Brāhmanas representing them) are not satiated. Afterwards when the Pitris are satisfied they may say, "Beautiful is the sacrificial food."

But one, who being invited at a S'rāddha or a sacrifice rejects it (i. e., meat) shall go to hell for as many years as the beast has hairs.

Three are sanctifying in a S'rāddha, a daughter's son, the eighth Muhartta of the day and sesamum and three [others] purify more the food, viz., purity, freedom from anger and from precipitation.

The eighth part of the day, when the Sun's progress becomes slow, that period is named Kutapas ; what is [then] given to the manes endures for ever.

The departed manes of that man, who holds sexual intercourse with a woman after offering or having dined at a S'rāddha, feed for a month on his semen.

One who studies after offering food at a S'rāddha or partaking of funeral food, is born in this or that (i. e., indifferent) family ; he does not acquire sacred learning and becomes short-lived [in that birth].

The father, the grand father and the great grand-father adore a son born to them as the birds [become hopeful on seeing] a Pippala tree.

Even a poor man makes funeral offerings with honey, meat, vegetables, milk and porridge both in the rainy season and under the constellation of Maghā.

The ancestors always welcome a descendant who lengthens the line, who finds pleasure in performing funeral sacrifices and who is rich in idols and good Brāhmaṇas.

The manes rejoice at him as husbandmen at good rain. The manes possess a descendant in him who offers them food at Gayā.

One shall make offerings to the manes both on the full moon days of the month of Srāvana (July August) and Agrahāyana (November and December) and on the Anvashthaka.* There is no necessity of restriction about time if materials, [sacred] place and [good] Brāhmaṇas are near at hand. A Brāhmaṇa, who kindles the sacred fires, shall perform the full and new moon sacrifices, the [half-yearly] Agrahāyana Ishthi, the Chaturmāsya sacrifice, the sacrifices in which animals are killed and the Soma sacrifices. All this is enjoined in the Veda and is spoken highly of as a debt. A Brāhmaṇa is born loaded with three debts. He owes sacrifices to the deities, descendants to the departed manes and religious studentship to the Rishis. One becomes free from debt who celebrates sacrifices, who begets a son, and who leads the life of a religious student. One shall invest a Brāhmaṇa with the sacred thread in the eighth year after conception, a Kshatriya in the eleventh year after conception and a Vaishya in the twelfth year after conception. The staff of a Brāhmaṇa [student] may be [made] of Palāsa wood or Bel wood; that of a Kshatriya of the wood of Nyagrodha, and that of a Vais'ya of Udumvara wood. The upper garment of a Brāhmaṇa [shall be] the skin of a black antelope; that of a Kshatriya the skin of a spotted deer; that of a Vais'ya a cow-skin or that of a he-goat. The wearing cloth of a Brāhmaṇa shall be white [and] spotless; that of a Kshatriya dyed with madder: that of a Vais'ya dyed with turmeric or made of [raw] silk. The undyed cotton cloth [is] for all [religious students]. A Brāhmaṇa shall beg alms placing [the word] Bhavad (Lord) first; a Kshatriya placing [the word] Bhavad in the middle and a Vais'ya placing [the word] Bhūdd at the end. The time for the initiation of a Brāhmaṇa does not expire until the completion of the sixteenth year, for that of a Kshatriya until the completion of the twenty second year and for that of a Vais'ya until the completion of the twenty-fourth. After that they become men whose Savitri has been neglected. One shall not initiate such men, teach them nor officiate as priests at their sacrifices; one shall not contract matrimonial alliances with them. A man, whose Savitri has been neglected, may perform the Uddalaka penance.

He shall live for two months on barley-gruel, for one month on honey collected by bees, for eight nights on clarified butter, for six nights on unsolicited food, for three nights on water and shall fast for a day and night. Or he may go to bathe at the terminating bath of a horse-sacrifice or he may offer a Vratyastoma.

Now [are] the duties of a Snātaka. He shall not beg from any body except a king and a pupil. But stricken with hunger he may ask for some [small gift,] cultivated or uncultivated field, a cow, a goat or a sheep; or for gold, grain or food. But the injunction is that a Snātaka shall not be exhausted with hunger. He shall not be a stay-at-home. He shall not cross a rope to which a calf is tied. He shall not look at the sun when he rises or sets or sheds heat. One shall not puts urine or excreta in water, nor spit into it. He shall pass urine or excreta after wrapping up his head, covering the ground with grass that is not used in a sacrifice, facing the north in the day time, the south at night, and the north in the twilight.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

The Snātakas shall always put on a lower and an upper garment, [wear] two sacrificial threads [and shall carry] a staff and a pitcher filled with water.

[A vessel] is being spoken of [as] pure with water, or with a stick, or with fire. Therefore [a Snātaka] shall clean [his] vessel with water and with his [right] hand.

Manu, the lord of created beings, designates it as encircling it with fire. Having performed the obligatory rites one, perfectly acquainted with the rules of purification, shall sip water.

He shall eat food, facing the east. He shall silently swallow the entire mouthful with the four fingers and with the thumb. He shall not make a sound with his mouth. He may know his wife in the proper season or at any other time except on the Parva days. He shall drink sacred water.

Now they quote the following verses as an example

The ancestors of a man, who commits intercourse through the mouth of his wedded wife, feed, that month, on his semen, for all unnatural intercourse is against the sacred law.

It is known that Indra conferred upon women the sanctifying boon that even those [among them], who are to be mothers either to-day or to-morrow, may cohabit with their husbands. He (i.e., a Snātaka) shall not ascend a lofty tree, shall not descend into a well, shall not blow the fire with his mouth, and shall not pass between a fire and a Bráhmaṇa ; nor between two fires ; nor between two Bráhmaṇas ; or he may do so after having obtained permission. He shall not take meals with his wife, for it is said in the Vájasaneyaka, "His children shall be shorn of manly vigour." He shall not point out a rain-bow by its [true] name], "Indra's bow." He shall call it a jewelled bow. He shall avoid seats, dogs and sticks for cleansing teeth made of Palāsa wood. He shall not eat [food placed] in his lap ; he shall not eat [food placed] in a chair. Let him carry a bamboo-staff and wear two golden ear-rings. He shall not wear any visible garland save a golden one. He shall avoid assemblies and crowds.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

To deny the authority of the Védas, to doubt the injunctions of the Rishis and to consider one's own argument as directly authoritative destroys one's soul.

One shall not go to a sacrifice without being invited. If he goes, he must not go by the door covered with trees or facing the sun. He shall not ascend an unsafe boat. He shall not cross a river by swimming with his arms. Having risen up in the last part [of the night] and recited [the Vēda] he shall not lie down again. In the Muhurta sacred to Prajāpati, a Bráhmaṇa shall perform some sacred duties.

CHAPTER XI.

Now therefore the Upakarman [the rite preparatory to] Védic study [shall be done] on the full-moon day of the month of S'rāvana or Prausthapada. Having kindled the sacred fire he shall offer oblations to the deities and the sacred metres. Having made oblations to the sacred metres, having made the Brāhmanas utter words of well-being and after having fed them with curd he shall continue the Vēdic study for four months and a half, or six-months and a half, and then perform the dedicatory rite. Thereafter he shall study the Vēda during the light fortnight and the Angas (supplementary subjects) of the Vēda at pleasure. [The Vēda] shall not be studied during the period of conjunction (twilight) in towns where a corpse [lies] or Chāṇḍālas [live] [He may study] at pleasure [in a place], which has been besmeared with cow-dung, and around which a line has been drawn. [He shall not study] near a cremation-ground, lying down, or after he has eaten or taken a present at a funeral rite.

Now they quote a verse as an example from Manu:—

Whether be it fruit, water, sesamum, food, or any gift at a S'rāddha, one shall not, having just accepted it, recite the Vēda; for it is said in the Smṛiti that, the hand of a Brāhmaṇa is his mouth.

[One shall not recite the Veda] while running, while a foul smell comes, ascending a tree, in a boat or in a camp, after meals, while his hands are moist, while the sound of an arrow [is heard], on the fourteenth day of each fortnight, on the new moon-day, on the either day of a fortnight and on an Ashtakā [day], while he stretches his feet out, while he makes leap, leaning against [some thing], on a bed that had been used in a conjugal intercourse, in a dress that he had used during a sexual intercourse except it has been washed at the outskirt of a village, after vomiting, while passing urine or excretā. One shall not recite the Rig-Véda or the Yajur-Véda while the sound [of the chanting] of the Sáman [is audible] nor when a thunder-bolt falls, nor when an earth-quake happens, nor during the solar and lunar eclipses, nor when a sound is heard in the sky or in the mountains, nor during an earth-quake or muttering of clouds, nor when showers of stones, blood and sand [fall from the sky], nor during twenty-four hours [after the event]. If meteors, lightnings and other luminous bodies appear [the study of the Véda shall be stopped] for twenty-four hours. If the teacher dies [one shall not study the Véda] for three nights; and if teacher's son, pupil or wife [dies], during a day and a night; likewise [on the death of] a priest or any relation made by a marriage. The feet of a preceptor must be embraced; one shall honour an officiating priest, a father-in-law, paternal and maternal uncles, younger than himself, by rising and saluting them. Similarly, [he shall honour] the wives of those persons whose feet must be embraced, and the teacher's [wives] and his parents. One shall say "I am such and such" to one who is acquainted [with the meaning of the salute.] But he shall not salute him, who does not know the meaning of a salute. The father, when out-casted, must be forsaken, but the mother is never forsakable unto a son.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

An A'chāryaya is ten times more venerable than an Upādhyāya; the father, a hundred times more than the A'chāryaya; and the mother, a thousand times more than the father.

A wife, sons, and pupils, who are contaminated by sinful deeds, must first be admonished [by being pointed out] and then forsaken. He, who forsakes them in any other way, becomes [himself] an out-cast.

An officiating priest or a preceptor, who neglects to perform sacrifices, or to teach [the Vēda] shall be forsaken. The wife must not take that husband, who, though not really an outcast, appears like one. She shall never speak of him. A woman, by holding intercourse with a person other [than her husband], becomes an outcast. The husband may, therefore, take another wife, who has never been enjoyed by another man.

If the preceptor's preceptor is near he must be treated like the preceptor himself. The S'ruti says that, one must treat a teacher's son just as the teacher himself.

Scriptural works, raiments and food shall be accepted [as presents] by a Brāhmaṇa. Learning, wealth, age, relationship, and occupation must be respected. But each preceding one is more venerable [than the succeeding one]. If one meets aged men, infants, sick men, load-carriers, and persons riding on wheels, he must give way to each of the latter. If a king and a Snātaka meet, the king must make way for the Snātaka. All must make way for the greatest [man among them.] Grass, land, fire, water, truth and absence of envy—none of these is found wanting in the houses of good men.

CHAPTER 'XII.

I SHALL now describe what may be eaten and what may not be eaten. Food given by a hunter, a woman of immoral character, a mace-bearer, a thief, one under the ban of an imprecation, a eunuch, or by an out-cast must not be eaten ; nor that given by a miser, by one who has performed the initiatory rite of a S'rauta sacrifice, by one fettered with a chain, by a sick person, by a seller of Soma-plants, by a carpenter or a washerman, by a seller of spirituous liquor or a spy, by a usurer, or a cobbler ; [nor that given] by a S'udra, nor at an inferior sacrifice [performed by one who is] devoid of five sacrifices, [nor that] given by the paramour of a married woman, or a husband, who procures a paramour [to his wife], or by one (i.e., a king) who does not slay a person deserving destruction, or by one who cries out whether bound or freed ; food given by a multitude of men or by harlots should not be eaten.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

The celestials do not partake of [the offerings] by a man, who keeps dogs, nor by him whose [only] wife is a S'udra woman, nor by him who is hen-pecked, nor by him in whose house [lives] the paramour [of his wife.]

One shall not accept from such [people even] fuel, water, fruits, fodder, Kusā grass, parched grain, unsolicited drink, house, small fish, millet, perfumes, honey, and meat.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

For the sake of a Guru (religious guide) when he wishes to save his wife [and family from starvation,] when he wishes to honour the deities or guests, one may accept [presents] from any body ; but he shall never satisfy himself (i.e., convert to his own use) [with them].

Food, given by a hunter using the bow, shall not be rejected. It is said [in the Vēda] that at a sacrifice extending over one thousand years Agastya went out to hunt. He had delicious cakes made with the meat of beasts and fowls. They quote some verses made by Prajāpati. Prajāpati has ordained that, food, freely offered and brought, may be eaten although [the giver] may be a sinful person, provided it has not been asked as alms beforehand.

Particularly a thief's food must not be eaten by one who has faith,* nor that given by a Brāhmaṇa, who sacrifices for many and initiates many.

The manes do not eat for fifteen years [the food] of that man who rejects food [offered voluntarily], nor does the fire carry his offerings.

But alms, albeit offered voluntarily, must not be accepted from a physician, from a hunter, from a surgeon, from one who uses a noose, from a eunuch or a faithless woman.

Residue of food left by other persons than the preceptor must not be eaten, nor the residue of one's own meal and food sullied by leavings; nor food sullied by contact with a dress, hair, or with insects. But if he likes he may use [such food], after taking out the hair and the insects, sprinkling it with water, and throwing ashes on it, and after it has been declared by words as fit [for taking].

Now they quote the following verses by Prajāpati, as an example :—

The deities created for Brāhmaṇas three instruments of purification, namely, ignorance, sprinkling them with water and commending [them] by word of mouth.

One shall not cast away the food, which, at a procession with images of deities, at a nuptial ceremony, or at a sacrifice, is touched by crows or dogs.

* There is another reading which Buhler has followed, "offered by a man who has faith, must certainly be eaten even though the giver be a thief." This seems to be a better reading, but we have followed the Bengali edition.

Having taken out thereof [the defiled portion of] food one shall purify the remainder, the liquids by straining them and the solid food by sprinkling it with water. Some [articles] become pure when they are looked at, if not defiled by touch.

Stale food, what is naturally bad, what has been placed once only in the dish, what has been cooked again, raw food and [that] insufficiently cooked [must not be eaten.] ; but one may take it, if one likes, after pouring over it milk, curd and clarified butter.

Now they quote the following verses by Prajāpati as an example :—

Oily substances, salt and curries, offered with the hand, do not benefit the giver, and he, who partakes of them, will eat sin.

For eating garlic, onions, mushrooms, turnips, S'leshmātaka, exudations from trees, red sap of trees flowing from incisions, food eaten by horses, dogs and crows, and leavings of a S'udra, a Krichchhāti Krichchha [perimce must be performed]. Elsewhere [the penance is ordained] by others for taking meat, honey and particular kinds of fruits, and flesh of some wild animals. One shall not drink the milk of cow that is in heat, or of one whose calf has died, or that which a cow-buffalo or a she goat gives during the first ten days [after giving birth to young ones], or water collected at the bottom of a boat. One shall avoid wheat-cakes, fried grain, porridge, barley-meal, stale and other sorts of [bad] food prepared with milk and barley-flour.

Of five-toed animals, the porcupine, the hedge-hog, the hare, the tortoise and the iguana may be eaten ; of [domestic] animals those having one jaw only save camels; of aquatic animals the alligator and the crab [must not be eaten]; nor those which are mis-shaped like snakes; nor kine, Gavayas and Sharabhas, nor those that have not been [specially] mentioned. It is said in the Vájasaneyā [Samhitā] that, the meat of] milch cows and oxen is fit for sacrificial offerings. They make conflicting statements about the rhinoceros and the wild boar. Among birds those which seek food by scratching with their feet, the web-footed one, the Kalavinka, the water-hen, the flamingo, the Brāhmaṇi duck, the Bhāsa, the crow, the blue pigeon, the osprey, the Chātaka, the dove, the crane, the black partridge, the grey heron, the vulture, the falcon, the white egret, the ibis, the cormorant, the peewit, the flying-fox, those flying about at night, the wood-pecker, the sparrow, the Renlātka, the green pigeon, the wagtail, the village-cock, the parrot, the starling, the cuckoo, those living on flesh, and those moving about villages [must not be eaten].

CHAPTER XIII.

MAN, formed of blood and semen, proceeds from his mother and his father as his cause. Therefore the parents have power to give, to sell, and to abandon their [son]. But one shall not give, or receive [in adoption] an only son, for he must live to continue the line of his ancestors. A woman shall neither give nor receive a son save with the permission of her husband. He, who wishes to adopt a son, shall collect his kinsmen, announce his desire to the king, shall make offerings in the middle of the house, reciting the Mahā-vyâhriti, and take as a son, a not-remote kinsman, just the nearest among his relatives. But if a doubt arises about this remote kinsman, [the adopter] shall set him apart with a S'udra. It is said in the Veda that, through one he saves many. If after adoption, a son of one's own loins is born, [the adopted son] shall obtain a fourth part, if he is not engaged in rites, procuring prosperity.

He, who divulges the Veda [to unworthy persons, shall be excommunicated] by spreading red Kusa grass having tips with left foot and placing the water-vessel thereon. Allowing their hair to hang down, and with their sacred threads on the right side, his relatives shall touch him who empties [the pot]. Then turning their left hands towards [that spot] they may go and come at pleasure. They shall not afterwards admit the outcast to sacred rites. Those, who admit him to religious rites, become his equals. But outcasts, if they have performed the [necessary] penitential rite, [may be] re-admitted.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

[Some] shall come by redemption by [entering] into fire. [People] shall play and laugh [with such a person] He shall walk behind those, who excommunicate him, like one weeping and sorrowing. Those, who kill their teachers, their mothers, or their fathers, may be readmitted either after being pardoned, or after expiating their sin. Having filled a golden or an earthen pot [with water] from a sacred lake or river, they pour [the water] over him, [reciting] "ye waters are, etc."

All [other rites relating to the] readmission of one, who has [thus] bathed, have been explained by [those laid down for] the birth of a son.

CHAPTER XIV.

NOW [are] the laws. Let the minister of the king transact business on the bench. When there is a dispute between two parties, if he sides with one of them, their guilt will be considered as [the king's] own. [A king] shall be equitable to all created beings. If he commits any crime, it shall be rectified by the regulations of [the first two] castes. The king [shall administer the property of] the infants, who are not of age for legal actions. [A minor] shall be [treated] as others when he comes of age.

There are three kinds of proofs, it is declared in the Smṛiti, which give title to a property, namely documents, witnesses, and possession; [by these] an owner may recover his former property.

[In all disputes] about roads, fields, different interpretations of gifts, and debts on mortgage, the legal procedure is of three feet (i.e. requires three kinds of evidence).^{*} In a dispute about a house or a field reliance [may be placed on the evidence] of neighbours. If the statements of the neighbours disagree, reliance [shall be placed on the statement of] the aged villagers or citizens, and of guilds and corporations.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

* There is a difference of reading: Bühler has followed the Benares text and translated the passage thus: "From fields through which (there is a right of) road (a space sufficient for the road) must be set apart, likewise a space "for turning (a cart, and for) other things (of the same description there shall be) a passage three feet about." We have translated Arthantareshu as different interpretations i.e. of the terms of agreements. Bühler has translated it as near other things. The commentator Krishnapandit means "near pleasure-gardens and the like."

What is bought, a pledge, property given to a wife after marriage by her husband's family, and what is obtained from a sacrifice—know all this as burning fire. Whatever has been continuously enjoyed [by another person] for ten years [is lost to the owner.]

A king is not justified to make a gift of a pledge, a boundary, the property of minors, a deposit, a sealed deposit, women, the property of a king, and the property of a S'rotriya.

They are not lost by being enjoyed [by others]. The properties of house-holders [given up by them] go to the king. With ministers and citizens a king shall administer affairs. Whether is a king, who is surrounded by many servants, superior to one who has servants, [keen-eyed] like vultures? A king, who has servants like vultures, is not superior. A king shall not be like a vulture, nor shall he have servants like vultures. Through his servants originate crimes such as theft, robbery, murder etc,. Therefore let him question his servants beforehand.

Now about witnesses :

Persons, well-read in the S'ruti, beautiful, possessed of good character, and truthful, are to be witnesses. All men may [be witnesses of all men]. One shall make women witnesses about women ; twice-born persons shall be fitting [witnesses for] twice-born men ; S'udras for S'udras, and low castes for low castes.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

A son shall not pay money owing [by his father] for a surety, a money promised for a worthless object, money due for losses at play, or for spirituous liquor, nor what remains unpaid [on account] of a fine or toll.

Speak out, O witness, every thing truly ; thy departed manes hang [in suspense depending on thy answer] ; with the utterance of thy words they will rise [into heaven], or fall [into hell].

Naked, with head, shaven, stricken with hunger and thirst, and blind shall go the man, who gives false evidence, with a potsherd to beg food at the door of his enemy.

One kills five by [giving] false [evidence] about a maiden ; one kills ten by [giving] false [evidence] about kine ; one kills a hundred by giving false evidence about a horse, and a thousand, by giving false evidence about a man.

People may speak untruth at the time of marriage, while holding sexual intercourse, when their lives are in danger, while their entire property is at stake, and for the sake of a Brāhmaṇa. These five falsehoods are not sinful.

If for the sake of a relative, or for money, men give partial evidence in a law-suit, they bring down [into hell] their own ancestors, although stationed in the celestial region.

CHAPTER XV.

THE father throws his debts on [the son] and acquires immortality, if he sees the face of a living son.

It is said in the S'ruti that, endless are the regions for those, who have sons ; there is no region for him, who has no son. There is a curse that men (i.e., enemies) may have no male offspring. Through offspring Agni acquired immortality. In this there is the rule :

Through a son one conquers the world ; through a grandson one acquires immortality ; but through his son's grand-son he acquires the solar region.

There is a dispute [among the learned ; some say] ' the son belongs to the husband of the wife ; [and some say,] the son belongs to the begetter.'

They quote on both sides the following verses as an example :

If [one man's] bull were to procreate a hundred calves on another man's cows, they would belong to the owner of the cows ; useless is the spending of his power.

[Some say,] ' vigilantly watch the pro-creation of your offspring lest strangers might sow seed on your soil. The son belongs to the begetter. The adage is that, one of successful virile power has created this offspring.

If amongst many begotten by one [father] one has a son, they all have offspring through that son, thus says the Veda.

Twelve kinds of sons only are recognised by the ancients.

The first is the son begotten [by the husband] himself on his own married wife. In his absence the second begotten on one's own wife or widow [by another man] on being authorized. The third is an appointed daughter.* A brotherless maiden comes back to her male ancestors ; returning she becomes their son. [There is a] verse .

* This is a curious fact but the practice is still prevalent in Kashmira. Buhler quotes an historical incident from Rajatarangini " Where it is stated Kalyandevi, princess of Ganda, and wife of king Gayapida, was called by her father Kalyanamalla." He says in the same note :— " When I collated the passage with the help of a Kasmirian I was told that a certain Brahmana, still living in Srinagar, has changed the name of his only child, a daughter called Amri, to the corresponding masculine form Amirgu in order to secure to himself through her the same spiritual benefits as if he had a son.

" I shall confer on thee a brotherless damsel adorned with ornaments. The son to whom she may give birth shall be my son."

The fourth is the son of a re-married woman. She is called Punarbhu (re-married), who leaving the husband of her youth and having lived with others seeks the protection of his relatives.

And she [too] is called Punarbhu, who leaving an impotent, outcast, or mad husband, or after the demise of her husband, takes another lord. The fifth is the son of an unmarried maiden. [The learned say] that, the son whom an unmarried woman gives birth to through lust in her father's residence is the son of his maternal grand-father.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

If an unmarried daughter gives birth to a son begotten by a man of equal caste, the maternal grand-father gets a son through him ; he shall offer pinda and steal (inherit) the property [of his grand-father.]

[A son] born secretly in the house is the sixth. [The learned] declare that these all (i.e., six) are heirs and kinsmen and preservers from great danger. Now amongst those, who are not heirs, the first is he, who is received with a pregnant bride. [The son of a maiden,] who is married pregnant, [is called] a Sahoda (a son received with the bride). The second is the adopted son whom his father and mother give [in adoption.] The third is the son bought. That is explained by [the story of] Sunahs'epa. Harishchandra indeed was a king. He himself bought the son of Ajigarth by [giving him] young animals [and wealth.] The fourth is the son himself arrived. This is explained by [the story of] Sunas'epa. Sunas'epa, forsooth, [when] tied to the sacrificial stake, lauded the celestials. Then the deities liberated him from the fetters. The sacrificial priests said, "He shall be our son." He did not comply with their request. [Then] they made him make [this] compact. "He shall be the son of him whom he chooses." Viswāmitra was the Hotri and he became his son. The fifth is an Apavidhha (cast off son.) [He is called so] who, renounced by his father and mother, is received [as a son]. The sixth is the son of a S'udra woman. These six are kinsmen but not heirs.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

These (i. e. the last-mentioned six sons) shall inherit the property of him, who has no heir belonging to the first-mentioned [six classes]. Now about the partition [of paternal property] amongst brothers.

The eldest shall take two shares, and a tithe of the kine and horses. The goats, the sheep and the house belong to the youngest; black iron, the utensils and the furniture, to the middle-most. The daughter shall divide the nuptial presents of their mother. If a Brāhmaṇa has sons by wives of the Brāhmaṇa, Kshatriya and Vais'ya castes, the son of the Brāhmaṇa wife shall receive three shares; the son of the Kshatriya wife, two shares, and the other sons shall inherit equal shares. And if one of the brothers has earned something by his own [endeavour*] he shall get two shares. But those

* Krishna pandit thinks that, the Sutra forbids an appointment which is made with the intention to secure the estate, or a share of the estate of the natural father from whom the Kshatriya son inherits also. But it seems equally probable that it is intended to prevent a widow from agreeing to an appointment in order to obtain control over her husband's estate"—Buhler, who have entered a different order, those, who are eunuchs, insane and out-cast, shall receive no share but [they] are entitled to maintenance.

The widow of an eunuch or mad man, deceased, shall sleep on the ground, for six months, practising religious virtues and abstaining from taking pungent food and salt. Having bathed after six months, she shall offer the Sraddha to her husband. Then her father, or her brother shall assemble his (i. e., deceased person's) preceptors, who taught him or officiated at his sacrifices and his kinsmen, and shall appoint her [to raise offspring for her deceased husband]. One shall not appoint a woman, who is insane, not under control, and diseased, nor one who is very aged; sixteen years [is the age for appointing a woman] and she must be healthy.

[The male appointed] shall approach [the widow] in the muhurta, sacred to Prajāpati, like a husband, without dallying with her, and without abusing or ill-treating her. She shall get food, dress, baths and unguents from [the estate of] her former [husband]. The [learned] say that, sons begotten on a woman, not appointed, belong to the begetter. A woman shall not be appointed for the man, who had seen her with lustful eyes. Others say that if [a widow] is to be appointed [under these circumstances] she shall have to perform a penance. A maiden, who has attained puberty, shall wait for three years. After three years she may take a husband of the same caste.

Now they quote as an example,

If the suitable age of a maiden expires before she is given away by her father, she, who has been waiting [for a husband] destroys him, who gives her away, just as the fee that is paid too late to the teacher [kills the pupil]

Fearing the appearance of the menses, the father shall marry his daughter while she still runs about naked. If she stays (in her father's house) after menstruating, sin visits the father.

As often as are the menstrual courses of a maiden, who is desirous of, and is solicited in marriage by, a qualified bridegroom of the same caste, so often her father and mother are guilty of [the crime of] killing an embryo : such is the sacred law.

If the betrothed of a maiden dies after she has been given away to him by words and water but before she was married with Mantras, she belongs to her father alone.

If a maiden has been carried away by force and not married with Mantras, she may be lawfully given away to another man. She is like a maiden.

If a damsel has merely been married, at the death of her husband, by Mantras, and if the marriage has not been consummated she may be married again.

A wife whose husband is in a foreign country, [and who has not given birth to a son], shall wait for five years without cherishing any desire. She shall live and behave like a widow. A wife of the Brahmana caste, who has issue, [shall wait] for five years ; and one who has no issue, four years ; the wife of a Kshatriya who has issue, five years ; and one who has no issue, three years ; a wife of the Vais'ya caste who has offspring, four years ; and one who has none, two years ; a wife of the S'udra caste who has offspring, three years ; and who has none, one year. Of those who are connected [with her husband] by libations of water. funeral cake, birth and by gotra (family), each preceding person is more preferable. But if a member of her family survives, she shall certainly not go to a stranger. The Sapindas, or those who are of the status of a son to him, shall divide the heritage of him who has no heir of the first-mentioned six sorts. On failure of them the preceptor and the pupil shall inherit the property. On failure of these two the king inherits. But a king shall never take the property of a Brahmana, for it is a dreadful poison.

They do not call poison, poison; the property of a Brahmana is called poison. Poison kills only one man but the property of a Brāhmaṇa kills (him, who takes it), together with his sons and grandsons.

He should make it over to pious men, who are well versed in the three Vedas.

CHAPTER XVI.

THEY say that, the offspring of a S'udra by a Brahmana woman is a Chandala. That of a Kshatriya by a Vais'ya woman is Anta-Vyavasāyin. That of a Vais'ya, by a Brahmana woman becomes a Rāmaka.* [That of a Vaisya] by a Kshatriya woman [is called] Pukkasa. That begotten on a Brāhmaṇa woman by a Kshatriya becomes a Suta. So [the learned] declare.

* Krishna Pundit, the commentator, reads Romaki for Ramaka. This indicates, according to some, that the Hindus, of the period, to which the Vasistha Dharma Sastra belongs, had become aware of the existence of the Roman empire. Buhler holds, and so do we, that there is no reason to make such an assumption "On the other hand," says Buhler, "Romaka is a correction which would easily suggest itself to a Pundit, who was unable to find a parallel passage in which the word Ramaka occurs"

Now they quote the following verse as an example :

One may know by their deeds those, who have been born secretly and are stigmatised for being begotten from unions in the inverse order of castes, because they are shorn of virtue and good conduct.

[Children] begotten by Bráhmaṇas, Kshatriyas and Vais'yas on women of the next lower, second lower and third lower castes become Nishādas. [The son of a Bráhmaṇa] by a S'udra woman [is] a Parásava. They say that the condition of a Párasava is that of one, who, albeit living, is a corpse. The designation of a dead body is S'ava. Some say that a S'udra is a corpse ; therefore, the Veda must not be recited near a S'udra.

Now they quote the following verses as an example from Yama-Gitá. These Sudras, who are of sinful deeds, are manifestly a cremation ground. Therefore, the Veda shall never be recited near a S'udra.

One shall not give advice unto a S'udra, nor the residue of his food, nor [the residue of] the offerings [to the deities] ; nor shall he explain the sacred law to him, nor shall he order him to perform a religious rite.

He, who explains the sacred law to him, he, who orders him to perform a religious rite, goes, together with that very man, into the dreadful hell [called] Asamvrita.

If ever a worm is produced in an wound [on his body] he shall purify himself by performing Prajā-patyam and give cow, gold and a raimant as sacrificial presents.

One, who has placed the sacred fire, shall never approach a S'udra woman ; for she, belonging to the black race, is like a bitch, not for religious rites [but for pleasure.*

CHAPTER XVII.

THE duty of a king is to protect all beings ; by fulfilling it he attains success. Not to protect [them] is a source of fear ; the learned have spoken of this rule. It is said [in the Veda] that a Brāhmaṇa priest upholds the kingdom, therefore, one shall make gifts to a priest in all the rites obligatory on a house-holder. His (king's) fear arises also from non-protection and want of capacity. Paying attention to all the laws of the countries, duties of castes and of families, a king shall make the four castes (Varna) follow their respective duties. He shall punish those, who deviate from the path of duty. He shall award [punishment] after due consideration of the place, time, the duties, learning etc., (of the delinquent) and the seat [of occurrence]. For the purpose of extending cultivation, one may cut down trees, that do not bear fruits or flowers, for it is not prohibited by the S'ruti. The measures and weights of objects necessary for domestic purposes must be protected [from being falsified]. He (i.e. king) shall not take property for his own use from [the inhabitants of] his kingdom. The measures and price [of property] only shall be subject to taxes. On an expedition against the enemy, companies, consisting of ten, shall be able to perform a double duty. There shall be places for distributing water. [The king] shall make one hundred men at the least, engage in battle. The wives [of soldiers killed] shall be provided for. Duties shall be levied on goods sold in the market. A ferry shall be taken away from a river in which there is no water. A S'rotriya is free from taxes, likewise, a servant of the king, one who has no protector, one who has become a religious mendicant, an infant, an extremely aged man, a young man (who studies), and one, who makes gifts, are exempted ; so are widows, who return to their former (family), maidens and those women whose children are dead. He, who swims with his arms across a river in order to avoid payment of toll, shall pay one hundred times [the amount due]. No tax shall be paid for rivers, dry grass, forests places of cremation and mountains. Those, who secure their livelihood from them, may pay [something]. But he shall take a monthly tax from artizans. On the death of a king, one shall give what is necessary for the occasion. It is hereby explained that his mother shall receive a maintenance. The king shall maintain the paternal and maternal uncles of the principal queen, as well as her other relatives. The wives of [the deceased] king shall receive food and raiment, or if they are reluctant, they may depart. [The king shall maintain] eunuchs and mad men, [since] their shares [go to him]

No duty is paid on a sum less than a Karshâpana ; [there is no tax] on livelihood gained by wit, nor on an infant, nor on an emissary, nor on what is gained by begging, nor on the residue of a property left after a robbery, nor on a S'rôtriya, nor on a religious mendicant, nor on a religious sacrifice.

By failing to inflict punishment on a thief, on a cursed wight, on a wicked person, on one [caught] with weapons in his hands, on a thief caught with stolen property in his possession, on one covered with wounds and a cheat, a king shall fast for one night ; and the priest, for three nights. If an innocent man is punished [the king shall perform] a Krichckha penance, and the priest [shall fast] for three nights.

Now they quote the following verses as an example :

The destroyer of a learned Brāhmaṇa throws his guilt on him, who takes his food ; an adulterous wife, on her husband ; a disciple and a sacrificer, on an [ignorant] teacher [and officiating priest] ; and a thief, on the king [who pardons him].

If having committed crimes, men are purified by the king, they go pure to the celestial region and [become] as holy as the virtuous.

The sin visits the king, who pardons an offender. If he does not cause him to be killed, he becomes guilty in accordance with the regal laws.

Immediate purification is laid down in respect of (the violation of) all royal duties. They are always pure, and Yama is the authority (for this statement.)

Now they quote a verse proclaimed by Yama.

In this, no sin attaches to kings, to those who are engaged in religious observances and to the ministers, for they are seated on the throne of Indra, and are always equal to Brāhma.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THERE is penance for a crime committed unwittingly ; some [say] also for [a crime] committed intentionally. The spiritual teacher corrects the learned ; the king corrects the evil-minded, but Yama, the son of Vivasvat, indeed punishes those, who commit sins secretly.

Of men one, who has slept at sun-rise, shall stand during the day and recite Sāvitrī, and one, who has slept at sun-set, shall sit whole night [reciting the Gāyatrī.]

One with deformed nails or black teeth shall perform a Krihchha penance, extending over twelve days, and then again enter the domestic mode of life. Having performed a Krichchha penance for twelve days, one, whose younger brother has first married, may again enter the domestic mode of life and take to himself even that [woman whom his younger brother married.] He, who has taken a wife before his elder brother, shall perform a Krichchha penance and an Atikrichchha penance, and then marry.

We now declare [the necessity of] daily performing a penance. Having performed a Krichchha penance for twelve [days and] nights, one, who has killed (i.e., forgotten) Brahma (i.e., Vēda, after being again initiated with the sacred thread, shall receive the Veda from his teacher. The violator of a step-mother shall cut off his organ together with the testes, take them in his joined-hands and proceed towards the south; wherever he meets with an impediment there he shall stand till he dies; or having shaved his hair and smeared his body with clarified butter he shall embrace the heated iron image [of a woman.] It is said [in the Veda] he becomes liberated [from the sin] after death. The same [penance is laid down for him, who commits the offence] with the wife of a teacher, of a son, or of a pupil. By knowing a venerable woman, or a female friend or wife of a Guru, one shall perform a Krichchha penance for a year. The same penance [is laid down] for taking food of a Chandāla, or of an out-cast. Afterwards initiation, [must be performed once more] but the tonsure and the rest may be omitted.

Now they quote a verse from Manu as an example ;

The tonsure, [the wearing of] a sacred girdle, [the holding of a] staff and the begging of alms—these religious rites may be omitted on second initiative rites of the twice-born. Such [is the penance in respect of those,] drinking spirituous liquor and associating with eunuchs. If any twice-born person, conversant with the meaning [of the sacred literature], drinks water lying in a liquor-vessel, he shall, after drinking the juice of lotus, Udumvara, Bel, and Palāsa leaves, for three nights, attain to purification. For habitually drinking spirituous liquor, a twice-born person shall drink one [liquor] of the color of fire. We shall describe Bhrunahan (the destroyer of a learned Brāhmaṇa, or of an embryo.) He is called a Bhrunahan, who slays a Brāhmaṇa, or destroys an embryo [the sex of] which is unknown. The embryos of which the sex is unknown become males ; therefore, they should offer oblations unto the fire for the production of males. The destroyer of a learned Brāhmaṇa shall kindle a fire, and offer [the following eight oblations,]

The first, [by saying] 'I offer my hair to Death, I feed Death with my hair ;' the second, [by saying] 'I offer my skin to Death, I feed Death with my skin ;' the third, [by saying] 'I offer my blood to Death, I feed Death with my blood' ; the fourth, [by saying] 'I offer my flesh to Death, I feed Death with my flesh ;' the fifth, [by saying] 'I offer my sinews to Death, I feed Death with my sinews ;' the sixth, [by saying] 'I offer my bones to Death, I feed Death with my bones ;' the eighth, [by saying] 'I offer my marrow to Death, I feed Death with my marrow.' For the sake of the king, or for the sake of Brāhmaṇas, one shall cause oneself to be slain in battle with one's face directed towards [the enemy.] It is declared in the Veda:—(A murderer), who is thrice undefeated, or is thrice defeated [in battle], becomes pure. A sin, which is twice proclaimed, becomes smaller.

By saying to an out-cast, "O thou, out-cast," or to a thief, "O thou thief," a person commits a sin as great as [that of the offender]. [If he] falsely [charges any body with such an offence], his sin will be twice as great.

Likewise, having killed a Kshatriya, he shall perform a penance extending over eight years; for killing a Vais'ya, six years; for killing a S'udra, three. For slaying a Brahmana woman, who is an A'treyi, or a Kshatriya or Vais'ya engaged in a sacrifice, [the same penance shall be performed.] We shall explain [the term] A'treyi. [The learned] say that, she, who has bathed after the menses, is an A'treyi; she too is called an A'treyi, who is descended from [the family of] Atri. By slaying a Kshatriya, by killing a Vais'ya, and by destroying a S'udra, [one shall perform penance] for a year. By robbing a Brâhmaṇa, one shall run with flying hair to the king, [declaring] "I am a thief, Sir, punish me." The king shall then give him a weapon made of Udumvara wood; with that weapon he shall kill himself. It is said in the Veda that, he becomes pure after death, or [the thief] shall shave off all his hair, smear his body with clarified butter, and cause himself to be burnt from the feet upwards in a fire of dry cow-dung. It is said in the Vēda that, he becomes pure after death.

Now they quote the following verses as an example

Hear, now, the limbs of those, who having committed various crimes died a long time ago and were afterwards re-born, are [marked].

A thief will have deformed nails, a slayer of Brahmanas will suffer from white leprosy; a drinker of spirituous liquor will have black teeth, and a violator of his Guru's bed will suffer from bad skin.

Property obtained from the out-cast, after contracting alliances with them either by [teaching] the Veda, or by marriage, shall be relinquished. One shall not associate with such [men]. It is said in the Vēda that, [he, who mixes with the out-cast], shall regain his purity by reciting the Samhita while proceeding in a northerly direction and fasting.

They quote the following verse as an example :

A sinner is freed from his sin by tormenting his body, by practising austerities, and by Vedic studies; he becomes also liberated by making gifts. This is said in the Vēda.

CHAPTER XIX.

If a S'udra knows a Brahmana woman, [the king] shall cause the S'udra to be packed up in Virana grass and thrown into a fire. Having caused the head of the Brahmani to be shaved and her body to be smeared with clarified butter, he shall cause her to be placed naked on the back of a donkey and conducted along the high-road. It is said that, she becomes pure [thereby].

If a Vais'ya knows a Brahmana woman, [the king] shall cause the Vais'ya to be tied up with Lobita grass, and he shall throw him into a fire. Having caused the head of the Bráhmaṇi to be shaved and her body to be smeared with clarified butter, he shall cause her to be placed naked on a yellowish donkey and conducted along the high road. It is said in the Veda that, she becomes pure [thereby].

If a Kshatriya knows a Brahmaṇa woman, [the king] shall cause the Kshatriya to be tied up with blades of Sara grass and shall throw him into a fire. Having caused the head of the Brahmani to be shaved and her body to be smeared with clarified butter, he shall cause her to be placed naked on a white donkey and conducted along the high road. It is said in the Veda that, she becomes pure [thereby].

A Vais'ya, [who commits lachery] with a Kshatriya woman, [shall be treated] in the same manner; so shall a S'udra [who holds incest] with a Kshatriya or a Vais'ya woman.

If [a wife] has been mentally faithless to her husband, she shall live on barley or rice boiled with milk, for three days, and sleep on the bare ground. After [the expiration of] three days, [the husband] shall offer eight hundred Homas, [reciting] the Sāvitrī [and the Siras] Mantra, while she is immersed in water. It is said in the Veda that, she becomes pure [thereby].
